GARNER PUTS UP NEW TWO BILLION RELIEF PROJECT

Plans Gasoline Tax to Retire Bonds.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—Events today moved rapidly toward the formation of a gigantic depression relief measure that will require the raising of considerably more than the one billion dollars of additional taxes in the pending tax increase bill, if the federal budget is to be balanced.

HENRY T. RAINEY.

Speaker John Garner [Dem., Tex.] formally declared in favor of a two billion 100 million dollar relief plan which he purposes to bring before the house within the next week. His project comprises the following:

1. Appropriation of 110 million to be expended by the President in his discretion for the relief of destitution.
2. Increase of one billion dollars in the borrowing power of the Reconstruction Finance corporation for loans to state and local governments, corporations and individuals for the purpose of increasing employment.
3. A bond issue of one billion dollars for construction of federal public works in the interest of revival of industry and increase of employment, this expense to be met by a tax of one-third of 1 cent a gallon on gasoline.

Indorsed by Rainey.

Representative Henry T. Rainey of Illinois, Democratic leader of the house, indorsed the Garner plan, although he had previously expressed doubt that the government could float a one billion dollar bond issue, in view of the fact that there will be three billions of short term obligations to fund next year. He though it would be necessary to raise the depression relief funds by an enormous further increase in the levies contained in the billion dollar tax boost bill.

"I think we should put the tax on corporations," said Mr. Rainey. "In England corporations are taxed 27 per cent and here but one-half of that. Yet American corporations are leaving this country to go to England.

"The biting thing about the gasoline tax is that the tax of one-third of 1 cent could not be passed on to the consumer because we have no unit of value of that amount. I see no objections to extending the authority of the Reconstruction Finance corporation or giving the President one hundred million dollars. I think the President should have some discretion in the matter. Conditions are growing worse and we have to do something. I am sorry we have to do this much, but I think we ought to pass the legislation by adjournment."

Combines Three Proposals.

The Garner plan is a combination of the major features of the depression relief proposals of President Hoover, Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader of the state, and Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.]. There was comment on the speaker's failure to indorse the five billion dollar public works construction plan of William Randolph Hearst, his chief sponsor for the Democratic nomination for President.

The proposal to increase the borrowing power of the Reconstruction Finance corporation 1 billion dollars involves the possibility that the federal treasury would assume this obligation in the end. The corporation is now authorized to issue debentures up to 1½ billion of which the treasury has been the only purchaser up to date.

A few months ago legislation of this character was being advocated chiefly by the radicals. Now, there are few conservatives standing out against it. Big business men in New York swung in line for it, Senator Robinson followed, then President Hoover, and now Speaker Garner. Representative Bertrand Snell of New York, Republican leader of the house, said tonight that the Garner plan "is quite a program" but that "perhaps something can be worked out to the benefit of the country as a whole."

Economy Talk Recedes.

Senator Robinson refused somewhat impatiently to comment on the Garner plan, saying his own committee will have its depression relief project ready for presentation to the senate within three days.

JOLIET SALOON OWNER SLAIN ON GANG RIDE

The bullet riddled body of Vincent Olmetti, 36 years old, Joliet saloonkeeper, was found last night in a ditch on the Cherry Hill road, 300 feet from the Lincoln highway and two miles east of Joliet. The road at this point lies along the estate of State Senator Richard J. Barr.

Olmetti had been shot five times, four of the bullets striking him near the heart. Will county authorities said there was no doubt he had been "taken for a gang ride." The motive of the killers, however, was a mystery. It was said that while Olmetti was once in the illicit brewery business, he had recently confined his activities to the conduct of a saloon at Jackson and Maple streets, Joliet.

It was recalled by the Joliet police that when Joseph Perconti, once the alleged partner of Olmetti in the alcohol business, was slain three years ago Perconti's widow accused Olmetti of the crime. Both Perconti and Olmetti were questioned by the Chicago police in the fall of 1928 in connection with the kidnaping for ransom of young William Ranieri, but were freed after a brief investigation.

FLINGS BOMB OUT OF DAIRY PLANT AS IT EXPLODES

Windows were broken early today in the Meadowmoor Dairy company building at 1334-42 South Peoria street by a bomb which a night watchman had discovered and tossed on the sidewalk outside just before it exploded.

The watchman, Max Rosen, 1350 South Peoria street, said the fuse on the bomb was sputtering when he picked it up on the stairs inside the front door.

The police were informed that the Meadowmoor company was a newly organized concern which had not yet started operations and that the management planned to sell milk for 9 cents a quart instead of the standard 11 cents. There were three watchmen on duty in the plant, two guarding the machinery inside to prevent vandalism, while Rosen patrolled the exterior.

CLEANERS' UNION OFFICIAL ROBBED OF $6,750 BY GANG

Albert Boris, 350 South Austin boulevard, Oak Park, organizer of the Retail Cleaners and Dyers' union, reported to the police early today that three men, accompanied by a woman, had held him up at Laflin street and Jackson boulevard and robbed him of $7, jewelry valued at $6,750, and his car.

According to Boris, his car was forced to the curb by another in which the robbers rode. Two men leaped out and while one of them held a pistol against Boris the second searched him. Included in the loot was a $4,000 diamond ring, a $750 stickpin, an $800 stud, and a $1,200 watch.

Two Atlantic Hops Started; One by Woman

CAPT. FRIEDRICH CHRISTIANSON. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

While the huge seaplane rode gently at anchor in Trinity bay, awaiting dawn to continue its flight to Holyrood to refuel, preparations were made at the Harbor Grace airport for the arrival tomorrow of Amelia Earhart Putnam, first woman to fly the Atlantic, who hopes now to be the first of her sex to make the crossing in a solo hop.

Spends Night at St. John.

Mrs. Putnam today flew with Bernt Balchen, hero of many ocean flights, from Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., to St. John, N. B., where she spent the night.

They reached St. John three and a half hours after the takeoff from New Jersey and were to continue here tomorrow. At Harbor Grace Mrs. Putnam will await the favorable weather report that will send her with her crimson, gold striped monoplane out on the eastward flight to Europe.

The DO-X, after pausing for fuel at Dildo, 12 hours and 11 minutes after its departure from New York, took off again for Holyrood, but poor visibility and approaching darkness forced it back.

Crew of 14 Aboard DO-X.

The craft, with its crew of 14 which took off from Long Island sound at 4:05 a. m. [Chicago daylight savings time], anchored for the night at 6:46 p. m., and its commander, Capt. Friedrich Christianson, said he would leave for Holyrood at dawn, about 2:30 a. m., Friday [Chicago time].

A heavy ocean swell caused the DO-X commander to shift his course from Harbor Grace to the more placid waters at Holyrood in Chapel's cove at the head of Conception bay. At Holyrood Capt. Christianson will await favorable weather reports before taking off for the oversea flight.

While Mrs. Putnam plans to follow the northern route over which she flew as a passenger with Wilmer Stutz and Lou Gordon four years ago, the DO-X will head for the Azores when it takes off from New Foundland. Mrs. Putnam and her companions left Harbor Grace on June 17, 1928, landing 21 hours later at Burry Estuary, off Burryport, Wales.

Spanish Flyer in Indo-China.

HANOI, French Indo-China, May 19. — (AP) — Fernando Rein, Spanish aviator, who is flying from Madrid to Manila by easy stages, landed at Moncay tonight, after having left Hanoi this afternoon. He remained at Moncay awaiting favorable weather before flying on to Hongkong, his next stop.

AIRSHIP TALKS TO EARTH OVER BEAM OF LIGHT

Schenectady, N. Y., May 19.—(AP)—The dirigible Los Angeles, observing eye of the navy, "whispered" down a beam of light to the ground what she saw from the air as she cruised over this city tonight.

The experiment with this new secretive system of communication—transmission of the voice over a beam of light—was conducted by officers of the navy dirigible and engineers of the general electric laboratories.

The voices from the air, fading occasionally as the ray of light projected from the Los Angeles swerved from the mirror picking it up on the ground, were picked up by radio station WGY.

While the conversation over the light beam was conducted as an engineers' "stunt," the experimenters were quick to point out the wartime value of such communication.

WANTS ALL FEDERAL WORKERS TO RECITE NATIONAL ANTHEM

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—Amid a few audible chuckles in the house, Representative Fuller [Dem., Ark.] offered a resolution today to compel every civil service employé to prove his ability to sing, recite or write from memory the words of "The Star Spangled Banner," those failing to be ineligible for any federal position.

Mr. Fuller did not make any provision in his resolution for those failing in first tests to have second trials, but he did give sixty days of grace for all to learn the words.

The head of every federal department or independent establishment would be examiner for those under his control, and he would be directed to conduct an "examination" sixty days after the resolution was passed.

FEDERAL BANK CHIEF GETS AID OF BIG BUSINESS

Industrial Leaders Accept Challenge.

Aim to Set Money to Work

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—News that a committee of financial and industrial leaders had set to work today to find an outlet for the hundreds of millions of dollars in credit released by the federal reserve banks in the last month was received here tonight. The action explained the presence in New York of Secretary of the Treasury Mills and Eugene Meyer, governor of the reserve board.

It is understood that President Hoover is hopeful that the move will be of great value. It is said he had been disappointed at the failure of the credit expansion drive to reach commerce and industry through the country's banks. The present move is aimed to get that result.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 19.—What is said to be the most powerful coalition of financial leadership since the days of the Liberty loan committee was called into being today. A committee of 12 bankers and industrialists was formed to aid in putting to work the hundreds of millions of dollars being poured into the market by the federal reserve system in its credit expansion program.

The group, under the chairmanship of Owen D. Young, was called together by George L. Harrison, governor of the federal reserve bank of New York as New York's response to the policy devised at the meeting of federal reserve bank governors in Washington earlier in the week.

Effect Blocked by Fear.

In the last 12 weeks the federal reserve system has purchased $725,000,000 of United States government securities, putting into the market funds capable of supporting $7,250,000,000 of bank credit. But in spite of this enormous expansion of available funds the deflation of bank loans and investments has been unchecked.

The bankers' and the public's fear and uncertainty have prevented the reserve's policy from taking its full effects. In the face of this delay a demand has arisen in many quarters for more drastic means of stimulating a recovery in prices.

Group Issues Statement.

This statement was issued tonight in behalf of the bankers-industrialist group aiming to promote national business recovery:

"Gov. Harrison of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York has called together a committee composed of bankers and industrialists for the purpose of considering methods of making the large funds now being released by the federal reserve banks useful affirmatively in developing business.

"Its purpose will also be generally to coöperate with the Reconstruction Finance corporation and other agencies to secure more coördinated and so more effective action on the part of the banking and industrial interests.

"The committee held its first meeting this afternoon at the federal reserve bank."

Those on Committee.

The committee may be enlarged later, the statement added.

The committee consists of Mr. Young, chairman of General Electric company; Mortimer N. Buckner, chairman of the New York Trust company; Floyd L. Carlisle, chairman Consolidated Gas company; Walter S. Gifford, president American Telephone and Telegraph company; Charles E. Mitchell, chairman, National City bank; William C. Potter, president, Guaranty Trust company; Jackson E. Reynolds, president, First National bank; Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president, General Motors corporation; Walter C. Teagle, president, Standard Oil company of New Jersey; A. A. Tilney, chairman, Bankers' Trust company; Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of board of Chase National bank; Clarence M. Woolley, chairman, American Radiator and Standard Sanitary corporation.

Not Yet Ready to Talk.

The committee's first meeting, it is understood, was devoted chiefly to matters of organization. Just what lines of activity will be pursued have not yet been made known. Individual members of the group explained that nothing sufficiently definite had been arranged as yet for them to be able to comment upon their program.

New York, May 19.—[Special.]—On the eve of the fifth anniversary of the start of his flight to Paris that first brought him fame Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today joined a group of fourteen persons reënacting the kidnaping of his murdered son at his Hopewell, N. J., estate.

It was 5:52 a. m. (central standard time) on Friday, May 20, 1927, that Col. Lindbergh took off from Roosevelt field, New York, and 33 hours and 29 minutes later when he thrilled the world by landing at Le Bourget field, near Paris.

Colonel Leads Search.

Today Col. Lindbergh took active charge of the hunt for the slayers of his son as the detectives attempted to trace the kidnapers' route after they lifted the baby from its crib in the second floor nursery. The ladder which the abductors used was placed against the house and a detective carried down a bundle representing the baby.

Then for an hour and a half Col. Lindbergh, his head bowed and shoulders bent; Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, chief of the New Jersey state police; Col. Henry Breckinridge, and the others tramped about the estate searching for clews that might have been overlooked in the search which began 79 days ago. It was recalled that footprints had been followed from the foot of the ladder approximately two miles.

Debate Action Against Dean.

Although John H. Curtis of Norfolk, Va., was exonerated today of having any connection with the kidnaping itself or the collection of ransom, the New Jersey police still were striving to get his fellow "negotiator," the Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, to come to New Jersey to face him. Curtis is in the jail at Flemington, N. J., awaiting grand jury action on the charges growing out of his hoax in "negotiating" for the return of the baby.

Stung by two refusals of the rector of Christ Episcopal church in Norfolk to agree to confront Curtis, officials debated in a conference in the statehouse at Trenton whether there was any legal means by which they could force the pastor to answer their summons. At the same time they discussed whether or not the dean can or should be prosecuted for his part in the "negotiations."

Check Curtis' Movements.

The disavowal of any suspicion that the Norfolk boat builder was guilty of more than the hoax officially disposed of the coincidence that Curtis flew to New York on the morning of April 2, a few hours before Dr. John F. Condon paid $50,000 to the supposed kidnapers, and was in New York for several days thereafter.

The Norfolk police, who have been investigating Curtis' movements on March 1, the day of the kidnaping, and on other significant dates later, disclosed that Curtis arrived in New York at 10 a. m. April 2. After spending four days here he motored to Philadelphia, whence he was flown back to Norfolk by Lieut. George L. Richard, naval aviator, who acted frequently as Curtis' pilot during the time of his faked "negotiations."

Col. Schwarzkopf in exonerating Curtis said:

"On April 2 Mr. Curtis was in the company of Lieut. Richard and his actions are accounted for. There is nothing that would in any way link

REVEAL STOCK POOL CLEARS 5 MILLION IN WEEK

Senators Learn of Radio Bull Coup.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—Witnesses appearing before the United States senate short selling committee today directed the national spotlight upon the operations of four New York Stock exchange pools, one a huge 141 million dollar pool in the common stock of the Radio Corporation of America. This latter operation netted its more than three score participants a cool profit of $4,924,078. This pool operated but one week, in March, 1929. All four of the pools were handled in the "good old days" of 1928-'31.

Included in the list of participants in the four market operations revealed today were:

ARTHUR W. CUTTEN, Chicago grain and securities speculator.

CHARLES M. SCHWAB, steel magnate.

W. F. KENNY, New York contractor and Smith's friend.

S. R. GUGGENHEIM, copper magnate.

PERCY A. ROCKEFELLER.

MRS. DAVID SARNOFF, wife of the president of the Radio corporation.

Participants in Radio Pool.

All the above, with the exception of Cutten, Cochran, and Guggenheim, were named by William A. Gray, counsel for the senate banking and finance committee, as among the participants in the Radio Corporation of America pool, a bull market operation designed to make money for its members through a rise in the value of stock.

This pool was originated and managed by M. J. Meehan & Co., New York stock brokers. Raskob, Kenny, and Mrs. Meehan, wife of the brokerage firm head, were among the chief beneficiaries. Each received $291,710 on a million dollar investment of a week.

Among the unusual developments in connection with the Radio Corporation of America common stock pool was the disclosure that seventeen participants, including Mrs. Sarnoff and Mr. Swope, received shares without paying any deposit at all. Mrs. Sarnoff and Swope each received $58,342. Among those who participated in the pool without making a deposit was T. Clark. It now develops that he is Edward T. Clark, who was private secretary to Calvin Coolidge while he was President.

Gifts from Pool Management.

It was shown also that nine persons, including Joseph P. Tumulty, former secretary of President Wilson, had received gifts from the pool management totaling $92,000, although none of the nine had been participants in the pool. None of the four witnesses of the day explained the mystery surrounding these payments. Tumulty received $10,000 and Eddie Dowling, a New York actor, $19,000.

The statistics introduced on the Radio Corporation of America pool showed that 1,493,400 shares were purchased and a total of 2,900,000 dealt in altogether. The gross profits were $5,563,198.48, representing a profit of about five points a share. The net profits were $4,927,078 after $547,000 had been given to the pool managers and $92,000 had gone to the Tumulty et al. gift account.

In Kolster Radio.

Mr. Cutten's name was brought into the hearing by George F. Breen, a dealer in stocks whose specialty is pegging securities prices. He testified that Mr. Cutten, together with himself, Oscar Alexander, whom he did not identify, and L. F. Fisher of Fisher Brothers, had participated in what he termed a market operation in Kolster Radio, a west coast company. The quartet, he said, sold 455,900 shares and purchased 206,900 shares in 1928, finally ending operations that year with a profit of $1,351,152, split four ways. Breen denied that this was a pool operation.

The Cutten organizations began operations by purchasing options on two blocks of Kolster Radio, one of 150,000 and another of 100,000. A tip that the California Spreckels group wanted to sell some of its stock had been received by Breen. On the basis of this report the group went to work selling and buying stock. Breen denied that his operations represented market manipulations. Spreckels received $19,000,000 for his stock.

Cochran and Guggenheim were among a small group which conducted an unprofitable pool operation in the common stock of the General Asphalt company. This pool, like that in Radio, was a bull operation, its members dealing in 500,000 shares and investing a total of $7,689,927. After two years operation this pool closed operations in May, 1931, distributing 132,000 shares of stock to its members. All members lost.

Explain How Pool Works.

The General Asphalt pool was originated and managed by Luke, Banks & Weeks, a brokerage firm located at 14 Wall street, New York. Its membership included the chairman of the board and a number of the directors of the General Asphalt company. John L. Weeks of the brokerage house explained the workings of the pool while testifying today. Among members of the pool listed were M. J. Meehan & Co., Horatio G. Lloyd of Drexel & Co., Philadelphia, chairman of the General Asphalt board; C. A. Corliss, manufacturer; Bonbright & Co., stock brokers, and William G. Skelly of the Skelly Oil company.

Only one of the pools whose ramifications were disclosed today represented a bear market operation. This was a pool in Electric Autolite stock operated in April, 1931, by J. E. Higgins, Wall street trader and Bradford Ellsworth, who also had been a manager of the Radio new stock pool. They dealt in 94,000 shares and made a net profit of $25,000. They started selling Autolite short on March 10, 1931, at 70¾ and ceased operations on March 27 when Autolite had declined to 62¾.

Charges Stock Manipulation.

Time and again during the course of today's hearing, Committee Counsel Gray asserted that before he is through he will have shown that it is common practice for managers of pools to manipulate stock, rig prices and so operate that the public does not have a fair chance. He charged that the managers of the three pools and the Cutten Kolster Radio operation resorted to manipulation of stocks in order to build up profits.

Gray also promised the committee that shortly he would place before it evidence disclosing another huge operation in Radio which resulted in the boosting of prices from $85 to $113. The investigation of this pool, he said, has not been completed, but will be ready for the committee soon.

Meehan Leaves for Europe.

Another development of the day was the disclosure by James McConnochie, managing partner of M. J. Meehan & Co., that M. J. Meehan, head of the firm, had departed hurriedly for Europe last midnight on the eve of the reopening of the senate inquiry into the operations of short sellers on the stock exchange. McConnochie heatedly denied that his chief had run away from the committee investigation, saying that he had been adjudged so ill by three doctors that a trip for his health became an absolute necessity. Committee members as well as Gray criticized Meehan for his disappearance.

Specialists in Radio.

According to the testimony introduced by Gray the Meehan Radio pool operated between the dates of March 12 and March 20, 1929. It was originated by Meehan & Co., specialists in Radio. Its managers were Thomas E. Bragg, Wall street operator, and Bradford Ellsworth. The brokers were Meehan & Co. and W. E. Hutton & Co., and the evidence showed that these two brokerage houses sold the syndicate or pool stock back and forth among themselves supposedly to hold up prices. The pool began operations while the stock was around $79. The stock went up to as high as $109.25 on March 16. The net profit was 6 points or $5 a share.

Four Witnesses on Stand.

During today's hearing four witnesses were placed on the stand. Aside from Bragg and McConnochie, they were Mr. Breen and Edmund O'Brien, a member of the firm of M. J. Meehan & Co. and a specialist in Radio. Bragg, McConnochie, and O'Brien testified in connection with the Radio Corporation of America pool. McConnochie testified also regarding the operations of the Electric Autolite pool, while Breen told of the market operations in Kolster Radio, in which Cutten was a partner.

"I think," said Mr. Gray when the hearing opened and Mr. Bragg had been placed on the stand, "that I should say to the chairman and members of the committee in order that they may follow this particular transaction, and then afterwards others transactions, that I am going to present the picture of a pool that was run in new Radio stock between the dates of March 12 and March 20 of 1929, those being the actual days of the operation.

Shows Who Is in Pool.

"I am going to show who was in that pool. I am going to show what the transactions were in the aggregate, what its profit was. And I am going finally to ascertain from some of those witnesses who have been subpoenaed, two partners of M. J. Meehan & Co., one of them a specialist in this particular stock, about some of the things that require explanation in connection with the situation, there being in one particular part of the transaction some $92,000 paid out to people who were not participants in the pool."

Mr. Bragg testified that while he is now an independent trader, at the time of the Radio Corporation of America pool operation he had been a member of W. E. Hutton & Co. He said he and Bradford Ellsworth had been managers for the pool. Ellsworth's present whereabouts Bragg did not know. The pool operated, he said, through the Hutton and Meehan companies. It also was brought out that the Block-Maloney brokerage firm had been a participant in the pool and some stock had been handled through them.

Exceed One Million Shares.

Mr. Gray then introduced the syndicate or pool agreement.

"This," Gray said, "is a three page printed paper headed 'Private and Confidential,' M. J. Meehan & Co., 61 Broadway, New York, put it out. It is an invitation for individuals to join a Radio Corporation of America common stock syndicate [new stock]. It starts by saying:

"'We have been requested to form and are forming a syndicate, of which we are to be the managers, to trade in the common stock of the Radio Corporation of America and no other securities and have reserved for you a participation of blank number of shares.

"'The amount of the syndicate shall not at any time exceed one million shares, either long or short, and all transactions for the account of syndicate shall be in accordance with and subject to the rules and regulations of the New York Stock exchange.'"

Unable to Finish Inquiry.

Mr. Gray then told the committee that due to the committee's hurry to get on with the hearings he had been unable to complete his investigations. He then put in the record the names of all the participants in the pool and pointed out that Bragg had taken his profit although in Florida during the week the pool was operating.

To Senator James E. Watson [Rep., Ind.], senate majority leader, who had to leave the committee early to go to the senate floor, Mr. Gray said: "I am going to ask the specialist and other members of the firm of M. J. Meehan & Co. to explain certain transactions whereby W. E. Hutton & Co. bought syndicate stock while M. J. Meehan was selling syndicate stock. We will also show where Meehan & Co. sold stock to Vera Bragg, a member of the syndicate, while the pool was operating and then bought it back. In other words, I will show the brokerage houses sold and bought stock at the same time so as to manipulate the prices."

Mr. Gray then told of the forming of the syndicate and traced the price movement of the stock during the life of the pool, showing how it went up while the pool was operating, then dropped off at the close.

Get What Money They Wanted.

"This syndicate," said Mr. Gray, "was formed on March 7, 1929, and it took them from March 7 to March 12, I suppose, to get all the signatures to the agreement and to get what money they wanted in and then they started to operate on March 12. On the fourth day of March the high in new Radio stock was 79. On the fifth day of March it was 77¾. On the sixth day of March it went to 74. On the seventh of March it was 81¾. On the eighth day of March it was 89. On the ninth of March it was 92. The tenth of March was Sunday. On the eleventh of March it was 90¼. Then these people stepped into the market the next morning, and on the 12th of March it was 91¾, and on the 13th of March it was 94, and on the 14th of March it was 100¼ and on the 15th of March it was 107 and on the 16th of March it was 109¼. The 17th was Sunday. On the 18th of March it was 101. Now, they had practically finished their operations right there. On the 19th of March it was 96¼. On the 20th of March it was 94. On the 21st of March it was 92¾. On the 22d of March it was 91¾. On the 23d of March it was 87¾. Does that paint the picture for you?"

"With a Card Up His Sleeve."

Gray contended and tried to prove his point through the witness that the firm of M. J. Meehan & Co. had taken advantage of the fact it had a member who was a specialist in radio and had used his confidential information regarding the buying and selling orders on the Radio book to manipulate prices. He pointed out that the Meehan firm, recognized as the specialists in Radio, had participated in the pool.

"It seems to me," interjected Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] at this point, "that the pool managers were in the same position so far as the public was concerned as a man sitting at a card table with a card up his sleeve."

Gray said that Mrs. Meehan and Mrs. Bragg merely acted for their husbands to circumvent stock exchange rules.

Admit Gray Might be Right.

McConnochie, a former supervising agent for the United States treasury, said he had joined M. J. Meehan & Co., in 1930, after the Radio pool was disbanded. He was able to give but little information regarding the activity of the pool. He volunteered the information that Mrs. Meehan's account showed a loss of more than $3,000,000 on five transactions of the last two or three years. He volunteered this information, he said, to show that while Mrs. Meehan had made money for the firm on the Radio corporation pool she had lost on other operations.

The last witness on the Radio pool was Edmund O'Brien, member of M. J. Meehan & Co. and a specialist in Radio. He stated that he had not given his firm the benefit of his expert specialized knowledge on Radio notwithstanding the fact that he was a member of the firm.

Denies Giving Any Information.

"I do not believe my knowledge of Radio would have been of any special value to my firm in the operation of the Radio pool," O'Brien said in response to questions by Gray.

"Did you give any special information to your firm regarding the book position of Radio during the time the pool was in operation?" asked Gray.

"I did not give them any information," replied the witness.

"You want this committee then," persisted Gray, "to believe that your firm was so innocent it refrained from obtaining valuable specialized inside information on Radio orders from you when they were available?"

"That's right," said O'Brien. "My information would be of no value unless the position of Radio was weakened, that is, there were many more orders to sell or buy than there were to buy or sell."

"Wouldn't that information have been valuable to your firm?"

"Yes, but it is confidential."

A roar of laughter from the committee greeted this answer.

"I've brought this witness here," said Gray, turning to the committee, "to show how his firm started the pool and how it had among its partners a man who specialized in Radio. Whether this firm used this knowledge is a matter for you to draw your own conclusions about."

"I've drawn mine," said Glass dryly.

Cutten's Name Brought In.

George F. Breen, the final witness of the day, brought Mr. Cutten's name into the picture. He identified himself as a free lance dealer in stocks. His specialty, he said, was purchasing stocks for corporations who wanted to stabilize the prices of their stocks. When stocks went up after he made the stabilizing purchases, the witness said, he took the profit. If stocks went down in the face of his price pegging operations, the corporations paid the loss.

Back in 1928, according to Breen, he was told that Spreckels wanted to dispose of some of his holdings in the Kolster Radio corporation, a west coast company of which he was chairman of the board. Breen interested Cutten, Alexander and Fisher, according to his story, and the quartet purchased two options to buy Kolster Radio. One option was for 150,000 shares. The other was for 100,000 shares. As soon as the options were obtained they, each holding a quarter interest, sold short. In the end they had taken up both options and sold a total of 456,000 shares. Their profit was $1,351,152 split four ways when their operations were over.

No Market Rigging, He Says.

Gray attempted to force the witness to admit that the quartet's operations, comprising both long and short sales, represented rigging the market, but Breen declined to agree.

"I suppose," said Gray, "you will contend all your operations have nothing to do with rigging the market."

"That's right," agreed Breen.

CHRYSLER STOCK POOL LOSERS ARE SUED BY NEW YORK BROKERS

New York, May 19.—[Special.]—Participants in a "pool" formed to trade in common stock of the Chrysler corporation from October, 1929, to July 16, 1930, in which it is claimed that $1,596,113 was lost, were named today in papers filed in the Supreme court in a suit brought against William F. Kenny, contractor, a friend of ex-Gov. Alfred E. Smith, by J. S. Bache & Co. and E. F. Hutton & Co. The brokerage firms are suing Kenny for $159,611, which they say represents his 10 per cent shares of the losses.

The suit was filed last year, but the names of the participants in the pool were brought out today for the first time in a bill of particulars filed by the brokerage firms. The participants, besides Kenny and the two firms, were named as Jules S. Bache, Walter P. Chrysler, Nicholas F. Brady, Goldman-Sachs Trading corporation, Ungerleider & Co., William R. Timken, Mrs. Elizabeth Meehan and Bradford Ellsworth, Joseph E. Higgins, Matthew S. Sloan, Harold Eem Talbot Jr., Bancamerica-Blair corporation, Pynchon & Co., Wertheim & Co., Charles F. and Janet F. Baisley, William J. Wittenberg, Dwight B. Lee, and Mrs. M. Block.

WOMEN'S ANTI-DRY GROUP PASSES GOAL IN MEMBERS' DRIVE

Volunteers for the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform achieved a smashing victory in their drive for members yesterday when they went 13,500 beyond the 100,000 set as their quota for National Repeal week. Although over the top, the enrolling of new members will not stop in the two days that remain. The group began the drive on Monday with 65,000 names registered in Illinois, representing women opposed to prohibition. At the closing of their records yesterday afternoon they had 113,500.

Miss Elizabeth Roe and Miss Betty Fry headed a membership drive inaugurated yesterday at the University of Chicago, with the coöperation of the Daily Maroon, campus publication. Additional cards were called for before the day was over. One of the members of Chicago council of Gold Star Mothers, of which Mrs. Anne Hathaway is president, asked for a speaker to address the chapter. Mrs. George Silverthorne Jr. responded, and every member of the chapter signed up. In Evanston, home of the national W. C. T. U., hundreds are signing daily.

Fifty young women headed by Mrs. William H. Mitchell and Mrs. Leslie Wheeler invaded the loop yesterday with boxes to collect "nickels for repeal." They reported gratifying enthusiasm for their first day's work. Figures on their collections will be announced later.

LEAGUE IS COLD TO BRITAIN'S PLEA FOR ECONOMY

GENEVA, Switzerland, May 19.—(AP)—Efforts of the British government to induce the league of nations' council to what an economy knife for the league's institutions got a cold reception today. Spokesmen of the international labor office and the world court replied that the council was without jurisdiction to lop off expenditures as the league assembly was the only competent financial authority.

Stefan Ossuski, chairman of the assembly's budget control commission, said the assembly itself had blocked the commission's economy proposals and that the British government had a leading part in this blocking.

WOMAN KILLED, 2 OTHERS HURT IN AUTO COLLISION

A woman was killed and Joseph De Gastano, 35 years old, 4733 West 20th street, was seriously injured in an automobile accident last night at Van Buren street and Ashland avenue. De Gastano, in a semi-conscious condition, was taken to the county hospital, where he was found to have suffered a possible skull fracture and a fractured left arm.

He told the police in a brief moment of consciousness that the woman was Miss Theresa Parker. Riding in the car with them was a 5 year old girl, Marian Quaglia, 440 North Avers avenue. She was also injured and was taken to the county hospital.

De Gastano, the woman, and the girl were in a westbound automobile, which struck a north bound car in which Casper Korer, 38 years old, a hardware store owner at 2135 Roscoe street, his wife, Mary, and his 4 year old daughter, Rona, were riding. No one in this car was hurt. Korer was being held by the police pending the inquest.

Two other deaths yesterday raised the Cook county motor toll for the year to 413. The victims:

Stanley Flezak, 40 years old, 2213 West 18th street. Killed at Western avenue and 18th place when he was struck by an automobile driven by John Borutta, 32 years old, 3534 Fullerton avenue.

Fred Carter, 4 years old, colored, 4716 South Wabash avenue. Killed by an auto when he tried to cross Michigan avenue at 37th street.

COP FINDS HOW MUSIC DIFFERS FROM PLAIN NOISE

Whitman Taylor, 627 Drexel avenue, Winnetka, a member of the legal firm of Carpenter, McCann & Taylor, was halted in his home town last Saturday evening by State Highway Policeman Roy Woods. The policeman said the horn on the automobile driven by the attorney had four musical notes and its use was a violation of the law barring sirens, bells, gongs, and other unusual forms of noisemaking gadgets on cars.

Attorney Taylor insisted that the four tone horn was not illegal and demanded that Policeman Woods charge him with something. The policeman obliged. He took the horn off the car, which belonged to Mr. Taylor's partner, Attorney Paul Carpenter, and charged the driver with violating section 21 of the motor vehicle law.

There was a hearing yesterday before Magistrate James A. Warren of Winnetka. Policeman Woods sounded the do-re-mi-fa horn, and on that evidence Assistant State's Attorney Robert Donigan announced the state would nol pros the case. The noises, he said, were pleasant, and the state law was designed to stop unpleasant ones. Mr. Taylor was freed and the horn was restored to Mr. Carpenter.

RISING SCHOOL COSTS TRACED TO THE SOURCE

Teachers' Pay Is Not to Blame, Mayor Says.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

"I am satisfied that it is not necessary to reduce the teachers' salaries nor to lay them off in order to reduce the school expenditures," said Mayor Cermak yesterday in giving out a comparison of school costs of 1925 and 1930, prepared by the Principals' club.

"The figures," continued the mayor, "show that the high cost of the schools is not caused by the increase in the number of teachers nor their salaries."

The big point of the tabulation is the contrast between the cost of instruction and the cost of operating and maintaining the school buildings.

A Contrast in Increase.

Function—	1925 Expenditures.	1931 Budget.	Pct. Inc.
Instruction	$32,449,848	$42,239,287	30
Operation	4,044,248	8,132,319	106
Maintenance	2,075,288	6,366,826	206

Mayor Cermak said he saw no sound reason why the cost of operating the school buildings should go up 106 per cent while the cost of instructing the pupils advanced only 30 per cent.

Those figures, however, are out of date so far as the present school conditions and problems are concerned. They were compiled by the Principals' club on Feb. 10 when the 1932 school budget had not been passed, nor the expenditures for 1931 compiled. A much more informative comparison is that of the 1925 expenditures with the 1931 expenditures, or with the 1932 budget.

Giving an Illustration.

To illustrate, the mayor's table contrasts $2,075,288 expenditure for plant maintenance in 1925 with an appropriation of $6,360,826 for the same period in 1931. The expenditure in 1931 was only $2,848,420, so the increase in 1931 over 1925 was only 37 per cent instead of 206 per cent. The board ran wild in appropriating last year.

A comparison of 1925 expense and 1932 budget indicates an even greater contrast between the cost of instruction and the cost of operation and maintenance of plant than the mayor's figures represented. Such a comparison follows:

Function—	1925 Expenditures.	1932 Budget.	Pct. Inc.
Maintenance	2,075,288	3,908,919	88

The 12 per cent increase in instruction cost is a trifle high because Superintendent of Schools Bogan is placing in effect a recommendation of Dr. George D. Strayer of Columbia university by which Supt. Bogan estimates he will save $200,000. Therefore the cost of instruction this year will be less than 11.5 per cent more than in 1925.

High Cost of Operation.

In contrast, the increased cost of operating the school buildings is 81 per cent, judged by the 1932 appropriation. This is seven times the percentage increase in the cost of instruction, instead of three and one-half times as represented by Mayor Cermak's figures. By the same reasoning the increased cost of maintaining the plant, judged by the appropriation, will be seven and two-thirds times the increase in instruction, instead of six and two-thirds times as presented in the mayor's table.

Dr. Strayer recommended to the school trustees that the appropriation for operation of schools be decreased $1,775,741, or from $7,176,207 to $5,400,466. Dr. Strayer's allowance for operation this year is 33.5 per cent larger than was spent in 1925, while in the same period instruction costs have advanced less than 11.4 per cent.

Figures on Maintenance.

For maintenance of plant Dr. Strayer has recommended that the 1932 appropriation of $3,908,919 be reduced to $2,848,420—the amount spent last year. This is a 37 per cent increase over the 1925 expenditure.

Although Dr. Strayer recommends about three times as much increase for operation and maintenance of plant as for instruction, the school board has failed for 10 days to adopt the recommendations.

Council Committee Tackles Budget.

In the first budget session the finance committee of the city council yesterday approved the sum of $54,090,353 as the estimate of corporate fund revenues for 1932. If the council restricts the budget to that figure the appropriations this year will be $8,961,726 lower than those of 1931.

The committee, on motion of Ald. Dorsey R. Crowe [42d], chose the estimate of revenues as prepared by its staff in preference to the figure submitted by City Controller Szymczak. The latter's figure was $54,486,813, or $396,460 more than that of the staff. It was explained that the controller based his estimate on the 1929 valuations, whereas the staff did not make its compilation until the 1930 valuations were available.

Mayor to Hold Meeting.

Further budget work then was deferred until this afternoon. The recess will give Mayor Cermak an opportunity to hold a conference at which an endeavor will be made to dovetail the recommendations of Assessor J. L. Jacobs, who as efficiency expert prepared a tentative budget, with the economies that have been practiced since the first of the year under the continuation ordinance.

"One of the Jacobs' recommendations is for a reclassification of the civil service positions," said the mayor. "It would not be fair to dock the employés 78 days' pay and also cut their salaries by lowering their civil service rating. I would like to have an opportunity to harmonize the various recommendations before the committee acts."

What is now the committee's official estimate of the revenues is $13,810 under the appropriations proposed by Jacobs.

Basis of Revenue Estimate.

The revenue estimate is based on the collections of $39,609,000 from taxes, the receipt of $14,280,000 from miscellaneous sources, and a surplus of $201,353 as of Jan 1, 1932. The various departments have estimated that they will need $59,386,180.

The need for haste in building the budget was stressed by Leon Hornstein, first assistant corporation counsel. He said the committee should finish its labors by May 25, which would allow a week for printing and ten days for publication of the budget before June 15, when the law says the budget must be passed. Besides the corporate budget the committee also has to make appropriations from the bond, water and vehicle tax funds.

FINED FOR UNTESTED MILK.

Frand Faleda of Roselawn, Ind., who was arrested on complaint of Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago board of health, was fined $50 yesterday by Judge Freeman L. Fairbank for selling uninspected and untested milk and cream.

Emblems Are Awarded

Miss Margaret Black, 4114 North Springfield avenue, was crowned May queen at the annual May day festival of Northwestern university on the Evanston campus yesterday afternoon by Miss Margaret Frantz, last year's queen. Miss Black's six attendants at the coronation ceremony were Miss Betsy Day, 2242 Ridge avenue, Evanston; Miss Josephine Farley, 300 Abbotsford road, Kenilworth; Miss Elizabeth Freudenreich, 314 Abbotsford road, Kenilworth; Miss Elinor Gwin, Greenwood, Miss.; Miss Barbara Johnson, 1600 Hinman avenue, Evanston, and Miss Elizabeth McGuigan, 2315 Sherman avenue, Evanston.

The election of Miss Black and five other junior women to Mortar Board, honorary senior women's society, was announced at the festival. The others elected were Miss Farley, Miss Barbara Johnson, Miss Margaret Johnson, 1502 Hinman avenue, Evanston, and Miss Elizabeth Van Law, 734 Noyes street, Evanston. Miss Jacqueline Thompson, instructor in physical education, was made an honorary member.

Mrs. Florence S. Robnett, dean of women, conferred emblems of the Woman's Athletic association for accomplishment in sports on three women—Miss Ida Backus, 5629 Kenmore avenue; Miss Betty Freeman, Topeka, Kas., and Miss Augusta Watson, 281 Marshman street, Ravinia.

SAYS DRY LAW AIDS LIQUOR'S RESPECTABILITY

New York, May 19.—[Special.]—"Liquor, in these post-prohibition years, has attained a more respectable place in American society than it has held at any time in the last half century," Stanley High, prominent prohibitionist, admits, analyzing the change in public opinion on prohibition.

That is one of the reasons why High, writing in Harper's Magazine, opposes the proposal approved at the Methodist Episcopal general conference last week for drys to stymie prohibition repeal by working in thirteen selected states, making it impossible for the wets to secure the thirty-six states necessary for repeal. The drys themselves should sponsor a referendum, High declares.

SLASH PRESERVE BUDGET, BUT DEFY KELLY DEMANDS

Vote 20% Pay Cut for 250 Workers.

The finance committee of the forest preserve board approved its 1932 budget yesterday, involving appropriations totaling $8,075,938. Included in the budget was a 20 per cent pay cut to apply for the remaining seven months of the year. Two hundred and fifty employés of the preserves are affected.

The budget was submitted to the county commissioners who made up the board by President Emmett Whealan and approved by them. While it is 26 per cent below the 1931 appropriations of $10,988,682, the expenditures authorized for the present year are in several instances far in excess of the limits set by the D. F. Kelly committee in its recommendations for tax reductions by Cook county governmental bodies.

For instance, President Whealan's budget appropriates $863,807 for the corporate fund. Of this $250,000 is expected to come from fees charged for the use of golf courses and other sports facilities, $388,000 from the 1932 tax levy, and the remainder from collections on the levies of former years. The Kelly committee recommended that the board levy not more than $194,000 for corporate purposes in 1932.

The Kelly committee recommended that there be no levy at all, either in 1931 or 1932, for the zoological garden at Riverside. The commissioners made a 1 cent levy for both years.

The commissioners reduced the forest preserve tax levy from 9 cents on each $100 assessed valuation to 8 cents for 1931 and 1932. The maximum which can be raised by an 8 cent levy on the 1932 assessments, which are expected to be reduced in the reassessment now being made, is approximately $3,000,000. This figure makes no allowance for the loss and cost of collection, figured at 15 per cent. The remainder of the anticipated revenue on which the budget of more than $8,000,000 is based consists of tax collections for former years which the board has yet to receive.

Commissioner Amelia Sears cast the only vote against passage of the budget in committee.

Jury to Decide Fate of 2 Others in Gecht Case.

William Thomas and John Pingera, two of four men on trial for the kidnaping of Dr. Max Gecht and his wife, Georgia, yesterday pleaded guilty in Judge Philip L. Sullivan's court. Their pleas were entered after Assistant State's Attorney C. Wayland Brooks had agreed to recommend life sentences for the men instead of asking for the maximum penalty of death.

Warned by the court that they could still be sentenced to the electric chair, despite an agreement with the state, Thomas and Pingera persisted in the guilty plea.

Judge Sullivan reserved sentence until the completion of the jury trial of Attorney Ward Swalwell and Edward Finnen, the other defendants. He overruled their attorney's motion that a jury be withdrawn and a mistrial declared. Attorney James M. Burke, for Finnen, argued that the jury would guess that Thomas and Pingera had pleaded guilty and be prejudiced against the remaining defendants.

Outlines the Evidence.

Prosecutor Brooks made the opening statement for the state and outlined the evidence to be introduced. He said that the state would show that Swalwell and Dr. Gecht were friends.

On the night of the kidnaping, Dec. 10, Swalwell telephoned Dr. Gecht several times to find where the doctor intended spending the evening, the prosecutor said, and finally elicited the information that the Gechts were going to the doctor's south side office at 119th street.

Prosecutor Brooks said the state would show the jury by evidence the following story of the kidnaping: Leaving his office, Dr. Gecht drove north in State street with his wife. Their car was forced to the curb at 98th street by Thomas and Neil Montague, who approached the car with pistols drawn.

The Gechts were taken to a house and ordered to pay $20,000 for their release. Later the ransom price was reduced to $5,000 and Dr. Gecht was told he would be released to get the money if they could agree on a go-between. He suggested several men who were rejected, but obtained the kidnapers' immediate consent when he mentioned Swalwell.

Leaving his wife with the kidnapers, Dr. Gecht got his personal attorney, Irving Breakstone, and made an interviewed Swalwell. The latter objected to the presence of a third person at the interview. Swalwell obtained a promise that in case the release of Mrs. Gecht was effected the police would not be informed. Swalwell accepted $2,000 and Mrs. Gecht was allowed to return home.

Prosecutor Brooks told of the capture of the gang, effected by Mrs. Gecht, who carried on a flirtation with Gus Sanger, in whose cottage the Gechts were held.

Woodward, chairman, and Lieut. Col. Charles F. B. Price, vice chairman of the mission, will arrive soon.

ILL WIND BLOWS AND 39 FARMERS RUSH TO COURT

Du Page Residents Ask Ban on Garbage.

The embattled farmers of York township in Du Page county got a temporary injunction yesterday from Judge Win G. Knoch at Wheaton to protect their blooming countryside against an invasion of "honey wagons," which is the sweet smelling word applied to those odoriferous vehicles driven by scavengers.

Thirty-nine residents of the township presented a petition of protest to the Du Page county supervisors. They complained that a tract of land on Roosevelt road near South creek, owned by Buurma Brothers, River Forest real estate agents, was being used for dumping of garbage and ashes from Oak Park and River Forest.

Comes from Fine Homes.

The fact that the garbage came from the homes of River Forest and from polite Oak Park neighborhoods did not improve its smell, they complained. One of the complainants was Sam W. Kieft, who farms and operates a barbecue and hot dog stand at Butterfield and Roosevelt roads, near the dumping ground.

"Whenever there's an east wind," Mr. Kieft complained to the supervisors, "I can't sell any hamburgers. I use high class meat in my hamburgers, but the other night a customer got a whiff of that garbage dump while he was eating one, and he threw it at me and wouldn't pay. My business is ruined."

At the direction of the supervisors State's Attorney Chauncey Reed got an injunction against the owners of the property, the Du Page Black Dirt and Filling company, which subleases the dumping privileges, and the drivers of any honey wagons which may attempt to use it. Later in the day several truck drivers were arrested for violating the injunction.

Oak Park Sends Only Ashes.

Oak Park officials said yesterday that only ashes from their suburb were being dumped on the Buurma tract. The village incinerates its garbage. River Forest, however, sends its garbage to the dump.

"We built an incinerator four or five years ago for $30,000," explained Charles Baumrucker, village president of River Forest. "But it wouldn't incinerate, so we closed it."

Joe and Mike Priola, scavengers for the village, were among those whose drivers were arrested yesterday. A hearing will be held Monday.

REFUSE TO LET ELMORE RESIGN COMMITTEE JOB

Howard W. Elmore, lone Republican trustee of the sanitary district, tried to resign yesterday as chairman of the real estate development committee, but his Democratic associates voted him down.

"Why should we let Elmore out of this job?" asked Thomas J. Bowler, president of the board. "He ought to do some work like the rest of us." The other trustees agreed with him.

After the meeting, Mr. Elmore explained that the Democratic trustees had discharged his employés in the real estate department and replaced them with others. Neal T. Kelley, Democratic committeeman in the 34th ward, is the new manager of that department.

"Of course, Mr. Kelley may be able to do the work," said Mr. Elmore, "but when I run a department I want to choose my own employés."

G.O.P. HOBBLES ON MINUS PLATFORM AND TREASURER

But Chairman Is Hopeful of Early Solution.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Two essentials to a normal campaign were neglected or forgotten in the Cook county Republican convention on Wednesday. One was the preparation of a platform. The other was the election of a treasurer.

As things now stand it is possible that the party may go ahead without a declaration of principles and it may continue to hobble along without a treasurer since even the bill for the postage for the notices of the county convention is unpaid. The money was advanced by a committee employé who hasn't been paid for a year or so.

William H. Weber, the new county chairman, said yesterday he thought these matters would be straightened out before long. He has been invited to a luncheon with the county candidates this noon, but he does not expect to throw on any speed for some time to come. It is probable that county headquarters will not be opened until the middle of June and real activity will not start until the fall.

Smith Heads Resolutions Group.

In reference to the platform, it was reported in the loop, that the supporters of Len Small, nominee for governor, hope to be able to write their own platform to suit the head of the state ticket. The reports were that if this were done the prohibition plank might be a straddle that would be unsatisfactory to all the Chicago groups.

This theory was based on the fact that Patrick Sheridan Smith, the defeated candidate for county chairman backed by the old city hall machine, was named chairman of the committee on resolutions. He was authorized to make public the report of his committee without submitting it for approval by the county committee.

These reports were met with angry assertions that no Small pussyfoot declaration would be acceptable to the county ticket, that if an effort is made to label any report of the Smith committee as a platform the majority that opposed Smith will hold there is no official platform.

State's Attorney Swanson is said to be particularly anxious about this matter. It is known he wants a strong anti-hoodlum plank and that he will not be satisfied unless the county committee finally passes on any platform prepared by the Smith committee.

Delay Picking Treasurer.

So far as the election of a treasurer was concerned, it was thought at first that the need for such a custodian of funds had been overlooked in the heat of Wednesday's caucus. But later the leaders said that the election had been postponed because there was no "banker," "angel" or "sucker" in sight, those terms being used by various committeemen in reference to the fact that the fall campaign is bound to be a hard one to finance.

Here again State's Attorney Swanson is particularly interested. He is anxious that when a treasurer is elected he will be a man of such standing that no questionable donations will be sought or received.

Rumanian Woman Claims Altitude Parachute Jump

Oakland, Cal., May 19.—(AP)—Smaranda Braescu, Rumanian parachute jumper, claimed a world's record for her sex with a leap from an altitude of 24,000 feet above sea level today. The jump was made from a plane piloted by Harry Booshardt, who said the altimeter registered 24,000 feet. Capt. G. M. Turner of Oakland airport said no separate record for altitude parachute jumping by women had been recognized officially.

AUCKLAND POLICE ARREST RUSSIAN CARRYING BOMB

Jobless Mob Raids Store for Food.

AUCKLAND, New Zealand, May 19.—(AP)—A Russian seaman named George Sagrif, was arrested near Auckland government house today with a powerful bomb in his possession. Police said the missile could have blown up a large building. They said they found another bomb in the sailor's rooming house.

Unemployed demonstrators raided a store in the little mining town of Huntly today, helping themselves to whatever they could carry away.

Leaders of the group said there was no spirit of ill will in the raid. The action was taken merely because the demonstrators did not intend to go hungry any longer.

Labor Rule Badly Beaten.

MELBOURNE, Australia, May 19.—(AP)—Final figures in last Saturday's general election in New South Wales today showed the combined forces of the United Australian and Country parties with a majority of 29 in a house of assembly of 65 members.

The new government of Premier Sir Sidney Argyle, United Australian party leader, contains members of both major groups and will probably function somewhat after the manner of the national government in Great Britain.

It was said a number of labor members would probably support the government. Labor had a majority in the last house. The final standing: United Australian party, 33; Labor, 15; Country party, 14; Independent Labor, 2; Independent, 1.

GOV. RITCHIE ASKS 30 HOUR WEEK TO CREATE JOBS

Baltimore, Md., May 19.—(AP)—Gov. Albert C. Ritcher of Maryland in an address tonight proposed a 30 hour week of five days as a means of alleviating unemployment throughout the nation.

"I am glad to see," he said, "that there seems to be agreement in congress with the proposal for shorter days and shorter work hours. A 30 hour week, say five days of six hours each, will spread the available work among the available workers in a way which will make the most material contribution towards unemployment relief."

The federal budget and unemployment relief were discussed by Gov. Ritchie as two of the momentous questions now facing the government, and he declared that "every day's delay in meeting these problems adds to the loss of confidence and the fear that throttles American business."

Gov. Ritchie declared that the Democratic party "must rise above class and section and proclaim its ability to fight behind a national program to cure national ills.

LIEUT. MASSIE AND WIFE LAND HERE IN PLANE

Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N., and his wife, Mrs. Thalia Massie, arrived at the Chicago airport from the west coast yesterday morning in a United Air Lines plane. They plan to remain at a loop hotel for a few days, Lieut. Massie said, and will then motor to Winchester, Ky., to spend ten days with his mother, Mrs. W. S. Massie.

Lieut. Massie expressed the hope that Gov. Ruby Laffoon of Kentucky will restore his civil rights by a pardon. "I'm not asking anything from anybody, but I hope he gives me one," he said. Lieut. Massie avenged the assault upon his wife in Hawaii by slaying one of the five alleged attackers. The couple appeared to be cheerful, and praised the ability of Clarence Darrow, Chicago lawyer, who defended Lieut Massie, and his three co-defendants in the Honolulu "honor" slaying trial.

WOMAN ROBBED OF PURSE.

Miss Anna Meyers, 7601 Bennett avenue, was robbed of her purse, which held $5, yesterday by two men who seized her at Jeffery avenue and 71st street.

GOVERNOR HOLDS UP APPOINTMENT TO TAXING BOARD

Although he had been expected to make the appointment soon after his arrival in Chicago yesterday, Gov. L. L. Emmerson deferred naming the second member of the Cook county board of tax appeals and last evening had not indicated when he will do so.

The governor left for Springfield at midnight and said he had no announcement to make.

The first of the two members, Fred W. Brummel, real estate man, was formally appointed by President Emmett Whealan of the county board shortly after noon and immediately was inducted into office, the oath being administered by James W. Ryan, chief deputy county clerk.

"Impartial service and action will be my aim," said Mr. Brummel. "I hope that the plans I intend to propose will bring in complaining taxpayers' money as well as reduce the great amount of property forfeited for taxes, thereby bringing in millions of dollars to redeem outstanding tax warrants and bonds and restore the credit of the county and the city."

THOMAS CONDON ASKS COURT FOR CUT IN ALIMONY

Thomas R. Condon, head of the Condon Industries, yesterday presented a petition to reduce the $600 a month alimony he has been paying his divorced wife, Mrs. Mary G. Condon, 593 Hawthorne place, since she won her decree on grounds of cruelty in July, 1930. At the same time, he petitioned for the custody of his son, Thomas Jr., 5 years old, who was awarded to Mrs. Condon.

During the divorce hearing, which was hotly contested, it developed that Condon frequently made trips to Mexico and southern resorts and was the owner of a large yacht. Attorney Benjamin B. Davis, counsel for Mrs. Condon, asserted yesterday that Condon still owned his yacht and continued to travel luxuriously.

Condon denied this and told Judge Miller that his wife had their son wear white shoes, the powder from which spread over his clothes and automobile when he visited the boy. She did this, he charged, to harass him.

Judge Miller cut the hearing short and announced that he would give a ruling on June 17.

BUTLER LISTS 14 POINTS AS BASIS OF LIBERAL PARTY

Dry Law Repeal Would Be First Act.

New York, May 19.—[Special.]—The Democratic and Republican organizations are dead and retain the party names as mere "voting groups," Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler declared tonight. He spoke at the annual dinner of the National Industrial Conference board at the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria.

In the course of a general review of the present crisis Dr. Butler envisaged what he termed "a new and truly liberal party," unfettered by partisanship and tradition and coming out squarely for 14 main points.

Lists Fourteen Points.

Revision of tariff schedules;

Study of intergovernmental obligations with a view to readjustment or cancellation;

Reorganization of the federal administrative service;

Nation-wide emergency relief in the case of disaster, prolonged unemployment, or distress;

Instant adherence to the permanent court of international justice;

Complete coöperation with the league of nations;

Insistence upon genuine disarmament;

Observance of the principle that the national budget be balanced year by year;

Study of industry to the end that the federal government may take steps to help;

Exhaustive study of the world's monetary systems;

Application to the basic industry of agriculture of the best economic knowledge;

Revision of the rules and procedure of the senate to avoid the possibility of a very small group who control the committee on foreign relations of depriving the government "of its just place and authority."

Basis for Liberal Party.

"Were this great achievement possible," said Dr. Butler, "a new and truly liberal party would be born in these United States, with a definite, a constructive and a rational program which would make instant appeal to hosts of the most intelligent men and women throughout the land."

The need for definite pronouncement with regard to prohibition was emphasized by Dr. Butler in this manner:

"When the two national nominating conventions meet in June their delegates will be faced by the necessity of declaring themselves individually and collectively for or against the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. If they seek to substitute for this simple declaration any form of camouflage or what is generally known as pussyfooting, or if they should choose to vote down a declaration for repeal, they must be prepared to take the consequences in November, and, believe me, those consequences will be very, very serious for them."

The dinner was presided over by Alanson B. Houghton, former ambassador to Germany and Great Britain, who was reelected chairman of the conference board.

Fiery Speech by Chapple Stirs Students at U. of Wisconsin

Madison, Wis., May 19.—[Special.]—Before a crowd of 2,000, mostly students, in the Parkway theater here tonight, John B. Chapple, Ashland, pointed out a link-up between radicalism at the university with that of La Follette politicians and completed his speech with relatively little interference compared to "skyrockets," cheers and jeers that marked the early part of his address.

Chapple declared the recent convocation speech by President Glenn Frank of the university was but a trial balloon by Wisconsin radicals and an attempt of the La Follette "racket" to hide behind the skirts of the university.

Mr. Chapple declared that Mr. Frank "dressed up alley epithets with college English" in his speech and that if the university president had evidence such as Chapple has against the president he could really call names.

"The leaders of the La Follette racket know people are proud of their university," Chapple declared. "They are trying to use it for their own political advantages."

Chapple quoted Frank as saying that "a few progressives would like to use the university for their own political advantage," which brought a shout from the crowd to read the rest of the statement.

Chapple declared the crowd present at the theater, apologetic speeches by Gov. Philip F. La Follette, and the Frank "ballyhoo" all were evidence that the state is waking up to the issues he has been carrying to the people.

Reference to Prof. Max Otto as an atheist brought loud applause and Chapple commented, "Atheism seems to rate pretty high at Madison." The students gave a "skyrocket" for President Frank and Chapple declared they might as well make it complete by giving one for the Civil Liberties union, which he declared was communistic, and they did.

"Now I am going to tell you what that organization really is," Chapple declared. "I don't blame you students because that has been fed to you."

He then outlined his documentary evidence to show radical connections of the union with which President Frank and Gov. La Follette are affiliated.

After the speech Chapple left and students staged a program. T. Perry Jones, Oregon student and Methodist minister, declared he might have as much religion as Chapple and that he had found nothing but a Christian influence at the university.

"Prof. Otto is one of the most Christian men I ever met," he declared, adding that he is studying in Otto's "Man and Nature" course.

Lucille Benz, Milwaukee student, said that Chapple's charges are an insult to the entire student body. She declared that if any attempt were made to force atheistic, communistic or any other views on her at school she would walk out of the classes.

DEMOCRATS ARE HOOVER DUPES, SAYS PINCHOT

Assails Both Parties in Evanston Speech.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania declared last night that whatever prospects President Hoover has of reelection in November he owes to the Democrats. Speaking before the Young Republican club at the new Evanston theater, he assailed the leadership of both parties, charging the Republican chiefs with abandoning the principles of Lincoln and Roosevelt and the Democratic leaders with forsaking the ideas of Jefferson and Cleveland.

GOV. PINCHOT.

"Not long ago," said Gov. Pinchot, "Mr. Hoover was generally regarded as doomed to defeat. What chance he has today of victory he owes directly and exclusively to the Democratic leaders and the forces they obey.

"All in the Same Boat."

"The Democratic leaders—Shouse, Robinson, and Al Smith, Raskob and Garner—are no more Jefferson Democrats than Hoover and Mellon are Lincoln Republicans. They are all in the same boat—the boat provided by the multimillionaires. For the multimillionaires own the heads of both party organizations in Washington today.

"So far as constructive action is concerned, the record of the Democrats in the present session of congress is a mere zero. Never has political leadership fallen down more completely in the face of a magnificent opportunity. For the Democratic leaders have been nothing but the tools of the Republican administration, which in turn has been the tool of the captains of finance and industry. Under their guidance the Democratic party in congress, traditionally acclaimed as the party of the plain people, has been the catspaw of the standpat Republicans. It has played straight into Mr. Hoover's hands.

Calls Hoover Beneficiary.

"I am not in the confidence of the Democratic leaders, but this I know, and so does every one who reads the papers, that if their purpose were to strengthen Mr. Hoover and destroy all chance of a Democratic victory, they could not have acted otherwise."

Gov. Pinchot, a Bull Moose in 1912, said he was "not advocating a third party," but was urging a return to first principles. In the Pennsylvania primaries last month he took a hard toss in the defeat of his senatorial candidate, Maj. Gen. Smedley Butler of marine corps fame, as a dry contender against Senator James J. Davis, who took an anti-prohibition stand.

Mrs. Pinchot, wife of the governor, in the same primaries was defeated in her candidacy against Congressman Louis T. McFadden, who last winter made an attack in the house upon President Hoover.

Last year when the insurgent Republicans at Washington were talking of making a fight against Hoover's renomination, Pinchot was regarded as among the presidential possibilities in case they got anywhere.

Offers 23 Point Program.

At the conclusion of his address last night the governor presented a long program of 23 items, including federal relief to feed and clothe the unemployed, old age pensions, reflation of the dollar, much higher tax rates on large incomes and inheritances, and a referendum before going into any war.

He criticized the Democrats for putting across the Hoover reconstruction corporation and said they "have supinely followed the administration" in every way. He said the constructive legislation came from the radical Republicans—the group that Senator George Moses once termed the "sons of the wild jackass."

"Robinson, Democratic leader in the senate," he said, "and Garner, Democratic leader in the house, go to the White House, to a Republican President for their orders. And those orders passed on by the President come from the bankers and business men to whom he turns for advice."

PLAN TO PROTEST U. S. CAFETERIAS IN POSTOFFICES

Directors of the National Restaurant association have called a meeting for today at the Bismarck hotel to draft a protest against the government's proposal to install cafeterias in postoffice buildings in 32 of the large cities in the country. The restaurant owners state they are opposed to the government competing with private enterprise in any industry, according to association spokesmen. Washington department heads have ordered expensive cafeteria equipment installed in the postoffices to serve employes, on the theory that better service can be given.

LINDY RE-ENACTS KIDNAP NIGHT IN HOPE OF CLEWS

Leads Hunt on Eve of Paris Flight Anniversary.

Curtis appeared to have made no move toward retaining a lawyer to defend him. Neither had any apparent effort been made to raise the $10,000 bail under which he is held.

Curtis spent the day placidly in the Hunterdon county jail at Flemington reading and seemingly was in fair spirits. Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck, who looked in on Curtis late in the day, indicated that the charges against Curtis would be pressed, but was not certain how soon he could lay the case before the grand jury.

At Trenton, however, officials betrayed some doubt as to whether the charges against Curtis could be proved unless the Rev. Peacock could be brought to New Jersey to give evidence.

Kidnaper Search at Standstill.

Indeed the controversy raging around the clergyman obscured entirely the hunt for the kidnapers and there was neither report nor indication that any progress whatever had been made in this investigation.

Schwarzkopf expressed dissatisfaction with Mr. Peacock's offer to give any information he had to any authorized emissary of Gov. A. Harry Moore in Norfolk.

"Under these circumstances," he said, "it will not be possible to confront Mr. Curtis with Mr. Peacock, which at this time we are anxious to do."

It became known, however, that the New Jersey officials were endeavoring to make use of the fact that Mr. Peacock sought an advance deposit of $25,000 from Col. Lindbergh as a possible lever to get him into their jurisdiction. This was the subject of the conference at the state house, but the result was not made known.

Dean Urged $25,000 Deposit.

The fact that Mr. Peacock made this proposal had been substantiated by several witnesses, Schwarzkopf announced, including Col. Lindbergh, who was present when Mr. Peacock made the request.

The clergyman's proposal, it developed, was that the money should be placed in a Norfolk bank, subject to withdrawal only on the joint order of the three Norfolk negotiators, Curtis, Mr. Peacock, and Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, retired.

Gov. Moore is expected to accede to Mr. Peacock's proposal that he give his information in Norfolk. The governor announced that he favored sending some one to Norfolk to see what the clergyman had to say and indicated he would leave the selection of his emissary to Col. Schwarzkopf.

No Virginia Law Broken.

In Norfolk, Commonwealth Attorney John M. Arnold ruled, after a conference with Mr. Peacock, that he had obtained no evidence that any Virginia law had been violated by Mr. Curtis in his bogus negotiations. He said the minister apparently had been convinced that Curtis was acting in good faith.

The next scene of action in the case will be the Bronx county courthouse, where the grand jury will resume tomorrow its inquiry into the kidnaping. Dr. Condon is expected to be the first witness.

Dr. Condon, whose daughter informed Schwarzkopf that the Fordham lecturer had been ordered by his doctor to rest for several days, abandoned his scrutiny of rogue's gallery photographs to devote the day to recreation. This "recreation" consisted of a motor trip to West Point.

Later Dr. Condon denied that he had ever seen Mrs. Mary G. Ford, a New York school teacher, who was questioned today by Brooklyn police.

A tip had sent detectives scurrying to find Mrs. Ford and determine why she was absent from school for several days immediately after receiving an "urgent" telephone call at the school from a man described as Dr. Condon.

The teacher later explained the telephone conversation as an incident in a desperate attempt to obtain a loan of money. She thought that Dr. Condon, being a retired member of the school department, might help her, so she asked him to loan her $2,000 and offered to do what she could to help him in his Lindbergh negotiations.

Red Johnson Returns.

Henry "Red" Johnson, sailor friend of Betty Gow, also reappeared in the case. Johnson has been on Ellis Island awaiting immigration authorities' action since his release after questioning in the Lindbergh case. Today he visited the Newark police station and spent a half hour with Deputy Chief of Police Frank E. Brex, who said afterward that the visit was purely a friendly one.

Chief of Police William P. Walter of Trenton made public a crude letter received March 11 from a man who described himself as one of the kidnapers who said he had "cold feet." The writer said that the gang was holding the child near Elizabeth, where it was alive and well and beloved by the kidnapers, and that they had tapped the emergency police wires strung to the Lindbergh estate.

"Follow the Lindbergh telephone wires and you'll find the baby and the three fellows," the writer said.

The child's body was found near wires which the police had strung along the ground.

EX-POSTMASTER IS FREED.

Federal Judge George A. Carpenter yesterday dismissed a charge of embezzling $183 against Walter J. Walsh, former postmaster of McHenry. Authority to dismiss the indictment was given by the attorney general.

VESTRYMEN RUSH TO DEFEND DEAN; CONDEMN POLICE

Request for Information Called Impertinence.

Norfolk, Va., May 19.—(AP)—Friends and vestrymen of his church rallied to the defense of the Rev. H. Dobson Peacock today as the minister continued the center of interest in the maelstrom of charges, denials, and police inquiry which followed the confession of John Hughes Curtis that he faked his Lindbergh kidnaping "negotiations."

Robert M. Hughes Jr., registrar of Christ Episcopal church, who said he was speaking for himself and unofficially for the entire vestry, asserted in a formal statement that only "the grand army of gossipers and scandal mongers questions the course" pursued by Dean Dobson Peacock and Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, retired, as members of the trio of Norfolk "intermediaries."

Calls Police Impertinent.

Hughes characterized as "arrant impertinence" the request made by Supt. H. Norman Schwarzkopf of New Jersey police for the minister to go to Hopewell for questioning. "No lawyer," he said, "would advise him to go and no sane person would expect him to go." Hughes added that vestrymen had advised him not to go. Admiral Burrage is one of the vestrymen in the church.

Dean Peacock, who asserts his participation in the Curtis-faked "negotiations" was with full belief in their authenticity, has advised New Jersey authorities he is willing to answer all questions put to him here.

Meanwhile police and Norfolk officials are proceeding into several new fields and are conducting a search for two unnamed rum runners.

Dean Talks to U. S. Agents.

Dean Dobson Peacock, it was learned, has given detailed information to agents of the federal department of justice relative to his hurried trip to New York to see two unidentified gangsters, who, the dean said, made him an offer to return the kidnaped child for $500 cash and $50,000 ransom later. The minister would not discuss the matter, contending that the information must come from federal authorities.

Dean Peacock has informed local officials he will be glad to answer their questions about his part in the "negotiations," which Curtis has confessed to having faked in their entirety.

GIFTS TO CHARITY IN WILL REVOKED AS ESTATE DROPS

The diminished value of securities, which melted from $250,000 to $45,000 a month before his death, caused the late Henry S. Robbins, former attorney for the board of trade, to revoke the charitable bequests mentioned in his will made in 1927. This was learned yesterday when the will and a codicil added on March 12 were approved by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Horner.

The estate is left in trust, and the widow, Mrs. Helen Graham Robbins, 1530 North State street, was bequeathed the income up to $4,000 a year. Any other income was to be divided among four daughters, Mrs. Marjorie R. Hopkins, 1530 North State street; Mrs. Dorothy R. Hibbard, 1301 Astor street; Mrs. Isabelle R. Isaacs, 375 Washington road, Lake Forest, and Mrs. Frances R. Odell, 540 Crab Tree lane, Lake Forest. After the death of their mother they divide the principal.

Mr. Robbins' sister, Miss Alice B. Robbins, who lives in Paris, was given $500 a month for life, and his grandson, Henry R. Odell, was given $1,400 a year for four years to provide a college education.

Bequests revoked by Mr. Robbins were for $10,000 each to the Presbyterian and Henrotin hospitals and to Yale university. Attorney De Wald M. Baum, who filed the will, said it was doubtful if the remaining provisions of the will could be carried out.

TEXACO FIRE-CHIEF GASOLINE

Here is a gasoline that was originally developed to put snap, dash, action in fire engines. The U. S. Government specified this type of motor fuel for use in its own emergency vehicles—"ambulances, fire engines, naval and military equipment."

(Excerpt from Federal pamphlet VV-M-571, July 21, 1931)

Texaco Fire-Chief gasoline is alive with power—power you can feel right under the accelerator of your own car—power that means snap, dash, action in any engine, old or new.

Mass production of this remarkable new power-gasoline was made possible only by advanced Texaco refining methods. It has an Octane Rating that is outstanding. In all 'round performance it is "way out in front." Yet Texaco Fire-Chief gasoline costs no more than ordinary old-fashioned gasolines.

And if you prefer driving with a premium gasoline remember that Texaco Fire-Chief plus Ethyl equals Texaco-Ethyl, now more than ever the leading premium gasoline.

ROSNER RELATES GANGDOM'S HUNT FOR LINDY'S BABY

Quizzed Many on "Death Take All" Basis.

New York, May 19.—(AP)—Underworld hostilities were forgotten, Morris Rosner told the World-Telegram today, and every organized mob and gang in the country coöperated, at his request, in the hunt for the kidnaped Lindbergh baby.

In a copyrighted article an amazing story is told of the gangsters' search. The high points of Rosner's story, as related by the World-Telegram, are:

Thousands of dollars were spent by the underworld in the futile effort to solve the great mystery.

Airplanes were chartered.

Investigators were organized and sent throughout the United States and into Canada, following the underworld's own peculiar clews.

Mob Leaders Join Search.

"The first thing I did was to go to all the mob leaders and ask them to help," Rosner was quoted as saying. "Every one of them did.

"They started off by suspecting anybody who was missing from the usual places. That included lamsters or fugitives from justice and other fellows who were hiding out because they thought they were on the spot in some feud.

"Every one of them was hunted out and questioned. Each one had to convince his questioner he was hiding for some other reason before he was released from suspicion that he knew about the kidnaping.

How Suspects Were Found.

"I can't give names and cases, of course, but this is the way it was done:

"If a fellow was missing word was sent out through the grapevine route that we wanted to talk to him. Pretty soon one of his friends would come in and say that absolutely this fellow knew nothing.

"We would demand to hear that from his own lips. So a meeting place would be arranged in some secret spot. We went to scores of meetings like that.

"The agreement was always made that if anything went wrong none of us would come away alive.

"You see what it meant. One mob might have the mark on a man. He would be in hiding. We'd go to the other mob and get in touch with him. But we would never break confidence with anybody.

Talked to Hundred Men.

"I guess we talked to a hundred men like that who were hiding out for some reason or other. And all of them were willing to help. Some of them were taking their lives in their hands to come out of hiding.

"In one case there was a report a Detroit mob knew something. And what happened? Both here and Chicago the mobs chartered planes and sent delegations to find out.

"Delegations were sent out like 'hat to dozens of towns, and that meant expense. You know how those fellows travel—always in squads of four.

Though all this work came to naught, Rosner explained he had been of some service to the Lindberghs, anyway.

"They didn't have to deal with mitts," he said. "We handled all the chiselers ourselves and cooled them. I guess we busted up a dozen attempts to chisel in and hoist the ransom."

Rosner said he was recommended to Col. Lindbergh by "three different sources—a former cabinet member, a congressman from New York, and a very reputable law firm."

He said his help was sought because for more than 10 years he had been an arbitrator of gang feuds.

"I am not a mobster," he said emphatically. "I'm a business man. I've been in the real estate business for years, but it's all gone to pieces during this case."

He said he had made his contacts in Washington because of a number of delicate jobs for the government.

PLANE MISSING ON ALASKAN RESCUE FLIGHT

Officials of American Airways announced in Chicago early today that S. E. Robbins, flyer who set out from Fairbanks, Alaska, to rescue Percy T. Olton from a glacier on Mount McKinley, was overdue on his return.

Olton, a New Yorker, was a member of the University of Chicago expedition sent to study cosmic rays from the heights of the Alaskan peak. Two of his companions were killed by falls into crevasses, and Olton and James Beckwith, another member, were reported camped on the glacier.

MEANS TRIAL FOR $104,000 FRAUD SET FOR JUNE 6

Washington, D. C., May 19.—(AP)—The trial of Gaston B. Means on charges of larceny after trust and embezzlement of $104,000 in an alleged Lindbergh ransom fraud was set today for June 6.

The former department of justice agent is accused of obtaining the money from Mrs. Edward B. McLean, estranged wife of the Washington Post publisher, on false representations that he could recover the Lindbergh baby from the kidnapers.

Justice James M. Proctor decided on the date after Leo A. Rover, United States attorney, asked for trial on the day previously set—next Monday—and after Means' lawyer urged June 20.

Means was not in court. He is at liberty on $50,000 bail.

WOMAN FALLS FROM WINDOW.

Mrs. Augusta Quinn, 59 years old, 1434 East 67th street, was injured yesterday when she fell from a second story window of her home as she was washing a pane of glass. She was taken to the Illinois Central hospital with a broken leg and possible internal injuries.

RUMANIA ORDERS WORK HALTED ON U. S. SKYSCRAPER

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

BUCHAREST, May 19.—The general staff of the Rumanian army and the International Telephone and Telegraph company have come into sharp conflict because the staff says the company's new skyscraper in Bucharest constitutes a danger to the state.

The American concern, which rented the Rumanian telephone system last year, is constructing the skyscraper in the center of the city to accommodate the general administration of the telephone service. When the building was half completed the general staff ordered suspension of the work on the grounds that the building would be a target for air attack and for artillery observers.

The American company yesterday ordered the building completed. As a result, a press campaign has been opened against it.

Former Superintendent of Streets Dies in His Auto

Lawrence Toomey, 8439 Aberdeen street, former city superintendent of streets, was found dead early this morning, slumped over the wheel of his automobile in front of 4428 Wallace street. He apparently had been stricken with a heart attack while he was driving and managed to stop the car before he died, police said. Toomey was 44 years old. He is survived by his widow, Della, and four children. He had recently been employed by the sanitary district.

Police Free Defective from Cage in Cellar

Police were asked by neighbors yesterday to make an investigation at the home of Henry Itter, 71 years old, at 5552 North Mansfield avenue. They found a 21 year old son, Irvin, who is said to have the mentality of a 2 year old, confined in a cage in the basement. The family explained that this was done as the easiest way of taking care of him, and said he had been so confined for only two weeks. Capt. Ira McDowell ordered the cage dismantled and the youth taken upstairs to live with the family.

SENATE BATTLES ALL DAY TO DRAW OVER OIL TARIFF

Debate Grows Bitter; Delay Threatens.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—The old tariff debate descended upon the senate and the waiting tax bill today. All day arguments pro and con concerning the proposed import duties on oil and gasoline showered down and bogged the revenue bill in a muddy road.

More than that, more tariff clouds gathered blackly on the horizon. The prospects for a prolonged delay in the tax bill's passage grew greater.

By the close of the evening session no vote on the oil duty, or even an agreement as to when a vote would be taken was in sight. Patience grew short as the dilatory debate continued.

Argue Over Responsibility.

Senator Walter F. George [Dem., Ga.] placed the responsibility for the tariff items in a revenue bill "squarely on the shoulders of the Republicans," but Senator James E. Watson, the Republican leader, failed to see how that could be when, he said, a preliminary checkup showed 18 Democrats ready to vote for an oil tariff and 18 Republicans waiting to vote in opposition.

But to answer the Republican leader's complacency came an outburst from Senator Robert M. La Follette [radical Rep., Wis.]. Senator La Follette told how the Republican members of the finance committee had, with Democratic help, written the tariff items into the revenue bill.

La Follette Charges Log Rolling.

"The very gentlemen who now bellow loudest about passing the tax bill and balancing the budget are the very ones who voted for the tariff provisions in committee," he charged.

"The most disgraceful sort of log rolling I ever saw took place in that committee," he said.

He charged that during a swapping of votes among the four tariff items in the bill—oil, coal, lumber, and copper—two regular Republican senators had been conspicuous for the agility with which they climbed from one side of the fence to the other. Presumably he referred to Senators Metcalf of Rhode Island and Keyes of New Hampshire.

Senator La Follette said that the four small tariff provisions had occupied a third of the time the finance committee had put in on the tax bill and he did not want the same thing to take place on the senate floor. He warned of possible weeks spent in revising scores of tariff duties.

Threats of Revisions.

His fears were based on more than conjecture. There were open threats of a wholesale tariff revision from members of both sides of the argument, and Senator La Follette disclosed that he had been advised that a senator, whom he did not name, intended to submit an amendment embracing the export debenture plan if the tariff items remained in the bill.

Leading the forces of the regular Democrats against the tariff provisions Senator Millard E. Tydings [Dem., Md.] announced that should the oil and other tariffs carried he had waiting 500 amendments affecting other tariff schedules.

Leading the oil state Democrats who are siding with the Republican protectionists, Senator Elmer D. Thomas [Dem., Okla.] announced that for his part, should the oil tariff be defeated, he has ready 1,000 amendments calculated to make tariff advocates uncomfortable.

GARNER FATHERS NEW TWO BILLION RELIEF PROJECT

Loans to States, Bond Issue Involved.

lief schemes, involving the addition of billions to the financial obligations of the government, the movement for reducing the cost of the federal government 800 millions has almost been lost sight of. A subcommittee of the senate appropriations committee is still wrangling over the economy bill, with the appropriations bills temporarily shelved.

Opinion in both houses is growing that congress cannot dispose of all this legislation before the national conventions, but will be compelled to return in July after a recess.

Speaker Garner said that, despite the depression relief legislation so far enacted, "the unemployment and distress of the people are greater now than when congress was organized last December."

Opposed to Dole.

"I am unalterably opposed to the dole," he continued, "but it must be apparent that before congress adjourns some real effort must be made toward taking care of the unemployment situation as well as the people who are in physical distress as a result of lack of food and raiment.

"It is evident that the situation cannot be remedied by international negotiations to remove barriers and restrictions upon international commerce, since the present administration will not permit legislation of this nature. Therefore we must consider what, if anything, can be done to improve the situation by direct action of the government. To that end I have three suggestions to offer, and I sincerely hope that the administration will consider them and cooperate with the congress in their enactment into legislation."

His proposal to grant the President a 100 million dollar relief fund he likened to grants of the same amounts to President McKinley in 1898 and to President Wilson in 1917 for the defense of the country.

Tax to Be Temporary.

By increasing its resources from two to three billions the Reconstruction Finance corporation, Mr. Garner said, would be enabled to loan funds to states, counties, and cities where legal and adequate security could be offered. It would also permit that corporation to exercise its good judgment in making loans to individuals or corporations where adequate security is offered and where it is assured that labor would be employed.

The bond issue for a public works construction program he would finance by a gasoline or other special tax in order that the budget balancing might not be impaired, and such taxes "would be repealed as soon as conditions improve to the point where our revenue from income, inheritance, and corporations would meet our expenditures."

Mrs. George R. Hearst Files Suit for Divorce

Los Angeles, Cal., May 19.—[Special.]—Asserting desertion, Mrs. Blanche Wilbur Hearst today filed suit for divorce here from George Randolph Hearst, newspaper publisher and son of W. R. Hearst, newspaper chain owner. The couple were married at Martinez, Cal., April 2, 1923, and separated July 10, 1930, she states. Twins born in 1927 are the only children. Mrs. Hearst's petition says a property settlement was arranged last March. Mrs. Dorothy Hart Hearst secured a divorce from J. R. Hearst, younger son of the chain publisher, in Nevada recently.

HOUSE PASSES WAR DEPT. BILL OF 392 MILLIONS

6 Millions Over Economy Committee Plan.

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—Carrying nearly six million dollars more than had been recommended by the appropriations committee, the war department supply bill for 1933 was passed by the house of representatives today. Its total authorization as finally approved was in excess of $392,587,000, as compared with the total of $386,793,000 proposed by the committee.

The boost in the total appropriation was the result of the house's refusal to accept the committee's economy plan to curtail appropriations for the organized reserves, the reserve officers' training corps and the citizens' military training camps.

Under the leadership of Representative Henry E. Barbour [Rep., Cal.] amendments were adopted providing funds for continuing these reserve activities, a last minute roll call on amendments failing. Barbour failed, however, in a final effort to eliminate that section of the bill under which 2,000 army officers will be placed on the retired list as an economy move saving nearly four million dollars.

Debate today centered principally around the $59,000,000 appropriation for rivers and harbors work. Two amendments to cut the amount by five and ten per cent, respectively, were defeated. Another, calling for a reduction of five millions in flood control work on the Mississippi, was likewise defeated and the original $31,773,775 remained intact.

105 Millions Nonmilitary.

Of the total amount appropriated in the measure, which is the last of the departmental supply bills, $281,349,806 was made available for military activities of the department, while $105,444,255 represented nonmilitary functions, including the rivers and harbors and flood control works. The total amount recommended by the committee was $24,500,000 below the budget estimate and more than 58 millions less than appropriated for the war department last year.

The house's refusal to cut the appropriations for the C. M. T. C., R. O. T. C., and organized reserves, however, brought the final to $18,500,000 below the budget estimate and 52 millions below last year's authorization.

MUM ON WOUND, HE'S FINED.

William Cartwright, 34 years old, 326 West 42d street, was fined $100 yesterday by Judge Edgar A. Jones. He refused to tell the court or police the circumstances under which he was shot in the right arm.

SABATH FREES 5 IN ALIMONY ROW; 5 OTHERS TO GO

Judge Joseph Sabath held another "Liberty day" for members of the alimony club yesterday. He called in five men whom he committed to the jail in January or February and released them after they had promised to try to pay their arrears.

The reactions of the freed prisoners varied. John Styskal, who owes his wife $870 and has been in jail since Feb. 1, said, "Nobody likes a jail." But John Rembowicz, who has served five months for an alimony debt of $1,312, remarked, "It doesn't do me any good to be out."

William Mondry, who had been in jail since Jan. 18 for refusal to pay his wife, Bernice, $350, didn't care whether he got out, but Mrs. Mondry pleaded that he be released and given a chance to make some money. Louis Daszkowski promised to get up every morning to look for a job.

"There are five others out there whom I intend to release," said Judge Sabath. "In the future I'm going to tell them what I'm telling you. Alimony row is too soft. From now on the men I commit will support themselves and the county by working in the Bridewell stone quarry."

NEW COMMERCE LEADER POINTS REVIVAL ROUTE

Legal Beer, Bank Reform to End Depression.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Francisco, Cal., May 19.—[Special.]—Immediate legislation of the sale of real beer was advocated tonight by Henry I. Harriman, chairman of the board of the New England Power association, Boston, in an address—"The Way Out of the Depression"—delivered before the United States Chamber of Commerce.

H. I. HARRIMAN. [Acme Photo.]

Mr. Harriman, who is slated to be elected tomorrow as president of the national chamber, and thus will become identified as the official spokesman for American commerce, included a plank for the return of beer in a comprehensive program submitted by him for the restoration of business prosperity.

No other speaker at this convention had attempted so definitely to trace the causes of the depression, and to prescribe remedies, as did Mr. Harriman.

800 Million Revenue.

The speaker proposed that real beer be taxed at $5 a barrel, producing revenue of not less than five hundred million dollars annually. He would use this revenue, Mr. Harriman said, in pushing through a construction program of public or private works; such projects will not add to the general tax burden later, but may be expected to pay their way.

Mr. Harriman explained that he referred to such projects as toll bridges and toll tunnels, the abolition of slums, and the construction of homes, and he said such a program would be considered as an emergency measure to stimulate business, provide work, and obviate the dole.

"May I also add," Mr. Harriman said, "that I would at once resubmit to the people of the United States the eighteenth amendment, and find out whether they desire to continue to subsidize crime, or to devote the 3 billion dollars now going annually to the racketeers to the reduction of the tax burdens of the people of America."

Can't Unite on Action.

Some leaders of the national chamber have sought united support of the all powerful business groups behind a definite program for relief of unemployment and return of prosperity.

But while efforts for such action are being pressed, it appears likely that no such definite plan can be agreed upon, and that resolutions of a general nature will be adopted. All of the speakers at the convention, including Mr. Harriman, have condemned tax eating government excesses and have demanded drastic reductions in public expenditures.

Mr. Harriman found three primary causes for the depression. They were, first, the inevitable collapse from the fictitious prices of 1929; second, the continuance of this collapse far beyond a normal adjustment because of a faulty banking system with the resulting fear of people to deposit money in banks and fear of banks to make loans; third, the inability of industry to balance production to consumption because of stringent and unwarranted anti-trust laws.

Submits Bank Program.

The Harriman program for remedy started off with a plank for the establishment of a strong and unified bank system for the entire country, with branch banking permitted. This, Mr. Harriman said, would assure safety and give confidence to depositors.

Then the speaker advocated amendment of the anti-trust laws so as to permit trade associations and business combines to enter into agreements to govern prices and output. This should be done, he said, subject to reasonable supervision by the federal trade commission, or by a new commerce court.

The next two Harriman planks were:

"Adopt an agricultural program which includes a fair trial of the domestic allotment plan, say for wheat and cotton; the gradual reduction of submarginal lands under cultivation, and the repeal of that portion of the farm board act which authorizes the attempt to equalize prices by government purchases.

"Work definitely towards a reasonable and progressive plan for reduction in the hours of labor, both for those employed in industry and commerce and those serving the state. In certain industries the five day week is undoubtedly feasible."

Wheeler Group Reports.

The banking situation, regarded as of prime importance in discussing depression, was reviewed in a comprehensive report submitted today by a special committee headed by Harry A. Wheeler of Chicago. The major recommendation is for legislation to permit statewide branch banking by national banks in all the states, but under definite restrictions.

The report, submitted to the chamber's board of directors and ordered published so that the membership may study it and vote a referendum upon it, points out the seriousness of the situation. The report states:

"The country is rightly critical of the weaknesses that have developed in our banking situation, as evidenced by the suspension of 9,197 banks, with deposits of $4,414,000,000, during the past ten years. This record, in which all kinds of banks—member and nonmember banks of the reserve system, unit banks as well as branch banks—have been involved, points to the imperative need of a stronger banking structure.

Statewide Banking.

"The committee believes that statewide branch banking will greatly strengthen the general situation and will provide in a great many states the means of sufficient banking stability."

At present, the report states, only nine states permit state-wide branch banking. City-wide branches are permitted in sixteen other states, and the remaining twenty-three states either prohibit branch banking or have no provisions in law governing it. Illinois is among the states prohibiting it.

The report follows in some respects the provisions of the Glass banking bill, which would allow national branch banking.

"While it is believed," the report continues, "that bankers generally would proceed with caution in the creation of branch systems, the committee concludes from its studies of branch banking that certain checks looking for the long term aspects of the problem should be imposed.

"Protect Unit Bank."

"In particular, it is of high importance that the properly operated unit bank which is adequately serving the financial interests of its community must not be subjected to unnecessary or economical competition from new branch banks established by outside interests. Sound banking requires also that branch systems should not be built by reckless competitive bidding for the shares of existing banks."

The report also recognizes the necessity for regulating group banking in which holding companies control a number of banks through ownership of their stock.

The committee suggested other legislative remedies. National banks should not be organized with less capital than $100,000 except in the communities of less than 6,000 inhabitants; there the controller of the currency might approve the organization of a national banw with a capital of not less than $50,000.

Sutro Is Speaker.

Another speaker at tonight's general session was Oscar Sutro of San Francisco, vice president of the Standard Oil Company of California, who addressed himself to amending the anti-trust laws.

"It should be granted," he said, "that industry cannot be allowed to make what agreements it will with respect to production and prices without some control. The consumer must be protected. Congress cannot, by statute, define the types and cases that are beneficial and those that are not. The courts offer a long and unsatisfactory road.

"There remains only the administrative branch of the government through which sane and necessary trade agreements can be made possible. The law should be so amended that some administrative commission may be empowered to approve every agreement that is in the public interest."

Raymond H. Berry, Detroit lawyer, addressing the convention, deplored the attitude among some congressmen to "soak the rich."

"The flight of capital from productive enterprise into tax havens needs to be discouraged rather than forced," he declared.

Tax Economy Experts to Talk Before June Conference Here

Mark Graves, New York state tax commissioner, and Morris Edwards, tax authority of Washington, D. C., have accepted invitations from George W. Rossetter, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, to address the national tax conference which is to be held at the La Salle hotel on June 2 and 3.

Mr. Graves, who is known for his efforts on behalf of government economy in his state, will talk on "State and Local Taxation" and Mr. Edwards will tell "What Business Can Do to Further the Popular Demand for Lower Taxes and Government Expenditures."

More Support for Drive.

Support for the Chicago tax conference, which is designed to impress the Republican and Democratic national conventions with the fact that the public means business in its demand for lower taxes, continues to come in from all parts of the country. Fifty more cities have signified their intention of sending representatives to the conference. These include Texarkana, Tex., Jackson, Miss., Baltimore, Md., Fargo, N. D., Jackson Mich., Santa Paula, Cal., and Providence, R. I.

Cities which have expressed their sympathy with the aims of the conference and will be represented through proxies include Lee, Mass.; Bristol, Pa.; Athens, Ga.; Glens Falls, N. Y.; Salt Lake City; Pittston, Pa.; Kearney, Neb.; Arlington, Mass.; Chambersburg, Pa.; Brookhaven, Miss., and Morriston, Tenn.

View of a Pennsylvanian.

A letter received at Mr. Rossetter's office from J. Gibson McIlvain, president of the Downington, Pa., chamber of commerce, is typical of expressions of opinion by business men on the tax question.

"We do not think that congress should make any further appropriations for money on the so-called fifty-fifty basis. We do not think that there should be any increase in taxation until every bureau and commission of the government has been scrutinized, and all of them eliminated that cannot definitely earn sufficient money to pay their carrying charges through advantages to all citizens.

"We do not believe in class legislation in any sense of the word, plenty of which is in existence and more in contemplation.

Points to U. S. Constitution.

"We believe the only answer to the present situation is through nominating at the coming conventions men who believe in the constitution of the United States, and the principles for which it stands, which certainly embody keeping government out of business, and allowing business to proceed without undue regulation and control."

W. Frank Roberts, president of the Baltimore Association of Commerce, said in a letter:

"This association, representing 2,200 commercial concerns and business and professional leaders of Baltimore, has observed with great concern the recent actions of congress in respect to the necessary program of economy. The virtual destruction by the house of representatives of the $200,000,000 national economy bill presents an alarming situation, which can only serve still further to retard business recovery and to create disastrous economic conditions destructive of the public welfare and safety."

COUNSELS BUSINESS TO FIGHT DEPRESSION WITH ADVERTISING

Reduction of advertising during the present business situation will not build profits for the future. This warning was given yesterday by Roy Dickinson, associate editor of Printers' Ink, before members of the advertising council of the Chicago Association of Commerce in the Hotel La Salle.

"Advertising is the best attack against depression," Mr. Dickinson said. "Curtailment of research effort, selling, and advertising has in many cases reached a stage dangerous for the future of many a business. Advertising, as a part of good management, makes for sales now and produces acceptance for more sales when the upturn in business comes.

"The hatchet, never a good tool to build with, ought to be discarded in favor of the realization that unless the public has a chance to pass on a new product and its value the owner of the business is in no position to say business is terrible. The present time offers to the small manufacturer with an improved product and a new idea a remarkable advertising opportunity."

Judge Feinberg Dismisses His Special Grand Jury

Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg yesterday dismissed the special grand jury he summoned to investigate alleged election frauds in the heat of his unsuccessful campaign for state's attorney. The jury was invalidated by a recent decision of the state Supreme court. The contempt citation of George Seif, Criminal court clerk, who was sentenced to the county jail and fined $1,000 for refusing to provide a clerk for the jury, was automatically voided by the decision.

WOMAN SLIGHTLY HURT IN "SUICIDE" BLAST; MAN DEAD

Mrs. Della Belluomini, 34 years old, 5558 South Richmond street, whose attempt to commit suicide in her home yesterday resulted in a gas explosion which caused the death of a pedestrian, suffered only slight burns, it was said last evening in the South Town hospital where she was taken. Leo Karkowski, 43 years old, a former deputy sheriff of Lake county, was killed when he was struck by debris as he was walking past the Belluomini home. Karkowski lived with his wife and three children at Druce lake, west of Waukegan. He was visiting a sister at 5538 South Fairfield avenue.

Mrs. Belluomini told Chicago Lawn police she attempted to end her life because of despondency over ill health. She opened all the gas jets of the kitchen range and then awaited death. The explosion, heard for blocks, was caused by the pilot light of the range igniting the gas in the room. Mrs. Belluomini is the mother of three children, who were at school at the time.

The blast was the third such explosion in the last six weeks.

He Tries to Wreck Church Statues; Cops Subdue Him

George Cimino, 173 Troop street, Hazelcrest, was subdued and arrested by five policemen yesterday when he tried to wreck the statuary in the St. Luke's Roman Catholic church, Lathrop avenue and Lake street, River Forest. The Rev. James Sullivan was conducting a confirmation practice class of 100 children when Cimino entered the church. One of the children summoned Motorcycle Policeman Edward Peterson of River Forest, who with four other policemen arrested Cimino. The prisoner was taken to the psychopathic hospital. His relatives in River Forest said he was mentally unbalanced.

KILLS HIMSELF WITH GAS.

MACHADO BANS FREEDOM FETES IN CUBA TODAY

Troops Guard Island in Threat of Revolt.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, May 19.—President Gerardo Machado today ordered the cancellation of the official Cuban independance day program tomorrow and took drastic steps to prevent disorders as a result of the discovery yesterday of a plot to overthrow the government.

Martial law has been declared throughout the island and individual constitutional rights have been suspended. Heavily guarded by special detectives, President Machado left his palace this afternoon for his farm at Santiago de las Vegas, sixteen miles south of here, where he will remain during tomorrow's celebrations of the thirtieth anniversary of independence.

All Celebrations Forbidden.

For the first time since control of the island was passed to the national government on May 20, 1902, the day will not be officially observed. The order strictly prohibited any celebrations.

The plot to overthrow Machado included threats of mixed revolutionary and communist riots. Police and detective squads, reinforced by army men in civilian clothes, today raided several hundred private homes, business houses, public places and amusement houses. Their search yielded quantities of seditious literature, mimeographed pamphlets urging the people to revolt tomorrow, firearms and ammunition, faked army uniforms, caps and insignia, communist banners and lists revealing members of the "Revolutionary Volunteer Army."

More than 100 persons were arrested today, including Spaniards, Russians and alleged communist leaders suspected of hatching the plot. Among the Cubans were Losada Pino, nephew of Congressman Gustavo Pino; Raul Baizan, son of Col. Celestino Baizan, former governor of Havana and a leader in the revolution in August, 1931, and Tejerino Elias, prominent Havana physician. All are confined in Principe Hill jail.

Ready to Combat Revolt.

Capt. Miguel Quijano of the national army has been appointed military prosecuting investigator of the latest revolutionary conspiracy. His movements are kept in utmost secrecy and he has refused to reveal his plans to combat the revolt called for tomorrow. Secretary of Interior Octavio Zubiarreta said tonight:

"The government expects trouble tomorrow, but police and army forces are ready to meet it."

Government officials and their residences are closely guarded. Groups of more than three persons are prohibited. No groups are permitted to stand and pedestrians are kept moving. Col. Federico Rasco, military governor of Havana, tonight ordered the streets cleared of people at midnight until further notice. The police and soldiers are on guard in all cities and towns of the island tonight.

BOMBAY'S RACE RIOTS SPREAD; 119 SLAIN, 1,150 HURT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 19.—Although the Hindu and Moslem riots have subsided within Bombay, the disorders have spread to Parel, the mill area outside of Bombay, where rioting and murders are continuing, dispatches to the Daily Telegraph said tonight. Eight persons were killed and 100 injured, bringing the toll to 119 dead and 1,150 injured in six days of fighting.

Guerrilla warfare featured today's attacks. Pedestrians were stabbed by assailants who disappeared before police arrived. Fast auto patrols checked the rioting partially, but shopkeepers are still refusing to reopen their doors. Wreckage is piled high in the main streets with masses of debris in some of the bazaars making traffic impossible.

ASKS ALIMONY

MRS. GRACE LEVINE.

New York, May 19.—[Special.]—The legal parting of the ways for Mrs. Grace Nova Levine and her husband, Charles A. Levine, first trans-Atlantic airplane passenger, was reached today in Supreme court, Manhattan.

Mrs. Levine sued for a separation, charging abandonment and with her complaint went a demand for $1,000 a week alimony and $25,000 counsel fees. She made no mention of Mabel Boll, "Queen of Diamonds," whose name often was coupled with that of her husband in Parisian whoopee, but she did mention she intended having depositions taken abroad as to his manner of living there since 1930.

Estimating her husband's fortune at $4,000,000, Mrs. Levine said that for years they had lived at the rate of from $40,000 to $75,000 a year. He formerly gave her $200 a week for pin money, and $20,000 a year for clothes, she declared. His trans-Atlantic flight entailed an outlay of $300,000.

She said that since 1930 she has been forced to support herself and her two children, Eloise, 14, and Ardith, 6, by borrowing money from her parents.

RIOTING SPREADS IN PHILIPPINES; REVOLT FEARED

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

MANILA, P. I., May 19.—Unrest, rioting and the threat of a communistic uprising in the northern Luzon provinces took a more serious turn today when Secretary of the Interior Honorio Ventura ordered provincial constabulary commanders at Bulacan, Pampanga and Nueva Ecija to report instantly at Manila to check the threatened danger. Hermenigildo Cruz, secretary of labor, left for Nueva Ecija today to investigate a labor upheaval in which arson and a general revolt is threatened.

Fourteen communists, convicted of Manila sedition, free on appeal and assisted by the American civil liberties union, are declared to be leading general agitation in Nueva Ecija which has already resulted in destruction of property of those refusing to join the movement. The constabulary has ordered their general roundup and rearrest.

Filemon Perez, secretary of commerce, declares landlord-tenant trouble is the root of the agitation, but a survey conducted by local newspapers indicates also that prevailing low prices for major products is causing distress, making the farmers ripe for the work of the agitators.

INSISTS KISSES OF RECTOR WERE PURELY FRIENDLY

British Immorality Trial Is Reopened.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 19.—The Rev. Harold Francis Davidson was an eccentric and perhaps even an offensive busybody who liked to talk to strangers, both male and female, and he had a habit of kissing women, but only in a friendly fashion—not otherwise.

Thus did R. F. Levy, defense counsel, characterize his client in the reopening of the trial of the rector of Stiffkey on charges of immorality before the Anglican church consistory court.

The Rev. Mr. Davidson's defense is that he was interested in rescue work and in trying to save girls from the streets. In his opening speech the defense counsel pointed out that his client is a friend of every one.

Kisses Them All.

"He kisses his landlady, he kisses his landlady's daughter, he kisses the maid, he kisses all sorts of people," Mr. Levy said. "But it is not in a sensual way. It's a kiss on the cheek or the forehead."

Mr. Levy challenged the prosecution to bring forward one supported instance of actual immorality. Tomorrow the Rev. Mr. Davidson will take the stand and submit himself to examination for his own defense.

Barbara Harris, pretty 18 year old blond whom the minister is accused of having tried to seduce, is the only one of "a legion of girls" he has befriended who has turned on the rector, Mr. Levy said.

Seeks to Unfrock Rector.

During the previous sessions of the trial, which opened March 29, Miss Harris and Rose Ellis, another of the rector's friends, appeared on the stand. Landladies of the two girls and of the defendant, as well as waitresses, appeared on the stand during the presentation of evidence by which the bishop of Norwich is seeking to unfrock the rector. During that time it was revealed that the church had employed vestigators to shadow the rector, had supplied Miss Harris with money during the trial and had given Miss Ellis money for a new coat while obtaining a statement from her.

The rector of Stiffkey [pronounced Stewkey] is 62 and the father of five children.

The trial had exhausted his resources and the adjournment was given on April 6 to give the pastor time to raise funds.

HERRIOT TO CLING TO SAFETY FIRST RULE FOR FRANCE

Approves Disarmament, After Security.

PARIS, May 19.—(AP)—Edouard Herriot, who probably will direct the new French government, either as premier or foreign minister, gave an inkling of the external policy he will pursue by unequivocally approving today a statement by Senator Joseph Paul-Boncour that France's program remains national security, arbitration and disarmament, in the order named.

Herriot indorsed the Paul-Boncour suggestion that France study the question of making some reduction in armaments to show the sincerity of the French attitude toward Germany.

Statement Thought Important.

The statement of Herriot, leader of the powerful Radical-Socialist party which made great gains in the last chamber of deputies election, is considered of importance because, even if he does not become the premier, he is expected to wield more influence than any other member of the new cabinet. In the event he does not head the ministry he probably will take the foreign affairs portfolio.

On the question of reparations Herriot declared himself for the Paul-Boncour doctrine, which is to maintain European solidarity and to permit no rupture in the equilibrium between credits and debts at the expense of the French taxpayer.

Approves Tardieu Plan.

Although receptive to the suggestion of armament reductions, the Radical-Socialist leader strongly approved the plan presented at the Geneva conference by Andre Tardieu. This plan calls for international security through an international police force to be supervised by the league of nations.

Some Paris commentators deduced from this that Herriot would make arms reductions dependent upon acceptance at Geneva of the French plan.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

BEER AND THE SENATE BEDLAMITES.

Nothing the senate did in disposing of the various malt and grape beverage excises could be said to have been unexpected, but in that respect the performance is the more and not the less grotesque. An intelligent stranger landing on these shores uninformed on the subject of American antics in legislation would not believe a simple statement of the facts nor could he accept proof that they were veritable. His credulity would be unequal to the job.

The senate defeated the Tydings amendment to permit the manufacture of 2.75 per cent beer, taxed at 24 cents a gallon. It defeated the Bingham amendment, which merely changed the percentage to four. It then voted the excise taxes upon brewers' malt, malt products, and grape concentrates, from which no revenue can be expected unless these taxable commodities are purchased to make intoxicating beverages. The expectation is that citizens will violate the Volstead act to such an extent that the government, which prohibits the making of the beverages, will gain about $45,000,000 revenue from the disobedience.

Senator Tydings had proposed a modification of the Volstead act which would permit the sale of a beer so mild that it would not be intoxicating in any expectable use to be made of it. A nation unfitted for the legal use of such a beverage is manifestly unsafe with free tea and coffee. From the excises on this product an estimated $200,000,000 could be raised in a country which is now hunting in the corners for revenue. A great deal is said of the need of a psychological change and there is no doubt that a concession to the sanity of the nation would have been encouraging. The country is full of the feeling of infantile dependence quite logical in a prohibition era of bureaucratic dominance.

There would have been a new use for surplus products and unemployed labor, contributing its practical share to the restoration of profitable activity. The amendment was morally and financially sound, and it was rejected by a vote of 24 yes to 61 no. Thereupon the wholly pharisaical taxes on the makings of intoxicating beverages were voted. The action was worthy of bedlam. In those precincts it could have been explained. The spectators in the gallery could not have been astonished if any one of the sixty-one senators had arisen, flapped his arms, crowed, and cried that he was Nero.

ATTABOY.

—Daily Illini.

College radicalism is mostly adolescent egotism.

THE GOLDEN GOOSE AGAIN.

Some Chicago motorists are complaining because the federal government pays no license fees for mail trucks, though they damage Chicago streets like any other vehicle. There is a good deal to be said for the complainants. If Chicago received anything like a fair share of the motor taxes which its citizens pay there would be less reason to object. But only a third of the gasoline taxes paid in Chicago are returned to Cook county and only a part of that third is spent for Chicago streets. The rest goes downstate, for much the most part, to build roads many of which are little used even on Sundays. Those roads do not produce enough in gasoline taxes and license fees to pay even for their upkeep.

The federal government's contribution to the state's road fund comes principally from the cities and is spent principally in the country. The result is that Chicago must maintain its highways almost entirely from the city vehicle tax and that is insufficient for its needs. It is therefore of great importance to the community that every vehicle, no matter by whom owned, which regularly uses Chicago's streets pay its fair share of the cost of keeping the streets in usable condition. Otherwise the streets must deteriorate to the point where they are dangerous.

In fairness, too, the buses and trucks which follow the state highways ought to pay much more to Chicago than they do. Chicago built the roads through the country and Chicago pays to keep them in repair, but the bus and truck owners pay their taxes to the state. Chicago gets next to nothing in return, though the bus and truck business could not exist if Chicago did not provide the roads and maintain them.

Downstate's conspiracy to hog the license fees and gasoline tax revenues will defeat itself unless downstaters come to their senses. If Chicago streets are allowed to disintegrate and the radial roads are congested, Chicagoans will quit buying automobiles and quit burning gasoline in a vain attempt to get out into the country on narrow roads unrelieved by grade separations. Downstate will find itself in possession of a road system which it cannot keep in good condition and any portions of the state which still need hard roads will be unable to get them because there will not be enough revenue from Chicago to pay the bills.

NEWTON BAKER AS A CANDIDATE.

Owen Young's statement that he cannot be considered for the Democratic nomination and that he could not accept it is supposed to have had the effect of ripening Newton Baker almost overnight. Mr. Baker has been at no time an impossibility and if he has not done much to increase his probabilities he has tried to avoid the pool of contentions. It will be very difficult for any Democrat to be all things to all Democrats, but Mr. Baker evidently is willing to try.

Mr. Baker would make a portentous candidate for his party. He opens up the war again, not only as a war, but as a peace; not only as to how it was conducted, but as to what consequences his section of the Democratic party intended it to have and still so intend. He has tried to make the league of nations his own private affair, but that is trying to separate Newton Baker from Newton Baker. But that is not the full extent of Mr. Baker's portentousness.

If the Democratic convention selected him it would present as its candidate for President the secretary of war of Mr. Wilson. The record of the war department in that time is so fat with facts that the Republican feast upon them could not be ended within the limits of any campaign. The Republicans know what it is to carry on a defensive. They had to carry the Harding administration. They might well hope that the Democrats would give them Mr. Baker and a pertinent issue bearing on the De Haviland 4's, the billion dollars which did not produce a fighting plane at the front, the cost plus contracts, the case of Capt. Disque and spruce production, the case of Hard Boiled Smith, the Murmansk expedition, the report of Charles Evans Hughes on Col. Deeds, etc., etc.

All these issues would become quite pertinent upon the nomination of Mr. Baker for President. The Republicans would make the most of them and of the feeling of the American people that they were done in the conduct of the war, and in the conduct of the peace, their feeling that they can't be sure they will not be offered again in some one's enthusiasm for other people's welfare.

Mr. Baker is peculiarly the man whose candidacy would make all these questions relevant in the approaching campaign. It would be easy to doubt that they would help the party's chances.

THE STRANGE CASE OF MR. COUZENS.

Senator Couzens of Michigan is a promoter of high taxation. He is a man of great wealth, but he believes that wartime taxes should be reinstated. War taxes were imposed on war incomes and were one means of taking private profit out of national effort, but that thought need not be pursued. Senator Couzens, a very rich man, proposed to put very high taxes on such wealth as could be found, but the element of self-denial seemingly contained in his proposal did not appear upon further examination. Mr. Couzens was taxed, rhetorically, with having his money in tax exempt securities. His payment of income taxes is virtually negligible and he admits it. That puts another face on the matter, but on going a little further it is found that Mr. Couzens is not wholly selfish and unconcerned.

His securities, being tax exempt, are various government issues, including Detroit municipals. All of them are affected by governmental action which touches public credit. Ruinous taxation will destroy the wealth which pays taxes and supports public credit and government securities. When public bodies have ruined their constituencies and have themselves gone bankrupt they default on their obligations and their securities become worthless. Mr. Couzens' program of taxation takes that direction. Regarded in one light h. is out to destroy his own accumulations of wealth. Most of the advocates of punitive and destructive levies are not quite so careless. The radicals of New South Wales did not own the obligations which they defaulted and repudiated.

Mr. Couzens said that he had taken his money out of bank, railroad and other corporation stocks to remove the element of personal interest from his consideration of legislation affecting them. He could be more open minded if he were not personally interested in the prosperity of the country. It might not be a bad thing if legislation had in mind the prosperity of invested wealth, but on that there seem to be at least two minds in congress. But Mr. Couzens is not ungenerous. He is not promoting his ideas in perfect security and immunity from the consequences of their operation. It is entirely possible for these ideas to add public bankruptcy to private bankruptcy and put Mr. Couzens out on the street with the rest of his fellow citizens. He may be unselfish or just a bit dumb.

"FLEE AS A BIRD."

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

Not long ago Einstein had the universe running around in a circle and getting nowhere in spite of its tremendous speed, like a squirrel in a cage. Now he agrees with some other scientists that it is expanding in all directions so fast that before long—a few more millions years—it will become so attenuated that it will explode and those of us who are still left will have nowhere to go. That is a dark picture, but no darker than that painted years ago by those who saw in the gradual cooling process of the earth a distant time when all heat would be gone and we would have to rely upon the public utilities for life if all the coal and oil had not been used up.

But Dr. Humphrey of the United States weather bureau says that it might get hotter instead of colder, and the result would be dire. An average increase of only two degrees would melt the polar ice and send enough water into the ocean to raise the general level 150 feet, thus wiping out most of our large cities and flooding our farm lands, driving ourselves into the mountains as the compatriots of Noah were driven by the flood. The glaciers came down once before, but they made the mistake of holding together. This time they will be more fluid and will get farther and really cover the face of the deep. It may be a lesson to the banks of that day, if they need one.

Years ago George Francis Train said the same thing, only he was going to have the water come down the Mackenzie river, the Chain of Lakes, the Mississippi and the big lakes to drown and drive everybody to Omaha. Now we shall have to go to Colorado to be safe.

Train was a great talker, so rapid that only the best stenographers could record him, but not much of a scientist. Perhaps Dr. Humphrey also has ambitions to be a talker.

TEN MINUTES IN A SPEAKEASY.

(Or "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room" up to date.)

Interior of the Juicy Steak, Fun and Whist club in a side street not far off the Boul Mich. Simon Slade is tending bar. Enter Mr. Romaine.

ROMAINE—Well, well, if here isn't Simon Slade, the great-grandson of the old Simon Slade who ran the tavern in that great drama "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room."

SLADE—You're damn tootin'. And you are the great-grandson of the Mr. Romaine who also appeared in the old play.

ROMAINE—Okey dokey! Well, things have changed since our great-grandfathers were on earth.

SLADE—I'll say. You know, my great-grandfather went broke on his saloon and was a village bum before he died. Well, that's because the poor fish ran a saloon. Gosh! I wish he could see me in my speakeasy.

ROMAINE—No poorhouse for you, hey?

SLADE—Not in a million years. You know what my great-grandfather got for a glass of whisky? Fifteen cents. You know what I get? One bucko. And the whisky has been cut four times after I get it, so you see I hain't losin' anything. And seventy-five cents for a small glass of beer, needled stuff at that, is what they pay me, big boy. And my great-grandfather sold whisky for six bits a quart, tha sap! Me, I get nine dollars a quart.

ROMAINE—And your great-grandfather had to pay a heavy tax on his whisky to the government, too, didn't he?

SLADE—I'll say, and after that a city license and a county license, and stand lawsuits for selling to drunkards. Of course, we've got to grease a lot of mitts of coppers and dry sleuths, but when that's over, what with the prices we charge, we still have somethin' left for the house.

ROMAINE—Yes, and your great-grandfather sold real whisky, didn't he?

SLADE—He sure did. That's what put him in the red. The stuff had to be made out of grain and roost around in a warehouse for from five to twenty years. Now, take this warranted Old Kazoozle Scotch whisky I got here. That's the oldest stuff I got in the house.

ROMAINE—How old is it?

SLADE—About fifteen minutes. And here's Honey Dew Bourbon; the boys are making that in a bath tub down the alley, and if it's five minutes old when we get it here we fire the crew for workin' too slow.

ROMAINE—Ah, but here comes little Mary, who was in "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room" also. And, of course, that is her father, Joe Morgan, the drunkard, who was also in the dear old play.

LITTLE MARY (singing)—

Father, dear father, come home with me now,
For mother is yellin' like sin.
You know, she is giving a party tonight,
And, doggone it, she's run out of gin.
The shaker is empty, the home brew's all gone,
They've drunk all the hootch that we had;
Get a gallon of gin and hurry right home,
Or poor mother dear will go mad.

REFRAIN.

Come home, come home;
Get the gin, dearest pa, and come home.

MORGAN—Gitthell outten here. Tell that gang your ma's givin' a party to to go an' buy their own hootch like I hafta.

ROMAINE—Ah, how sad! Little did I think of how the dark curse of hootch weighs upon us each and every one. It's terrible, simply terrible! Give me a pint of white mule, Mr. Slade, and, mind you, see that it has a good kick.

SLADE—Don't worry about that, Mr. Romaine. You take a coupla jolts of this gin and then you'll be climbin' that telegraph pole outside an' yelling like four hyenas in the Lincoln park zoo. But git outten here now. They could last "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room" in the old days, but with the likker we have now you're all through after——

ROMAINE AND MORGAN—Well, after what?

(Curtain.)

CATALOGUING THE FAMILY.

People, they say, are flesh and blood,
But I beg to disagree.
That they can be inanimate
Is evident to me.

Why, Alice Rose is a velvet gown,
And Kenneth's tempered steel.
Mary Ann's a white dishpan,
And Carrie's a rundown heel.

Uncle Ed is a dictaphone,
Aunt Jane's a dictionary,
And Cousin Trix is a small, sharp trap
That's ready set for quarry.

Eleanor's a prism,
With the rainbow shining through.
Victor's like a flying kite
Tossing in the blue.

Lynette's a bit of white porcelain,
Mother's soft rose leaves.
But Dad's the very best of all,

ALBUMINURIA IN YOUNG ADULTS.

In the course of periodic examinations of young people in universities and colleges, on entering the army and navy, or even in starting a high class job, the examining physician frequently finds a subject that has albumin in the urine. Sometimes the patient fails to get his job because of this flaw in his physical condition. Insurance companies often refuse to accept some young person who seems to be in excellent physical condition except that he has some albumin in the urine.

This nearly breaks the heart of the agent who has sold the policy, and neither the applicant nor the company is happy. The company loses a customer who, in the natural course, was expected to pay many dividends and who would not have collected for several decades. Very profitable business. The customer is unhappy because of the black mark against his name, to say nothing of other unpleasant possibilities.

The condition is well known. It is called orthostatic albuminuria and adolescent albuminuria. Naturally, playing so much havoc in a business way and coming out of a clear sky to a person who felt well, had no symptoms, thought he had no limitations, the condition has caused a lot of controversy and discussion. It has been quite extensively investigated. We appear to be about ready for some conclusions.

It is not an uncommon disorder, being encountered in about one in every twenty boys and girls nearing maturity. It is usually not a matter of any particular moment. Of those in whom the symptom is found only about one in fifteen has Bright's disease. In this comparatively small group the symptom is important. An insurance company will run an unjustified risk if it accepts them for insurance at a standard rate. If the person with the symptom does not change his method of living he is liable to come a cropper. He must go to bed earlier, get more sleep, eat very carefully, and avoid such beverages and foods as throw a strain on his kidneys. It may be safer for him to change climate and occupation to a location and to a work in which he is not likely to be chilled.

For each man in this group there are fourteen who are in no particular danger of Bright's disease, who can be insured with safety, or who can fill any ordinary job. There are certain ways of guessing which group a given young person with albuminuria belongs in. If he gives a history of having been very subject to colds, or of having had one or more attacks of rheumatism, or had scarlet fever; if he is closely related to several persons who have had Bright's disease, or if he is of a frail build, or has a rapid pulse, or has had two or more of these items in his life history, he probably belongs to the group in which the symptom means "trouble ahead." On the other hand, if there is a history of diphtheria, or repeated attacks of sore throat, or one that shows tonsils that are abnormal, it does not follow that his albuminuria is of any consequence.

THEY'RE MISSING JUST NOW.

R. L. F. D. writes: What are the symptoms of plethora?

Is it dangerous?

Can it be cured?

Would it cause the gums to bleed?

REPLY.

The word means "too much." It has no definite medical meaning. There is a condition in which there is too much blood. The medical name is polycythemia. In many instances it is a very serious disease. However, medical opinion and information about it is not very clear cut. The term is usually applied quite loosely to big, fat, red-faced, tight-skinned people, many of whom have high blood pressure. It is said of them that they "look as if they are going to burst," or, "they must be careful or they will break a blood vessel and have apoplexy."

In certain cases members of this group are on ice that is a little thin. Perhaps they are improved, as they often think they are, by repeated bleedings, as from hemorrhoids. I presume it is among this group that the old time practice of bleeding made its reputation.

They would be better off if they followed some of Gandhi's practices.

EARLY PREGNANCY.

Mrs. T. R. S. What are the signs of early pregnancy?

REPLY.

HAVE SELF EXAMINED.

L. F. W. writes: I caught a cold in my throat, and cough a lot at night. My breathing is so hard that I have to sit up in bed. My ankles and limbs below the knees swell. Is this dropsy, or what is it?

REPLY.

You should be examined. Of course you have dropsy, but what is that? You need to know what is wrong.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

NATIONAL CONVENTIONS

REPUBLICAN—1892.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 10.—President Harrison was today renominated on the first ballot by the Republican national convention on a platform of protection and reciprocity. The result had been inevitable for the past two days. Whitelaw Reid of New York was nominated for Vice President.

The party leaders, gathered in the great Minneapolis convention hall, sat four days before making their choice, so the outcome may fairly be set down as the convention's deliberate judgment. There have been some circumstances to be deplored, but the ticket has what the politicians call good running qualities. It is true that the opinion of the delegates who renominated Gen. Harrison was that Mr. Blaine was the strongest candidate the party could name.

The presence of federal officeholders in and around the convention was a disagreeable incident, but its influence was exaggerated.

DEMOCRATIC—1892.

Chicago, June 23.—Grover Cleveland is for the third time the nominee of his party for the presidency. The Democratic national convention made him its candidate at 3:30 o'clock this morning after a continuous session of eleven hours in the Wigwam on Michigan avenue between Washington and Madison streets. He secured the necessary two-thirds vote on the first ballot by the time the territories were reached, so the nomination was made by acclamation.

The opposition made a bitter struggle to hold together one-third of the convention, with the idea that if this could be done for a couple of ballots the elements could unite on a new man, but the Cleveland votes were too well in hand.

Mr. Cleveland's managers, however, suffered a terrific setback in trying to force on the convention a tariff straddle. Delegates wanted advanced tariff reform and they upset a plank which there was every reason to believe had been drafted by Mr. Cleveland. The plank adopted is a radical tariff for revenue only, which comes dangerously near to free trade.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 20, 1916.

WASHINGTON.—Ambassador Page at London cabled the state department tonight that the sentence of Jeremiah C. Lynch, the naturalized American convicted of complicity in the Dublin uprising, has not been confirmed, but that in accordance with instructions from Secretary Lansing the British government had been asked to suspend the infliction of any punishment pending an investigation.

PORTLAND, Ore.—Justice Charles E. Hughes of the United States Supreme court is leading in the Oregon primary preference vote for Republican nominee for President. Oregon is the only state in which Justice Hughes' name has been printed on the Republican ballot.

CHICAGO.—The old fashioned waltz—the kind that made the "Beautiful Blue Danube" famous—is coming back. So is the polka, whose rollicking cadences went to an untimely grave when ragtime was just emerging from the song publishers' incubator. The Chicago Association of Dancing Masters so decreed at its annual banquet.

WASHINGTON.—Japan is getting ready to take over a part, if not all, of China as a result of the revolution and other disturbances which are rending the oriental republic. Administration officials are watching the developments closely, realizing that at almost any time the United States will be confronted with the necessity of defining its attitude toward Japanese designs upon China.

BERLIN.—An Austrian offensive south and southeast of Rovereto is making progress daily. The Austrian front already has advanced five miles in places. Southeast of Monfalcone the Italians attempted to recapture positions near Bagni which they lost recently, but they were repulsed.

LONDON.—Violent fighting was resumed in the Verdun region when the Germans attacked both east and west of the Meuse. Berlin reports that French trenches on both sides of the Haucourt-Esnes high road have been recaptured. Paris says the attacks on the main were unsuccessful.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

Was Shakespeare a greater dramatist than Sophocles?

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION:

What is the importance of Copernicus?

ANSWER:

A few Greeks had believed that the earth revolved on its axis and that it and the planets revolved about the sun, but the theory that the earth was fixed as the center of the universe was generally accepted till the 16th century. By bringing forward convincing arguments for the views that the sun was the center of the solar system, Copernicus revolutionized astronomy and gave a great impetus to astronomical study. Furthermore, by seeming to displace the home of mankind from the central place in the universe he opened the way for doubts as to whether God had created the entire universe for the benefit of man.

OVERHANGING BRANCHES.

Chicago, May 16.—[Friend of the People.]—In our alley are some trees which grow on a slant over the alley. They create a very dangerous condition for motorists, as they are too low to clear the top of a car if you keep to the right side of the alley, which is necessary when passing a car coming from the opposite direction. Anything that can be done regarding this will be appreciated.

Report is made that branches of trees along alley line have been trimmed. Motorists having occasion to use this alley in the future should have no further trouble.

READER, WHAT DO YOU THINK!

Harvey, Ill., May 18.—It seems to me that every citizen of Illinois, if he thinks honestly, must agree with your editorial entitled, "Congressman Rainey Asks Some Questions," that appeared in yesterday's TRIBUNE.

I cannot help but feel that the naval training station on the north shore is accomplishing very little good, and that a considerable sum of money could be saved to our navy department if this station was closed up.

I think possibly you might have gone one step further and advocated the repeal of the million dollar appropriation recently made for the construction of the federal building at the Century of Progress.

I personally would be very much in favor of postponing the opening of the Century of Progress until 1934 or 1935 or at least until general conditions in this country are much improved over what they are are now. It would be a great mistake to open the fair in 1933.

I would be very much pleased to have your comments as to whether or not you agree with me on this matter.

L. M. VILES.

A LETTER TO MR. RAINEY.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 16.—On the subject of your editorial in Sunday's issue, let me say that I, too, contributed to the heaviness of Mr. Rainey's mail. Extracts from my letters are as follows:

Is it not apparent that the country can stand no further taxes of any kind whatsoever? To be sure, the budget must be balanced. It will not be balanced by imposing additional taxes which will never be collected. Why not adopt the simple and obvious method of balancing the budget by reducing expenditures? The following are only a few of the useless, expensive, and wasteful activities of the federal government which can be either abandoned or abolished to the lasting benefit of the country and the saving of billions in expenditures:

Department of commerce, department of labor, department of agriculture or department of interior, federal farm board, interstate commerce commission, railway wage board, railway valuation, tariff commission, federal trade commission, Boulder dam project, protective features of customs tariff, prohibition enforcement, pensions or bonuses to the uninjured.

I concede that communism or something worse is imminent, but it will be brought about, not by failure to levy additional taxes, but by failure to reduce expenditures.

The well of taxation in this country is dry. The only active business left is that of selling tax exempt bonds of local municipal corporations, into which there is fleeing what little circulating capital remains. I believe it was Colbert who said that the problem in taxation is to get the maximum of feathers from the goose with the minimum of squawking. Our policy seems to be: pluck all the feathers from the goose and never heed the squawking.

Colbert's policy deferred the French revolution by about a century. We may not be so fortunate.

NATHAN GLICKSMAN.

ASK SOME TAXPAYER.

Chicago, May 12.—I wonder why it is that the fee for playing golf at Lincoln park has been increased from 15c for 9 holes to 20c. With the depression on, it seems that the fee should be reduced in keeping with reduction of all other commodities as of today. E. K.

CONFIDENCE IN THE PEOPLE.

Chicago, May 15.—The financing by the government of projects to give employment to the jobless is an acknowledgment by congress that it has lost confidence in the people's ability to recuperate and that they are not able to work out their own salvation, but must resort to unsound methods of governmental interference, which in the past have proven a failure, and there is no reason to believe that this method will not again prove a boomerang. Any political action of this nature must of necessity be based on patronage, favoritism and discriminations, and will create dissatisfaction and loss of confidence in our institutions. It is only another word for the dole—which has wrecked England and has caused the recent riots in New Zealand.

It is my humble opinion that if the government will take its nose out of commercial affairs, reduce its overhead, get back to fundamentals, and if it must do something, try to stop unfair trade practices among financial interests, we will finally work out of this lamentable affair some of these days by ourselves if let alone.

When Thomas Jefferson returned from Europe as minister to France he said that the reason that Europe could make no great material progress was that they were too heavily taxed. We are fast going the same route, and if these enormous appropriations go through we must certainly flounder under a ruinous debt burden. Our money is now the best money in the world; it is the most valuable, and I would not jeopardize it by some dangerous experiments.

JESSE J. ADLER.

TOMBSTONES.

New York, May 12.—I am making a study of old and curious epitaphs to be found in graveyards throughout the United States. I know there must be many cemeteries in and near Chicago that would yield interesting material, and if any of your readers are in a position to send me copies of such inscriptions as strike their fancy I should be very grateful. I should like the following information in addition to each epitaph: name of deceased, dates of birth and death, location of cemetery. I should also like to have copies of epitaphs of persons prominent in the history of our country who are buried in the vicinity.

FLORENCE LIPKIN,
519 W. 121st street.

DICK TRACY'S INACCURACIES.

Chicago, May 13.—The Dick Tracy cartoon is about the dumbest of them all. At first Heinie, the German grocer, was a "Dutchman" and now the Norwegian sailors are "herring jockeys." Chester Gould will be surprised to learn that a Dutchman is a Hollander, whereas he wished to depict a German. And of all the nations, to pick Norwegian sailors as ignorant of English is a joke. Norwegian ships ply all oceans and the knowledge of English among all Norwegians, both in Norway and at sea, is universal.

PERIODICALS.

Chicago, May 14.—In the periodical reading room of the Chicago public library is a sign to the effect that all current periodicals and newspapers have been discontinued because of lack of funds, thereby destroying, I should say, at least one-third of the usefulness of the library. The salary of one employé would more than cover the cost of subscriptions to all the magazines needed to make this room some good to the public.

IRISH DAIL PASSES DE VALERA BILL TO ABOLISH OATH

Vote Is 77 to 69; Measure Now Up to Senate.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, May 19.—President Eamon de Valera's bill to abolish the oath of allegiance to the king passed on final reading tonight in the Dail Eireann. The vote was 77 to 69 and represented the alignment of Labor with the government [Fianna Fail] against the opposition, whose leader is former President William T. Cosgrave. The bill now goes to the senate, which meets next Wednesday and whose attitude is uncertain.

The measure was passed unchanged from its original form, which, besides abolishing the oath, would remove a section of the Free State constitution which declares that anything in the constitution repugnant to the Anglo-Irish treaty shall be null and void.

Defeat Opposition Amendments.

The opposition, marshaled by Patrick McGilligan, a minister in the former Cosgrave cabinet, attempted to insert two amendments to nullify the measure, but both were defeated by identical divisions, which presaged the final victory for the government.

The bill, if finally approved, will delete the oath as required in the Anglo-Irish treaty of 1921. The oath is required of all deputies entering the dail and has been a point of contention as long as it has been imposed, some deputies taking it with mental reservations and others refusing to enter the dail because of the requirement.

Filed as "Agreement."

The treaty, filed in English archives as an "agreement for a treaty," became operative through passage of the Westminster statute of the English parliament and adoption by the dail of the Free State constitution, which contained the conditions required by the "agreement." Once later Britain denied that the agreement should be ranked as a treaty. That was at the time of the Free State's application for admission to the league of nations.

J. H. Thomas, minister of dominions in the British cabinet, answering a question in the British house of commons during debate over the De Valera bill, said that if it is finally passed that act will be considered an abrogation of the treaty, and "with grave concern."

Opposition Assails Measure.

The opposition's first attack today was in the form of an amendment to declare the Anglo-Irish treaty to be a superior instrument which could not be touched by action to remove the oath from the constitution.

When this failed, another was offered, aimed to preserve the rights of public servants transferred from the British government to the Free State after the signing of the treaty. Both amendments failed, 77 to 69.

Threaten to Shut Factories.

DUBLIN, May 19.—(AP)—The big tobacco combines warned the Free State government today that unless the proposed increased duty of one shilling two pence [about twenty cents] per pound on tobacco, announced in the new budget, is eased materially, they will close their Dublin factories.

BEGIN PLOWING OF GARDENS FOR EVANSTON POOR

Garden plots at Monroe street and Dodge avenue in Evanston were allotted to needy families yesterday as portions of the 100 acre tract were plowed and prepared with the cooperation of the Evanston Lions club and the Cook County Joint Emergency Relief fund committee.

The gardens staked out yesterday are 90 by 20 feet. Each family was given a packet of seeds for eighteen kinds of vegetables and one or more members of each of the families began work on their gardens. As many as 200 families may be provided with plots, it was announced yesterday. Allotments are being restricted largely to needy families which have been receiving aid from the city.

Constable Falls Dead in Race Track Ticket Line

Constable Fred Sellars, 52 years old, of 194 Aikenside road, Riverside, fell dead yesterday while waiting in line to purchase a ticket to Sportsman's Park, the Cicero race track. He was at the 52d avenue entrance when stricken by a heart attack. Capt. Arthur Wentzel of the Cicero force tried to revive him but he was dead. Sellars is survived by his widow and seven children. One of his sons, Norman Sellars, is a policeman assigned to the Grand Crossing station.

SABATH PROPOSES U. S. BUY AIR MAIL FIELD AT 22D ST.

Representative Sabath [Dem., Ill.] yesterday introduced a bill in congress providing for the purchase by the government of a site for an air mail airport in Chicago, according to dispatches. The site is bounded by Ashland avenue, Loomis and 22d streets and the Chicago river. Two canals, the Arnold and the Stetson, extend nearly the entire length of the tract, which is one-fourth of a mile wide and one-half mile long.

R. S. Brauer, in charge of air mail in Chicago, last night denied that an air mail airport is needed.

Show $13,000,000 Kept by Parent Company.

That the American Telephone and Telegraph company sold telephone instruments to the Illinois Bell Telephone company in 1927 and retained a $13,000,000 depreciation fund, originally put up as part rental for the instruments, was brought out yesterday in the telephone rate case before Federal Judge Wilkerson.

The cross-examination of Charles H. Heiss, controller of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, by Attorney Benjamin F. Goldstein, special counsel for the city, revealed the point.

As traced by Goldstein, the telephone instruments used by the Illinois Bell and its associated companies were rented from the American Telephone and Telegraph company and a $13,000,000 fund was included in the rental for depreciation. On Dec. 31, 1927, the same instruments were sold to the Illinois Bell company and the $13,000,000 was retained by the parent company in its surplus.

Attorneys Goldstein and George I. Haight maintain that if the fund had been returned to the Illinois Bell there would have been no necessity of that company raising a similar fund for depreciation, and the phone rates for certain classes of service could have been lowered.

Quizzing to Continue Today.

The cross-examination of Heiss will continue this morning on the cost to the subsidiary company of service given it by the American Telephone and Telegraph company.

The hearing is being held in accordance with the ruling of the United States Supreme court, which heard the case late in 1930 and sent it back to the District court for additional evidence.

The city is fighting the Illinois Bell Telephone company's efforts to make permanent a temporary injunction restraining the Illinois commerce commission from putting into effect lower rates for several coin box services. The commission's order was issued in 1923 and the case has been in the courts since then.

LETS MRS. KEGEL SEE CHILD ON ALTERNATE DAYS

Judge Issues Order After Boy Visits Her.

Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude ordered yesterday that Bobby Kegel, 5 year old foster son of Dr. Arnold H. Kegel, former health commissioner, and Mrs. Marie Sahlin Kegel, be taken to see Mrs. Kegel every other day. The child has been in Dr. Kegel's custody since the physician started divorce proceedings eight months ago charging that his wife attempted to poison him.

Dr. Kegel took Bobby, a shy, blond child, before Judge Trude yesterday in response to a petition by Leo O'Reilly, Mrs. Kegel's attorney, that she be permitted to receive visits from the boy. She is a patient in a private hospital on the north side.

"Bobby, this is Judge Trude," said Dr. Kegel, hoisting the lad to the rail before the judge's bench.

"Hello," said Bobby in a faint voice.

"Bobby, do you want to see your mother?" asked Judge Trude.

"Naw," replied Bobby.

"Your honor," said Dr. Kegel, "we haven't talked to the boy about his mother at all. We haven't mentioned her to him for eight months."

Judge Trude ordered that Mrs. Margaret Donar, in charge of social service workers in the alimony department of the court, accompany the boy to see Mrs. Kegel in the afternoon, and report on Bobby's behavior at the meeting. They returned to the courtroom later.

"They had a very affectionate meeting," Mrs. Donar reported.

Judge Trude then ordered that Dr. Kegel retain custody of the child, but instructed that Mrs. Donar make arrangements to take Bobby to see his foster-mother every other day.

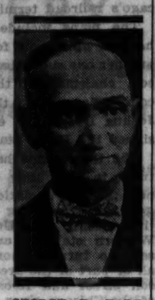
Mayor Dale Tells Court Rum Trial Has Made Him Dry Foe

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., May 19.—[Special.]—Mayor George R. Dale was a vigorous but almost intractable witness in his own behalf as the so-called Muncie liquor conspiracy trial neared a conclusion in federal court here today.



GEORGE R. DALE.

The mayor, a crusader against the Ku Klux Klan and other manifestations of Indiana intolerance for nearly 40 years, roared his contempt of the prohibition law and bellowed a categorical denial of the various charges brought against him.

It had seemed a formidable task for the mayor to cleanse himself of all the muck the government had smeared upon him, but the 65 year old Dale, father of seven, acquitted himself pretty well.

Denies Commission on Booze.

Federal Judge Robert C. Baltzell, United States Attorney George R. Jeffrey and his own lawyer, all cautioned him at various times against the vehemence of his responses but the mayor would not be subdued.

"Did you ever receive 45 per cent commission from the bootleggers your administration is accused of protecting?" he was asked.

"No, I did not," he barked. The lawyer cautioned him to moderate his tone.

"Did you drink liquor and were you intoxicated at the Muncie policemen's ball?" the lawyer continued. Earlier witnesses had testified there were 2,000 persons at the ball.

"No, I did not," the mayor roared. "If I had, every man, woman and child in Muncie would have known about it."

Dale admitted paying two visits to the hotel room where the Delaware county delegation held a caucus during the 1930 Democratic state convention, but denied providing or consuming any liquor there.

"I brought Mrs. Dale to the convention," he asserted, "and we had our own room. I was in the caucus room but didn't touch a drop of liquor there."

Shouts His Replies.

"On direct examination you said you had personal knowledge that the bootlegger, Corbett Johnson, quit Muncie for Hartford City soon after you took office, so I take it you were at Johnson's house at some time," Jeffrey suggested.

"O, you do, do you?" Dale demanded fiercely. "Well, I was never at Johnson's house at any time."

Q.—But you do drink whisky and intoxicating liquor?

A.—No, I never have.

Q.—You are bitterly opposed to the prohibition law, aren't you?

Dale considered the question a moment; then, with a rising inflection, roared an answer that set the prosecutor back in his chair.

"Yes, I am, since this case came up!" he shouted.

TWO ENVELOPES FIGURE IN GRAFT QUIZ IN NEW YORK

Hastings Also Attempts to Square Himself.

New York, May 19.—[Special.]—State Senator John A. Hastings began his effort to set himself right with the Hofstadter legislative committee today, after Fred C. Harris, secretary of the Bank of Manhattan Trust company, contributed a new chapter to the odyssey of Russell T. Sherwood, Mayor James J. Walker's missing business agent.

Two days after he was subpoenaed by Samuel Seabury, chief counsel of the committee, Harris testified, Sherwood withdrew from the vaults of the Manhattan company "two sealed envelopes, contents unknown," and left the state. Later he wrote from Chicago, asking Harris to go to the safe deposit box he shared with the mayor and send him the "will" which he would find there.

The word "will" was underlined. Harris did as his friend requested, but the emphasis placed on the will was puzzling because the bank official said there was nothing else in the box except some "paper clips and rubber bands."

Received Letter from Sherwood.

Subsequently, Harris admitted, he received a letter from Sherwood in Mexico City and telephoned him there to congratulate him on his marriage. Such matters as subpoenaes and contempt proceedings were never mentioned, and on the several occasions when Harris sought out the mayor, he said, Sherwood was not discussed.

It was late in the afternoon, after Barron G. Collier, head of Outdoor and Street Car Advertising companies, had explained that he had employed Senator Hastings at $10,000 a year as a "gladhand man," or "go-between" to supply tips on potential advertisers, that the Brooklyn senator was called.

Senator Testifies.

It was only a few minutes before the committee adjourned until tomorrow when Mr. Seabury asked his first question about the Equitable Coach company, whose backers referred to Mayor Walker as "the boy friend."

Hastings freely admitted he had expected to receive some stock in the Equitable company but he explained he was to get it, not as a gift, but in exchange for stock he owned in the Queens Bus company, of which he was an officer.

The senator admitted that his occupation was given as a broker in the legislative manual although it no longer describes his occupation correctly.

"I'm not a broker, just broke," he said.

Drew $18,000 Yearly.

Mr. Seabury reminded him that B. M. Seymour, vice president of the Terminal Taxicab company, had him in his employ at $18,000 a year until last fall when his salary was cut to $10,000, and asked him why he had not mentioned that fact when testifying before other tribunals inquiring into his sources of income.

The senator's explanation was involved. He had not always received his pay from the taxicab company on the first of the month, and what with all the talk of depression and curtailment of expenses he never knew from one day to the next whether he had a job or not. That, he said, was why he failed to mention the matter.

The examination of Senator Hastings will be continued tomorrow.

Aldermen Hear Three Plans to Combine Rail Terminals

E. J. Noonan, consulting engineer for the city council committee on railway terminals, yesterday submitted to the committee an analysis of three proposed plans for solving Chicago's railroad terminal problems.

The plans include the one which he drew up himself for the committee, another one suggested by James Simpson, chairman of the Chicago Plan commission, and a third proposed by Joshua D'Esposito, engineer who designed the Union station.

The three plans have common features in that they seek to arrange new terminal facilities for all passenger roads entering Chicago except those using the Union and North Western stations, and in that they seek to turn to more profitable use all or part of the area between Harrison street and Roosevelt road, east of the Chicago river, where the maze of railroad tracks has been a barrier to southward expansion of the loop for more than 25 years.

The Three Proposed Plans.

Mr. Noonan proposed to concentrate passenger facilities of the south side railroads in two new stations, one on the site of the present Illinois Central terminal at Roosevelt road, and the other on Harrison street between La Salle and Wells streets. Mr. Simpson proposed that the Illinois Central construct a terminal north of its present Randolph street suburban terminal, for all of the south side roads.

Mr. D'Esposito suggested that terminal facilities of all railroads between the river and State street be concentrated in a new passenger station south of Roosevelt road, between State and Clark streets.

The three plans also call for rearrangement of freight terminal facilities which would make it possible to open Market, Franklin, Wells, La Salle, and Dearborn streets south to Roosevelt road, with that area cleared of railroad tracks and opened to business development. With an eye to the present financial distress of railroads, the plans all urge that profits on the sale of this land, and in Mr. Simpson's plan, from the development of Illinois Central air rights east of Michigan avenue, would defray all or a large part of the expense involved.

Calls Simpson Plan Feasible.

Mr. Simpson's plan is entirely feasible from an engineering standpoint, Mr. Noonan told the aldermen, and in addition, he said, it avoids complications of ownership which caused a similar proposal to be dropped a number of years ago.

"Our studies," he said, "indicate the general plan submitted would probably provide sufficient capacity for the roads which might use this station north of Grant park. Some additional area would probably be required for proper development of mail and express facilities, but there is ample area available.

The statement was made by Mr. Simpson that the Illinois Central right of way through Grant park is sufficient for approach tracks to the station, as well as approach tracks for freight development. Our studies indicate that this is not quite true. However, we do not believe this presents any serious difficulty, as such additional right of way could be acquired at levels which would permit the area to be covered and used for park purposes."

Recalls Old Objections.

Mr. Noonan recalled to the committee that Mr. D'Esposito's plan was open to objections of long standing, which were first raised when the Chicago Plan, prepared by D. H. Burnham in 1908, proposed a series of passenger terminals south of Roosevelt road.

"It has the objection," Noonan said, "looking into the future, that if it is accomplished it simply has the effect of moving the barrier from Harrison street to Roosevelt road.

"There will undoubtedly be objections on the part of the railroads, particularly the New York Central and Rock Island, to the removal of their present passenger stations which they consider to be in a preferential location to a location as far south as Roosevelt road. However, it might be that with proper coördination of rapid transit and high speed vehicle ways, the latter location might be shown to be readily acceptable to patrons of the station."

The committee will meet again next Thursday to hear representatives of business organizations.

George Milulis, 34 years old, a member of a gang of robbers who on Dec. 15, 1931, invaded the rectory of Holy Trinity Catholic church, 1118 Noble street, and robbed the Rev. Casimir Sztucko, the pastor, of $720 and a revolver, was found guilty yesterday by a jury in Judge George Fred Rush's Criminal court. He will be sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary if his new trial motion is overruled on May 27.

Two other alleged members of the gang were liberated. Daniel Kaydash, 31 years old, who was reported to have made a confession which he refused to sign, was found not guilty after Attorney Thaddeus C. Toudor charged that his client was coerced into making his statement, which involved Sam Karnowski. Assistant State's Attorney Harry Busch nol prossed the case against Karnowski for lack of evidence. Mike Lissok, another defendant, was granted a separate trial.

Another suspect, Kenneth Monroe, was killed by the police when he was caught in another robbery. Mrs. Cecelia Milulis, who was charged with helping the gang gain entrance to the rectory, was convicted in another case by the federal authorities.

WITNESS TELLS OF BANK LOANS TO CHRIS PASCHEN

Chris Paschen's lawyers began late yesterday to support their claims that large sums credited to Paschen's account in the Foreman National bank in 1927 and 1928 were loans repaid in 3 or 60 days and not new income. Evidence to this effect was presented before Federal Judge John P. Barnes, where the former building commissioner is on trial on charges of evading $114,000 income taxes.

James B. Galligan, former head of the discount department of the Foreman bank, called by Attorney Cassius Poust for the defense, testified that in the first eleven months of 1927 the bank loaned Paschen $500,000 on 30 and 60 day notes at 5 and 5½ per cent. The witness had not finished when court adjourned and Poust told reporters that the total borrowed by Paschen in 1927 would be shown this morning as $666,500. The 1928 loans, he said, totaled $1,141,500.

The only other witness heard during the day was Gilbert Meyer, another Foreman bank employé, who went into detail as to deposits made in Paschen's accounts at the bank, as well as errors made by clerks in crediting and debiting sums on the balance sheets. These errors, he told Assistant United States Attorney Dwight H. Green, did not affect the daily balances, being corrected shortly after they had been made.

THERE'S WISDOM IN STAR GAZING, DR. FROST SAYS

Blind Scholar Urges All to Study Heavens.

In searching the universe with sightless eyes, Prof. Edwin Brant Frost, director of Yerkes observatory of the University of Chicago, has read secrets unknown by those who have eyes and see not. Last night before the annual meeting of the Chicago Astronomical society in the Adler Planetarium, he urged men of sight to study the heavens to solve mysteries of all creation.

The family life of stars and worlds is no fallow field, said Prof. Frost, who on July 14 will observe his 66th birthday. Among his "old friends," the stars, he said, is an inexhaustible adventurous knowledge for the amateur as well as the professional astronomer.

"Professors at observatories with huge telescopes have not the time to keep that watch of the sky which is desirable," Prof. Frost said. "Even objects under attention for many years carry secrets as they swirl in their orbits.

Amateur Makes a Discovery.

"Not so long ago an amateur, the Rev. Mr. Anderson, a Scotch minister, observed from his manse a red star that had no business to be where it was. Timidly he forwarded his observation to an astronomical society. The discovery was electrical to astronomers—a new nova, a star which flares up and fades away to its former magnitude. Others are needed to explore the distanceless spaces."

No star is fully observed, Prof. Frost declared. He pointed to observations of the star Mira, an old acquaintance of astronomers, which was recently found to have a companion star, visible only at great intervals for a short space of time.

Other stars studied as in one instance by one astronomer over a period of 42 years have been found to have companion stars. Such discoveries have been made through a new science, astrophysics, an application of physics to astronomy.

How a New Star Is Found.

"By studying a star through a spectroscope the lines of the spectroscope have been found to change," Prof. Frost said. "The lines of the star in the background shine through the lines of the known star in the foreground. The scarf about a star has been seen in the process of absorption in the lines of a companion star.

"Recently an amateur discovered a new asteroid, which was named Hector—though most asteroids are female by name—because it was found far afield. The result has been that larger telescopes have found a multitude of asteroids, so that corner of the universe has been peopled with a multitude of heroes of Troy under the generic title of the Trojan group.

"In a Belgian observatory several weeks ago a streak was found across a photographic plate. Further observations disclosed a body nearer to the earth than previous observations had uncovered.

Chance Opens Way to Knowledge.

"This asteroid was 9,000,000 miles off. Almost simultaneously at Heidelberg another asteroid only 5,000,000 miles off was discovered. Calculations on the latter have not yet been completed, but from the two asteroids by comparison with the known distance of another, Eros, astronomers hope to fix the exact distance of the sun from the earth. You know, we cannot fix the distance within 50,000 miles. That is an awful admission for an astronomer.

"Many such discoveries have been made by mere chance. There will never be any exhaustion of splendors and mysteries of the heavens."

The Chicago Astronomical society, organized in 1863, is the oldest in the world, except for the Royal Astronomical society of England. MIKADO'S AGED ADVISER STRIVES TO EASE CRISIS

Last of Elder Statesmen Arrives in Tokio.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, May 20.—[Friday.]—Koreikiyo Takahashi, acting Japanese premier, called on Prince Saionji, last of the elder statesmen, this morning on the nation's political crisis. The aged prince arrived in Tokio yesterday to help solve the most difficult problem Japan has faced since 1870 when clan chief's surrendered their authority to the emperor, resulting in a united Japan.

KIRABURO SUZUKI.

The prince primarily came to Tokio to advise Emperor Hirohito on the governmental crisis following the assassination of Premier Tsuyoshi Mukai and to recommend to the mikado his choice for premier.

Gen. Sadao Araki, minister of war in the resigned Seiyukai party cabinet, was also scheduled to see the prince this morning, while Count Shinken Makino, lord keeper of the privy seal, will call upon the elder statesman this afternoon.

Intense opposition is growing in the army to a party government, while Kisaburo Suzuki, new president of the Seiyukai party, is holding out for a purely Seiyukai cabinet, making Prince Saionji's position extremely difficult. It is, therefore, unlikely that he will visit the emperor today.

Simple Rites for Inukai.

TOKIO, May 19.—(AP)—Political leaders today eulogized the late Premier Tsuyoshi Inukai, victim of assassins, at a simple Buddhist funeral. Five hundred of Japan's leading public men attended the funeral, which was private. It was conducted in the residence where he was shot down last Sunday by a group of young cadets and naval ensigns.

League Envoys View Battle.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

HARBIN, May 19.—The proximity of war was brought forcibly to the attention of members of the league of nations investigation commission last night when blazing buildings on the battlefront a few miles north of this city lit up the sky. A number of members of the league party joined thousands of Harbin residents watching the spectacle.

The fighting started at Sungpo Saturday, when Gen. Ma Chan-shan launched a fierce attack against the Japanese forces and is continuing it unabated. The Japanese are making little headway in meeting it, despite reinforcements.

LITHUANIA PICKS NEW GOVERNOR FOR MEMEL-LAND

KAUNAS, Lithuania, May 19.—(AP)—V. Gylys, consul general at London, was appointed governor of the Memel territory today by President Antanas Smetona of Lithuania.

The resignation of the Memel directorate headed by Edouard Simaitis is expected within the next few days as a result of the huge election majority polled by German residents of Memel in the recent voting.

Simaitis formed a government to administer Memel-land in February after Otto Boettcher, a German, had been ousted from the post because the Lithuanian administration considered his relations with Germany to be too close. Memel is administered by a special government under Lithuania in accordance with arrangements made by the league of nations. The territory was German before the war.

James Smith, who died at Box, Somerset, England, in his 85th year, was the oldest gunner, having served in the artillery in the Crimea and Indian mutiny, and at the battle of Inkerman.

2 NEW BISHOPS ARE SELECTED BY METHODISTS

Elected After 5 Days of Balloting.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 19.—(AP)—The general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church filled its two episcopal vacancies today by electing J. Ralph Magee of Seattle, Wash., and Ralph S. Cushman of Rochester, N. Y., to the board of bishops.

The elections were made with but one ballot intervening. Bishop Magee was elected on the seventeenth ballot and Bishop Cushman received the necessary two-thirds majority on the nineteenth ballot, cast in the evening session. The elections came in the fifth day of balloting.

Each of the bishops-elect has served his church for 20 years in the ministry, and each will be formerly consecrated to the episcopacy at a service on Sunday.

Read Hoover Message.

Following upon Bishop Cushman's election, a message was read from President Hoover thanking the delegates for their prayers and spiritual support.

"The organized spiritual forces of the people," the President said, "have a vital part in shaping the vision of the nation at all times, and never more so than in periods of especial difficulty and strain."

Election Is Popular.

The election of Magee seemed a popular one with the delegates. Magee is the son of a Methodist minister and the father of another Methodist minister. He has two brothers, one a minister in Pittsburgh.

He was born in Maquoketa, Ia., June 3, 1880.

Born in Poultney, Vt., in 1879, Cushman began his ministry in New England and later was transferred to the Central New York conference. He became pastor of the First Methodist church at Geneva, N. Y., where he attracted wide attention by his "stewardship campaign" which saved his parish from financial ruin.

Cushman was appointed to his Rochester pastorate in 1920. He is the author of several books, his latest being a devotional work entitled "Spiritual Hilltops."

COMPLETE JURY TO TRY TILTON AS CANCER QUACK

A jury was completed yesterday to try "Old Doc" Lester Tilton, and two co-defendants, on charges of conspiracy to violate the public health laws. Tilton, with Harry de Joannis, a promoter, and Dr. Joseph Duffy, is on trial in the Criminal court of Judge Rudolph F. Desort.

Assistant State's Attorney Charles A. Bellows will make the opening statement for the prosecution this morning. He said that 50 to 100 prosecution witnesses, many of them patients of Tilton, would be called to the stand. The defense announced that it would call 87 defense witnesses in an effort to prove that the Tilton cancer cure was effective.

SURPRISE FOR HUBBY WHO SPIED ON WIFE VIA FIRE ESCAPE

New York, May 19.—[Special.]—William Sinton Steele, described as a Chicago manufacturer, who had used a fire escape to confront his wife and another man in an apartment in West 43d street, got the surprise of his life in Supreme court today.

The unidentified co-respondent took the witness stand, said he was Carlyle Williamson, and gazed reprovingly at the irate divorce seeking husband.

"I wasn't making love to your wife," Williamson said. "I'd been drinking, and I passed out."

"You mean you were unconscious from the effects of alcohol?" asked counsel for Mrs. Maud Osborne Steele.

"I don't like to admit it," Williamson admitted, "but liquor sometimes affects me that way."

Steele, his secretary, Miss Jessie Ramsay and private detectives had said they found Williamson and Mrs. Steele together in a fifth floor suite. Mrs. Steele and Williamson were asleep. She wakened. Williamson kept right on slumbering. He explained today that he and another man and woman had been calling upon Mrs. Steele. The others left and he collapsed for several hours.

Return Machine Parts Stolen Five Years Ago

Five years ago a burglar broke a window in the plant of the H. L. Fisher Manufacturing company, 4100 Ravenswood avenue, and stole $150 worth of machinery tools. Yesterday a package appeared at the door of the plant. After some suspicion of a bomb, employes opened it. They found the long missing parts, still in fairly good condition, and an anonymous note thanking the company for the use of them.

PEORIA KIDNAP TRIAL HELD UP AS ATTORNEYS ROW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Peoria, Ill., May 19.—[Special.]—The Parker kidnaping trial lapsed into the doldrums again today, with the jury excluded during an entire session devoted to the question of whether a 17 year old boy, Dean Stoops, was battered by six 200 pound Peoria policemen.

All of this was to determine whether casual remarks made by the boy to Grover Helm, his father's landlord, were prompted by duress and hence inadmissable. The ruling of Judge Henry F. Ingram, however, also applied to a written confession made by the boy, and the ruling was: "The court finds that the confession was free and voluntary and competent."

This ruling is considered an important victory by the state, since eight other formal statements made by other defendants are to be introduced later, but the same procedure will have to be followed.

Mr. Helm, a wholesale grocer of Bloomington and owner of the Ray Stoops farm in the Spring lake bottoms, where Dr. James W. Parker was held captive for 18 days while his twelve abductors sought $50,000 ransom, was to testify that the boy told him about being at the farm and carrying up food to the physician.

In the absence of the jury young Stoops took the stand.

"They hit me in the stomach and in the chest," he said. "One of them picked me up by the hair [demonstrating by grasping his sunburned locks] and dragged me around the room. They told me if I would make a statement it would help my mother."

Mr. Helm testified that he saw nothing unusual about the boy's condition when he talked with him an hour after the statement was made. He also said the youth made no mention of being mistreated. Dr. Parker testified likewise.

PICNICS OF 1932 TO HAVE STYLES ALL THEIR OWN

Latest Gadgets Make Less Work, More Fun.

BY JEAN GUTHRIE.

The most seductive things about picnics this spring, besides the tantalizing up and comingness of everything, and the songsters who will shout out their love affairs and defy mere humans to compete with their line—the other most seductive things, I say, are the up to the dot picnic gadgets that flirt with prospective customers in department stores all over town.

Perhaps you thought you wished to go native, cook over a wigwam fire, use hot stones for egg cookers, flat stones for seats, and sumac shoots for weiner roasts. But wait till you talk with the sympathetic equipment clerk!

The Latest for Picnics.

The old picnic inconveniences are still permissible and clung to by some misnamed lovers of "the simple life"—she'll grant you that. But—they're certainly not the latest thing nor necessarily the most sensible. For instance—and she's off. New roasters, toasters, steak broilers, and bottle corks. Arm baskets for two and auto cases for whole families. Oil cloth cushions and sponge rubber ground pads to protect the seaterie against recent May sprinkles. Cups that adopt the huddle system and are rewarded by a screw over all top to keep them together and clean. Paper utensils from parfait spoons to salad bowls and back through the whole line of nobby cups, dishes, plates, and "silverware."

There's no doubt about it that 1932 picnics are to have modes and styles all their own, and that while we sometimes suspect that the offered gadget would be hardly more than amusing excess luggage, there are certainly many picnic accessories now on the market which will make outings, from twosy marshmallow roasts to mass production Sunday school picnics and week-end camping trips, more practical, less work, and greater fun for everybody.

Bake from Inside Out.

Gadget No. 1, a contrivance that promises to bake food from the inside out, solves the problem. They may be bought in triplets and each appears to be simply a thin, 1 inch square of metal from one flat side of which protrudes a sturdy 3 inch metal skewer. Actually they are made of aluminum, an excellent heat conductor, and when one or more of these skewers is inserted into a large potato, an apple, or a piece of meat to be roasted, presto! dinner is "on the ground" in half the usual time. These neat interior cookers should solve some of our hurry up meals at home in much the same way, so why not invest in several sets and one for the next bride's shower?

Nonshatterable dish ware which you've been buying in single pieces is another picnic offer. It's a bit nicer than paper service, and yet much lighter and more bang proof than other picnic ware. For the picnicker who goes at it with real swank, there is a reasonably priced auto case fitted up with shatter resistant plates and cups together with the necessary cutlery, salts, peppers, and thermos bottles. You'll also be intrigued if not taken by a generous metal lined and slat covered picnic hamper with a compartment for—ice!

Skillet Now Specializes.

But if you still swear by shoe boxes and paper bags for transporting the eggs, buns, and dogs, and sally forth with merely a skillet hung at your belt line, there's still something the picnic equippers can do for you. The skillet, for instance, has begun to specialize. The latest out has ridges which separate the frying bacon strips from the frying eggs. What's more, the two egg compartments are square and will shape up your egg to fit neatly into a sandwich with no bare spots nor perverse corners to bother with.

And if your belt is stout enough, there is another interesting new hanger on in the form of a miniature broiler. It's a light little affair and sells for a trifle. Its broiler rack is about 6 inches square, just right for four weiners, a section of steak, hamburg, or fresh fish. And give a cheer! Its extensible handle allows him who broils to back off a good two feet from the flames!

While compasses don't appear to relate to food, they have a good bit to do with whether we get home after the food is consumed or even find last year's picnic ground without getting completely lost. Therefore the last outing gadget should be a gift to the car—one of the new floating compasses which screws on a handy surface by the driver and nicely does away with backseat arguments as to just which way is north!

FRESH FOOD SUPPLIES MADE AVAILABLE BY MARKET MANAGEMENT

The constant use of fresh foods is made possible by transport, store and home refrigeration, says Olga Brucher of the New York state college of home economics at Cornell university.

Fresh Pork, Hams, Pot Roast of Beef Economical Buys

In its regular weekly report issued for the guidance of consumers, the committee on marketing information of the Meat Council of Chicago states:

"All cuts of fresh pork, especially fresh hams, are recommended to the housewives of Chicago as economical meat buys over the coming week-end. Another attractive purchase can be found in pot roast of beef, which is selling at relatively low prices at the present time."

FISHIN' WITH OLD UNCLE CHARLIE MEANT GOOD EATS

Was Artist with Both Hook and Frying Pan.

BY ROE FOWLER.

Today I saw a woman who reminded me of Aunt Leila, and that reminded me of Uncle Jack, her husband, and Uncle Charlie, her brother. And thinking of Uncle Charlie reminded me of the swell times I used to have when he would take me fishing with him. Uncle Charlie was about the only one who had any time to pal around with me that way, and I never think of him without getting a fond lump in my throat.

Uncle Charlie not only knew how to catch fish, but how to fry them as well [if not better]. He would get a big double barreled catfish, behead it, perform a few deft incisions and lay the fish open from stem to stern. One proper jerk would remove the spine and with it all the smaller bones, and Uncle Charlie would clean the resulting double flap of meat with his trusty pocket knife, which he always kept scrupulously wiped—as much to prevent rust as for sanitary reasons.

Fried in Cracker Crumbs.

Maybe I've forgotten some of the procedure, because the days were lazy and easy there on the banks of the Big Muddy, or maybe Crab Orchard creek; but I think the next step was to prepare some cracker crumbs in a pan, and roll the fish flaps in them, meanwhile letting the grease get hot in the skillet. Anyway, the real magic lay in the next step. Each of the flaps was then folded back into its natural position, with a slice of good salty bacon occupying the place formerly filled by the spine and other bones. Toothpicks—or small green twigs of willow—served to impale the meat and hold it together. And then the frying!

Bees buzzing round blended their work song with the sizzling of the fish in the skillet, and the fragrance of the flowers blended with the aroma of the bacon grease. Sometimes Uncle Charlie would pin a few leaves of some kind or other to the fish, and they would give a funny good taste to the finished product. I don't know what kind of leaves they were, but they were oval shaped and they grew on a bush. Golly, I can smell that fish frying now. Too bad I don't like fish any more, but it's one of the tastes that I've lost. Tastes do run out on a person that way, or don't yours? Mine do.

World Made Brighter.

In the days with Uncle Charlie I used to get so hungry that I could eat anything—yet I know that wasn't why I liked those fish so well. It was the way he cooked them. He was a real artist. A fish could be proud to be fried by Uncle Charlie. Under his tender ministrations the spiny catfish or the finnny perch became an epitome of flavor—a masterpiece none the less immortal because it went so swiftly into the gullet of oblivion.

He was a simple, kind man. Some day I am going to write a book about him, for he had an interesting and kind of sad life. He belonged to the generation that wore diamond horseshoe tie pins and carried bullseye lamps up rickety stairs. Yet he found the time to be good to a little boy who tagged along on his fishing trips. He would sit on a log, waiting for a bite, and talk Socialism by the hour. In his way, he was a pioneer in thought—for in those days, a Socialist was looked on as a dangerous person. His radicalism, however, went beyond mere social theory. He never said, "Keep still—you'll scare the fish away."

SUMMER PUDDING IS POPULAR DISH IN OLD ENGLAND

You Can Make Them, Too; Try These Recipes.

"When good King Arthur ruled the land,
A goodly king was he,
He took three pecks of barley meal
And made a bag pudding;
A bag pudding the king did make
And filled it full of plums
And in it put two lumps of fat
As big as my two thumbs,
The king and queen did eat thereof
And all the court besides,
And what they could not eat that night
The queen next morning fried."
[Old English nursery rhyme.]

BY PHYLLIS HAMMOND.

We hope it was a nice cold, snowy morning when the queen served this rather concentrated dish to the court, barley meal and lumps of fat not being the most delectable snack for a warm summer day. However, all English puddings are not the sort that make one think of Yuletide feasts with lusty red cheeked puffing servitors bearing blazing bowls of that dish, heavy with nut meats, plums, candied fruit rinds, and spices.

England, like the rest of the world, has become "caloric content conscious," and today the British housewife can turn out a fluffy summer pudding as different from the one of the nursery rhyme as whipped cream is from corn pone.

Muslin Pudding Is a Favorite.

Muslin pudding, light as the cloth its name suggests, is a favorite with the English during the spring and summer season. The grated rinds of two lemons and the strained juice are mixed with the yolks of four eggs, two ounces of castor sugar, two ounces of fresh butter, and a pinch of salt. This mixture is stirred in a saucepan over the fire until near the boiling point. Pour into a basin, let cool, and then stir in the whipped whites of the eggs making a smooth batter.

Butter a pudding mold, fill with the mixture and steam for three-quarters of an hour. Turn out and pour a jelly sauce around the base.

Try Feather Puff.

If you have decided tastes and like unique foods such as alligator pears, caviar, and patie de foie gras try a Somerset feather puff. The ingredients are one large cupful of self-raising flour, one large cup of corn flour, mixed with a teaspoonful of baking powder; one cupful of suet from loin of lamb [taken from the round kidney before cooking]. Mix stiffly with milk. Cover bottom of a well greased pan with currants. Pour in your mixture and steam for two hours. Turn out and serve with a light sirup and Devonshire cream.

First Red Berries Taunt the Appetite

Summer must be around the corner, says Constance Panzarella, 2037 North Leamington avenue, as she admires the first red raspberries to appear in Chicago this spring. They should retail for 25 to 30 cents for a pint box, although they come from as far away as California. The season's greatest supply for Chicago usually comes later from Michigan. These were found in the wholesale house of E. Weinsheimer, 100 South Water market.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

SWEET CORN DEAR BUT LUSCIOUS ON CHICAGO MARKET

First Raspberries Arrive, but Are High, Too.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

Did you ever roast sweet corn over a large bed of glowing coals while a July or August moon was shining overhead and the smoke from the burning wood was just thick enough to discourage mosquitoes?

That may seem an untimely question in May, but there is some sweet corn in a few Chicago stores, somewhat costly even after you find it. The present supply is a forerunner of the luscious mouthfuls that will soon be available for mortals who shy at paying 10 or 15 cents an ear for the first shipments from the southern states.

Raspberries Coming Soon.

There are other early vegetables and fruits that will be increasingly plentiful within a few weeks, but which are comparatively scarce right now. Among them are red raspberries, which will cost you 25 to 30 cents for a pint box.

Cauliflower, too, might be classed among the fresh foods that are most "out of season" and thus fairly high priced. A head of good quality cauliflower costs from 15 to 20 cents.

If you want something else that most persons haven't tasted as yet this year, try a watermelon. They are from 75 cents to a dollar, but it won't be long until Alabama and then Georgia will be sending them here by the carload to follow the present supply of Florida melons.

Tennessee, Arkansas and Mississippi are making sure Chicago gets strawberries aplenty until warmer weather stimulates the demand and forces Indiana, Michigan and Illinois berry patches to ripen their fruit. The quart boxes of berries are taking the place of the pints, now, and the larger quantities are selling around 15 cents per box in retail stores.

Prices on Vegetables.

Eight cents is enough to pay for a head of lettuce, according to present wholesale prices. Spinach, celery and new carrots are fairly low in price. The first named vegetable is worth about 25 cents a peck, celery from five to ten cents a stalk while carrots are priced according to the size of the bunches.

Another fruit that is fairly new for 1932 is the cantaloupe from the California Imperial valley. Medium sized melons will cost you from 25 to 35 cents each. Apples of average good quality for cooking or eating cost about four to five cents a pound or around $2 a bushel; while the fancier apples in boxes are worth five cents an apple, retail, or from $1.75 to $2.60 for a box of several score of the fruit.

Burgoo? It's Southern Dish Made Famous by Race Horse

Louisville, Ky., May 19.—(AP)—It took a horse race to attract the nation's attention to burgoo—a southern delicacy that is as famous in the land of frosted juleps as the potlikker of Louisiana, the gumbo of Mississippi, the yams of Alabama and the hams of Virginia.

When Burgoo King, a blue grass horse with a heart as stout as the food he made famous, won the Kentucky Derby, the public wondered where such a beautiful animal got such an outlandish name. When he finished ahead in the Preakness Saturday and became an immortal in the realm of thoroughbreds that mysterious gastronomic nectar called burgoo rated a menu headline.

The real burgoo king is a man—an artist who uses a ladle for a brush and a pot for a pallet. He is James T. Looney of Lexington, Ky., and has made burgoo for Col. E. R. Bradley's charity racing meets for many years. They call him Looney the Burgoo King and Col. Bradley named one of his colts in honor of the king. The name began with the regulation "B" of the Bradley stables and Burgoo is as typically Kentuckian as Bourbon, blue grass and Burley.

Wild Game, Beef Foundation.

Burgoo is a stew—a pepper hot stew worthy of the tabasco bayous of Louisiana and as nondescript as hash but not quite so democratic. Its foundation is wild game and beef and its trimmings are vegetables—gobs of tomatoes and corn—everything that's nice and savory.

The story goes that years ago when men took pot shots at one another over merits of their horses and dogs, a cotton planter gave a hunt for his friends and asked each what he wanted to eat after the chase.

"Give me gumbo," said the Mississippian. "Blue point oysters," said the Marylander. "Sugar cured ham," begged the Virginian. "No, hickory cured ham," pleaded the Tennessecan. "Cut the ham from an acorn fed razorback and roast it juicy," said the Arkansan. "Wild duck," cried the Louisianan. "Squirrels with dumplings," said the North Carolinian. "Hog jowl," shouted the Georgian.

The Kentuckian Wins.

"Aw, mix 'em all up and call it burgoo," whooped the Kentuckian, and he won.

Burgoo originally was bourgot—an oatmeal gruel. It was a favorite dish with sailors when they were seeking new lands for their royalty in the jolly days of exploration and conquest. A sailor who knew more about food than he did about spelling settled in America and spelled it burgoo. But it took a horse to make it famous and it takes a magician to find out what's in it.

Sudden Love

By ELISABETH SANXAY HOLDING

SYNOPSIS.

Esmee Sully spends her forlorn young life between the office, where she is an inefficient typist, and a dismal home. Mrs. Sully loves her three children blindly, but is unable to help them spiritually or physically. Cynthia, the oldest, has had a tragic marriage. Lew, a year older than Esmee, has had little from life. Esmee can barely remember the days before her father's death when they had had a cheerful home. Jimmy Considine forces Lew to introduce him to Esmee. Lew warns Esmee she'll make trouble unless she keeps away from Jimmy. She sees a lot of Jimmy, however, but finds him an unmanageable lover. Lew gets into a jam and asks Esmee to get him $50. Esmee intends to ask Helen Morelli, to whose home she is invited to a cocktail party, for the money. At the party she meets Arthur Twining and tells him her troubles. He asks her to go to his place to get the money.

INSTALLMENT V.

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT.

Esmee thought of Jimmy. She would be late in meeting him, and he was always unpleasant about waiting. Well, let him be! If she could help Lew, . . . She looked up at Twining.

"It's . . . such a wonderful thing for you to do," she said, unsteadily. "You don't even know me."

"O, that . . ." said Twining, embarrassed. "I mean, any one could see. . . ."

She wanted very much to know what any one could see, but at that moment there was a sort of eddy near the door. Helen Morelli pushed her way through her guests, calling out:

"Micky! You devil! Why didn't you come before?"

"I only came now—by mistake," answered a man's voice from the doorway. "I forgot your damn party. Just stopped in to get a drink."

There was a gust of laughter at this candor.

"O, you're priceless, Micky!" a woman cried.

"No, I'm not," said the stranger. "I can be bought very reasonably."

"My God!" murmured Twining.

Esmee looked up to see an expression of disgust and pain on his face. Then as she turned again to the doorway the group there had separated a little, and she saw the newcomer. He was a lean young fellow, with a dark, bitter face. He was arrogant, he was superb in evening dress, white tie, a silk hat at the back of his head. He was drunk, too. Esmee could not be mistaken about that.

"I know I'm drunk, but I'll be docile."

As she looked at him, he saw her.

"O Allah!" he cried. "Who's this?"

"Come on!" said Twining, and tried to hurry her out of the door. But the other blocked the way.

"You're not going to take her away, T-Twining!" he shouted. "When I've been looking for her along the endless, empty corridors of life. . . . O God! She's a little Raphael Madonna—in silk stockings."

"Pull yourself together, man!" said Twining severely. He still held Esmee by the arm, in a grasp painfully tight, and now the newcomer caught her other arm.

"Don't go away!" he cried. "Please. . . . What's your name, dear?"

Helen Morelli was standing by laughing; all the others thought he was comic, amusing. But not Esmee. Esmee saw pain and confusion in his eyes, and an intolerable compassion sprang up in her heart.

"My name's Esmee Sully," she said, and smiled at him and tried, in that wide smile, to show him that she was sorry and that she understood.

"Esmee . . ." he repeated. "O, caro nome. . . . Mine's Michael, dear. Michael Marriott, the well known young b-boulevardier, of Paris, New York and Hell. . . . Will you please come now and dine with me, dear? I know I'm d-drunk, but I'll be docile."

"I'm awfully sorry, but I can't."

"You are awfully sorry, aren't you?" he asked. "Aren't you, Esmee?"

"Yes," she said gently.

She had forgotten Twining, forgotten every one else. It was as if she and this man were utterly alone together. And it seemed to her that she understood him as she had never in her life understood another human creature, as if he had some irrefragable claim upon her.

"Come in and have a drink, Micky!" said Helen. "Have many drinks. Then you'll feel better."

They were all laughing at him. No one else understood.

"No," he said. "I've got to go where my Esmee goes. . . . Where are we going, dear?"

"Look here," said Twining, close to her ear. "D'you mind very much if we take him along? He lives with me, you know. And I'm afraid to leave him here. . ."

"Yes, do!" she cried, earnestly.

Two girls caught Marriott by the arms and tried to keep him back. Helen urged him not to desert her. But he freed himself violently, and went off with Twining and Esmee. At the corner, Twining stopped a cab, helped Esmee in, got in himself beside her, and Marriott followed. They rode in absolute silence. Once Esmee heard Marriott sigh and it made her heart ache.

"Something's got to be done about him," she thought.

For she knew that Marriott had lost his way, and that he wanted her hand in his, in his darkness. In all her life she had never felt anything like this, this strange and terrible bond.

The cab stopped before an apartment house in Tudor City. Twining got out, and assisted Esmee, and Marriott followed, stumbling a little. The house impressed her, but still more was she impressed by the fact that they had a private entrance. They went up a few steps, and Twining opened a door with a latch key. There was a small foyer that opened into a spacious living room, with a long, leaded window at one end. There were dull, blue curtains hanging in straight folds, a dull, blue rug on the floor, a black horsehair sofa and arm chairs, black lamps with blue shades, a color scheme so very uniform and so subdued that the oranges in a bowl on the radio cabinet were startlingly vivid.

"Isn't it lovely?" she said.

"Lovely!" said Marriott. "It's the dream of a bachelor who smokes tobacco in a patent pipe."

"See here!" said Twining. "I've got to speak to Miss Sully for a moment. Clear out, will you?"

"No," said Marriott.

"See here!" Twining began again, but Marriott had flung himself into a chair. "Then, if you don't mind, Miss Sully. . . . If you'll just step into the hall——"

In the doorway she turned to look at Marriott, and found his black eyes regarding her sombrely. He was still wearing his silk hat at the back of his head; slouched down in his chair he looked forlorn, pitiful, unbearable. She smiled at him.

"I had to b-be drunk—when I met you . . ." he said. "I knew the worst thing was coming soon. . . . Now you're going away. . . ."

"I'll ring you up tomorrow morning," she said, very softly, for she did not want Twining to hear that. He had gone into another room. He returned now and found her in the foyer, pressed an envelope into her hand.

"Thank you!" she said, with tears in her eyes. "I'll try. . . ."

"Please . . ." said Twining, embarrassed. "I'll call a taxi for you."

"No, thanks. I've—I'll pick one up," she answered, for she was in a desperate hurry. She would be so late meeting Jimmy. . . . Either he would be there, furious, or he would have gone, to be furious another time. . . .

"Then——" Twining began, when Marriott came out.

"Good night, Esmee!" he said, and opened the door for her, came out with her to the top of the steps.

"Good night, my dear little Esmee," he said.

"Good night, Michael," she answered, and ran down the steps.

There was a taxi standing before the house. She was hurrying toward it when a hand grasped her arm.

"Good evening!" said Jimmy.

A little shiver ran along her spine.

"Jimmy," she said. "I was just rushing off to meet you."

"O, yeah?" said Jimmy. "Only about an hour late. . . ."

She wished desperately that he did not know so much about her circumstances. If she could only have invented a cousin, or some private business. . . . But he knew what cousins she had and where they lived, and he knew she had no interests outside his knowledge.

Still holding her arm, he was guiding her along the street. Under a light she glanced up at his face, and she was greatly afraid. That handsome arrogance was like a mask.

"Jimmy!" she said. "You can't expect me to tell you simply everything——"

For answer he snatched the envelope out of her hand.

"Jimmy! Give it back to me!" she cried. "You have no right——"

"Keep quiet," he said sharply. "I don't want a scene. You'll get it back all right, after I've seen . . ."

He tore it open, looked at the bills inside, and returned it to her.

"All right!" he said.

"It's a loan. I had to get it for family reasons," she said.

"If that was true, why didn't you come to me?"

Help for Those Who Stammer Now Available

Speech Clinics Started in Various Cities.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Question: "Are your reading references on speech defects only for young children who stammer or stutter?"

Answer: No, they are of value to people of any age. Recently speech clinics have been established in various cities. I have a list of these and will send them in receipt of stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Question: "I have a little boy, 4 years old. I am at the office all day and he is with an aunt whom he dearly loves. When I come home I have some trouble with him. His aunt tells we he is wonderful when I'm not home, but that the moment I enter the door there is turmoil. Not very complimentary! But do you suppose it is true? And if so, why?"

Answer: Yes, I must say I think it is true. Also, it has a familiar ring! I have heard it said to several mothers I know!

There are probably several reasons for it's being so. You may not know how to manage your small son, generally speaking. Being away from him all day, you may overwhelm him with attention when you get home—perhaps notice all his little ailments, indulge every desire and be upset by any and every bit of behavior that is out of the ordinary. So he has a "grand time," quite unconsciously, loving the center of your stage.

Perhaps, since his aunt is so successful with him, you might take a leaf from her book. Be a little gradual about it. You can be just as companionable with your small boy and enjoy him as much by giving him your attention in a different way and one that is better for him. If you would like any of our behavior or management booklets we should be glad to send them to you.

THE STAGE

Six plays will be given professional staging during the spring drama festival at the University of Michigan, beginning next Tuesday night with John Van Druten's "There's Always Juliet," in which Violet Heming will have the leading rôle. The other bills for the five weeks of the festival are Philip Barry's "The Animal Kingdom," Shaw's "Candida" and "The Great Catherine," Paul Osborn's "The Vinegar Tree," and the dramatization of Du Maurier's "Peter Ibbetson." In addition to Miss Heming the company will include Patricia Collinge, Martha Graham, Geoffrey Kerr, Violet Kemble-Cooper, Glenn Hunter, and Lillian Bronson.

Grace George has sailed for Europe with her husband, William A. Brady, in search of plays for next season. In Paris she will study the performances of "Domino," by Marcel Achard, of which she has already made an American version, and "Mademoiselle," by Jacques Deval, which she will stage in New York next August.

George M. Cohan's engagement at the Grand Opera house in "Confidential Service" will end tomorrow night. "Clowns in Clover," a new revue to be staged by Lew Leslie, is a possible booking for the Grand late in June . . . Helen Hayes will remain at the Harris theater in "The Good Fairy" until Friday night of next week . . . The engagement of "The Devil Passes," at the Selwyn theater, originally announced for two weeks, has been extended for four, or until June 4.

The Actors' Equity association, in its official publication, has issued an appeal to the many cinema celebrities who have deserted the stage, asking them to manifest their loyalty to the institution that gave them their start. It beseeches them to do a little footlight acting now and then, because "the mother of the theatrical arts has fallen upon evil times, and she needs all the help that can be given her."

Club Federation Asks State Law on Outdoor Signs

A resolution supporting the enactment of legislation in Illinois providing for regulation and restriction of outdoor advertising, "to safeguard our rural highways from such uses as may impair their utility or beauty," was adopted by the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs yesterday. Another resolution recommended that every effort be made to maintain the effectiveness of public health departments and health budgets. Mrs. William F. Farrell of Chicago was elected president; Mrs. Ralph W. Pringle, of Normal, vice president of the central region; Mrs. O. A. James, of Salem, vice president of the southern region, and Mrs. Mary A. It wasn't THIS that ruined Jack's blouse it was STRONG SOAP

"You'd never guess," said Jack's mother, "that these blouses are practically new. Look how they're going."

Her neighbor said . . . "I'm sure it's that strong soap you're using. It's rotting the materials . . . no wonder they go! Why don't you use Chipso? Chipso will wash just as fast as strong granulated soap. But Chipso will make your clothes wear longer."

And the neighbor was right.

You can easily tell if your present soap is too strong—whether it is soap chips, rubbing soap or granulated soap. If your soap roughens your hands when you use it for dishes, it's too strong for your clothes.

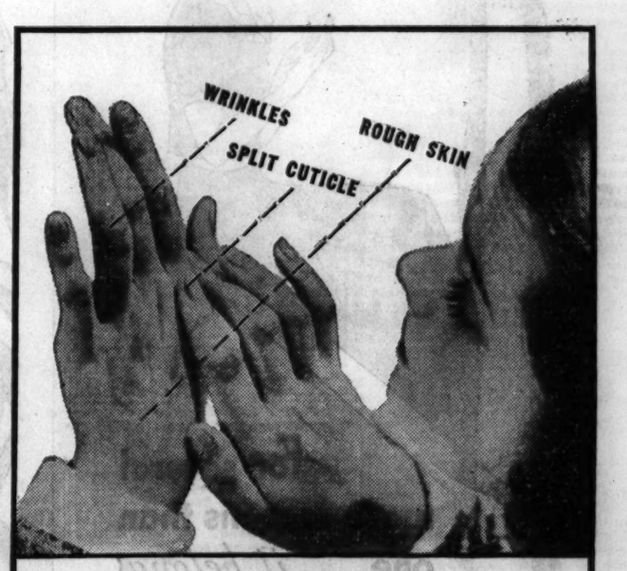
Try Chipso. Use Chipso for clothes and dishes and cleaning. Your hands will smooth up inside of a week.

Your clothes will get snowy in those bigger, velvet-rich suds. But Chipso suds are safe. They contain no free lye to rot threads and weaken materials. Why, Chipso keeps even your prettiest silk underwear looking new and fresh. All your clothes, cottons, linens, or silks, wear longer when you use Chipso.

You ought to know these facts about Strong Granulated Soaps

Chipso—a fine quick-dissolving flake soap—is very different from strong granulated soaps. Chipso contains no free lye which weakens and rots materials. Chipso contains rich, safe soap—nothing that will fade colors and make new clothes look old before they've half worn out.

Chipso has no harsh ingredients that make hands rough and sore. Chipso's kindness to your hands is a guarantee that it is safe for your finest clothes.



A soap that is hard on HANDS is hard on CLOTHES. Chipso SAVES hands and clothes

Sigrid Undset Epic Published in 2 Volumes

Appear on Anniversary of Noted Author.

"The Master of Hestviken," by Sigrid Undset. [Knopf.] Published today.

TODAY is the fiftieth birthday of one of the most distinguished women in contemporary literature. She has written twenty novels of Norwegian life, many of them parts of sagas of the medieval age. In America Sigrid Undset is known chiefly as the author of that magnificent trilogy, "Kristin Lavransdatter," which includes "The Bridal Wreath," "The Mistress of Husaby," and "The Cross."

SIGRID UNDSET.

"The Master of Hestviken," a tetralogy published here during the years 1928-'30, is today made available in two volumes. Official tribute was paid to Mrs. Undset in 1928 when she received the Nobel prize for literature.

Her work, with its qualities of solidness and brilliance, is a contribution to modern literature, and it is not too much to say that her name will be remembered and respected by future generations.

"The Master of Hestviken" includes the four volumes, published separately until now, entitled "The Axe," "The Snake Pit," "In the Wilderness," and "The Son Avenger." The action covers the last part of the 12th century and the first of the 13th. Five generations are encompassed, the first and the last appearing only on the fringes of the action. In each generation there occurs a terrible tragedy which precipitates the profound conflict experienced by the characters, both within themselves and without.

Story of Two Tragedies.

Steinfinn and Ingebjorg fall in love after the maiden has been affianced to another man. They live together several years before they finally receive the forgiveness of their parents. Later, after many happy years together, the jilted suitor turns up and subjects Steinfinn to a terrible humiliation. He vows that he will never again live with his wife until the insult has been avenged.

In this atmosphere of sorrow and sternness and dread Ingunn, their daughter, and their adopted son, Olav grow up and learn to love each other. Though they have been affianced in their youth, the brothers of Steinfinn oppose their marriage. They remain devoted to each other for ten years receiving the scorn of their relatives for their extramarital relations. Before Olav comes to claim his wife she, like her father, receives a deadly insult. Olav avenges her before they are married. The sin he commits to save her honor remains unconfessed.

The second volume describes their miserable life together. Though they love each other, happiness is denied them because Olav will not confess his sin. "The Snake Pit" and "In the Wilderness" relate the tortured Olav's spiritual and mental struggles. He finally becomes hardened. "The Son Avenger," the last of the novels, tells how Eirik, the illegitimate son, remains the thorn in Olav's conscience until, weary and hurt physically and spiritually, he finally confesses his sin and receives absolution before his death.

It is impossible to give an impression in a short summary of the richness of this canvas. A panorama of the middle ages is spread before our eyes—the middle ages of far away Norway. The customs, the clothes and food, the manor houses and the houses of the house carls (the serfs), the warring expeditions are all detailed carefully and vividly.

Accurate Pictures of Life Then.

As far as it is possible to determine, these trappings of a lost age are authentically described. At least, no medieval scholar has ever found fault, even in the trivialities, with Mrs. Undset's interpretation. Deeper of course than her brilliant transcription of the outward signs of the age lies her profound understanding of the spiritual and religious temper of the time. Never for once does the reader detect a false note in the psychology of the times the author describes. There are never any anachronisms in time, place, or action, nor contradictions.

Mrs. Undset seems to have a perfect mastery of her subject, as if she had lived and thought in it all her life. The life of Olav, spent in misery and horror because of an unconfessed sin; his life ruined not because of the sin itself but because he did not right himself with God, such a situation which is the core of the entire tetralogy, requires and receives skillful handling. But Mrs. Undset offers the reader a new experience. After the first 100 pages of the book the reader is in the middle ages, mind and soul, and he does not again retrieve his twentieth century consciousness until the last page. Such mental hypnosis is indeed the work of genius.

Mrs. Undset has made practically immortal a scene rich in fictional and historical material. She herself says that "The Master of Hestviken" is the finest of her creations. M. D.

Braided Straps Smart Feature of Paris Gown

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The most important news in evening fashions for this summer is usually to be found above the waistline. Skirts do not receive so much attention these days. As long as they follow a slim line, they are pretty sure to be smart. Of course, just where the waistline starts is a long story. It may be anything from slightly subnormal to supernormal. But wherever it is, there is always sure to be something other than a plain bodice above it.

Bodices may be made of surplice bands crossing high at the throat in front, as Vionnet's do, or they may receive their emphasis in back, like Lelong's evening dresses with wide shoulder straps which almost cover the back. There are hundreds of variations of this theme, but one of the newest and most charming is Mme. Schiaparelli's braided shoulder straps, shown in the sketch.

This dress is made entirely of vertical bands of colored chiffon, alternating gray, rose, and white. These tri-color bands, brought up from the normal waistline, are braided over the shoulders to make the straps. The braids end at the shoulder blades in back, and descend into stripes again to the waistline. The décolleté in back is quite low and has an inset of white crêpe near the point. There is also an inset of this white crêpe in the front of the V-shaped bodice. A crushed girdle of rose, cire satin ties on the left hip in back.

Good Morning!

"The Doomed Battalion"—which will be given a special pre-view tonight at 8:30 at McVicker's theater for the benefit of Camp Algonquin—is one of those pictures that etches itself on your memory.

It is real, vivid human experience, hot from the heart and pen of a member of that "doomed battalion" who held Alpine pass—Mount Collato—against invading Italian troops, grimly awaiting practically certain death almost within halloing distance of their homes in the valley below.

"I will never write another story," said the author, Luis Trenker, who also stars in the picture, "because I have no other story to tell. . . !"

But what a story his one story is! And with what wizardry and terrible beauty the camera has caught men and moods, suspense and terror, bravery and stoicism, stillness and flashing action, and the gleaming, majestic Tyrolean Alps where this game of life and death is played!

The picture opens on scenes of peace and healthful adventure. Before you are two friends—an Italian vacationer and his Austrian guide and host, who are doing their usual summer mountain scaling. Atop Devil's peak they zestfully devour bread and cheese as they rest and chat, and Artur Franchini proudly signs his name in the book kept hidden in a stony recess for the registry of climbers so doughty as to reach the top of this tough tor.

They sit chatting and smoking . . . and suddenly the clear air quivers with the echo of clanging bells in the valley below, where nestles the little village of Corvere in which Florian, the guide, lives happily with his devoted young wife. Silently the men look at each other . . . silently descend . . . and, on their arrival hear the news . . . war has been declared!

"I must go—at once—before the frontier closes!" says Franchini.

Looking sadly and deeply into each other's eyes, Italian and Austrian friends part, knowing that if the feared be true, when they meet again it may be as enemies. . . !

A few days later Florian departs to fight for his country, leaving behind his girl wife who is soon to become a mother.

Well . . . enough for you to know from this column that Florian is one of those detailed to hold the Collato pass, and that Lieut. Franchini heads the Italian soldiers who, in a last desperate coup to rout the battalion, drill underneath them a tunnel in which will be placed the dynamite which shall spell finis to this chapter in the bloody history of the world war, while beneath, the little valley home which holds a mother—and a baby who has never seen his father—is also headquarters for the Italians and, in his old room, houses the sad but unflaggingly patriotic Franchini, friend—and enemy, of Florian, the Austrian guide and soldier.

None of the acting in this film ever seems to be acting. Men and women live their rôles. Tala Birell, a Viennese actress whom you've never seen before, startles you with her beauty and tears your heart with her distress. Trenker, as Florian, is utterly, powerfully believable. Why, for goodness sake wouldn't he be! Victor Varconi, whom all movie goers know and

Flower Guild Will Continue Gift Stations

Bouquets and Vegetables to Be Distributed.

The success which attended Chicago's annual two day "lilac time" for distribution of fragrant blossoms to the poor, sick, and lonely through coöperation of the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE brought an announcement from the flower guild of a full summer program to continue receiving floral and vegetable gifts from suburbanites with which to cheer the poor and needy.

A booth will be open again this morning at the North Western station and a full schedule next week will be repeated each week during the summer. The booths will be open as follows:

Tuesday to Friday, inclusive, 8 to 11 a. m., North Western station. Tuesday, booths open from 8 to 10:30 a. m. at Commonwealth Edison building, Peoples Gas building, and Randolph I. C. station. Wednesdays, 8 to 10:30 a. m., La Salle street station; Thursdays, same hours, Aurora-Elgin station, and Fridays, same hours, Union station.

Crippled children, residents in old people's homes, the bedridden in the poor districts, and hospital inmates yesterday shared the flowers which were brought in by commuters from the north, south, and west. Children danced in glee when they saw massive bouquets of lilacs brought into the Martha Washington home for destitute crippled children at 4448 South Michigan avenue.

Similar receptions for the flowers occurred at the House of Happiness, 3052 Gratten avenue; University of Chicago settlement, 4630 Gross avenue; Old People's Home, 4724 Vincennes avenue; Chase House settlement, 211 South Ashland avenue; Howell Neighborhood settlement, 1831 South Racine avenue; Frances Juvenile home, 5141 South Michigan avenue; Church Home for Aged Persons, 5445 Ingleside avenue, and Presbyterian hospital, occupational therapy wards.

Russian Royalty Hangs First Picture in No-Jury Show

Not every day does royalty step into the path of Chicago artists. A hum of excitement pervaded the Gallery of Modern Life, Michigan Square building, yesterday when Princess Vassili and Princess Rostislav, nieces by marriage of the late Czar Nicholas of Russia, made merry with nails and hammers [avoiding thumbs] in hanging the first picture of the society's no-jury exhibit which opens tomorrow.

The exhibition will continue almost four weeks this year, two weeks longer than is customary. The response by artists was as eager as last year and the exhibit will be a large one, wide in scope, with pictures coming from farms and towns as far away as Oregon, Virginia and Washington state, as well as a generous Chicago representation. The younger generation will be noticeably felt shouldering the work of the pioneers of the society. E. J.

New Clothes for Traveling Are Stylish and Practical

BY RHEA SEEGER.

HOPING to be footloose and free, with nothing to anchor you to any one spot, most of you will stay up late of nights reading time tables, travel ads, and sage advice to travelers . . . the more you read the more restless you become, till finally some bright and cheery morning you suddenly stop to think of travel clothes.

Then is when you will discover that others have been laps ahead of you; that clever buyers have been doing some traveling themselves and also some appreciative and knowing clothes collecting for travel bugs like you.

No matter where and how you decide to cover mileage you will find the right sort of apparel that will mark you even among clothes conscious globe trotters as perhaps the one person in twenty who can roam about without one extra ounce of baggage.

Experts have assembled a remarkable collection of clothes and luggage for those who insist upon seeing the world from the sky . . . featherweight suitcases and traveling bags and very compact clothes cases that hold almost as much as you usually stuff into a much larger wardrobe trunk.

You dress practically the same for airplane soaring as you do if you were earthbound, except that being free from dust and soot you can indulge in color . . . some of the very newest French models for flying clothes are fashioned of sheer soft wools in appropriate gray blues and soft greens and light grays.

Huge wool coats made of lightweight fabrics are especially designed for this airy way of getting around. No one ever leaves an airport without the extra great coat to be worn over the street costume.

The newest inventions for smart head coverings are the wool crêpe, silk, and other fabric hats . . . all of these are stitched for smart decorative effect as well as stiffening . . . most of them have very shallow and becoming brims that can be tipped fashionably over the right eye. They are flattering as well as practical.

Train and motor clothes differ only in color from air travel wardrobes . . . the coat is heavier or the same weight, depending upon the temperature en route. And how you will want for dresses and even the necessary underlayers that decline to wrinkle, so you will shop gleefully for glove silk lingerie, especially the new mesh stuff that can be sent through the suds without any effort at all and gladly smooth out their own wrinkles while you dream.

If you can't be content or get any particular happiness out of severely tailored suits for your gadabout expeditions try the silk frock and long dark wool coat combination. Choose a frock of printed silk with the smallest designs you can find, and with either a brown, dark blue, or black background.

Other good outfits for seagoing or land roving travelers are the knitted wool dresses and two piece costumes, so skillfully woven that they look exactly like hand knitted creations . . . these smart things are cool and positively do not wrinkle, and come in all lovely light and the more practical dark tones, and they, as all other travel togs, are priced so low that even modest budgets will easily accommodate two or three without complaint.

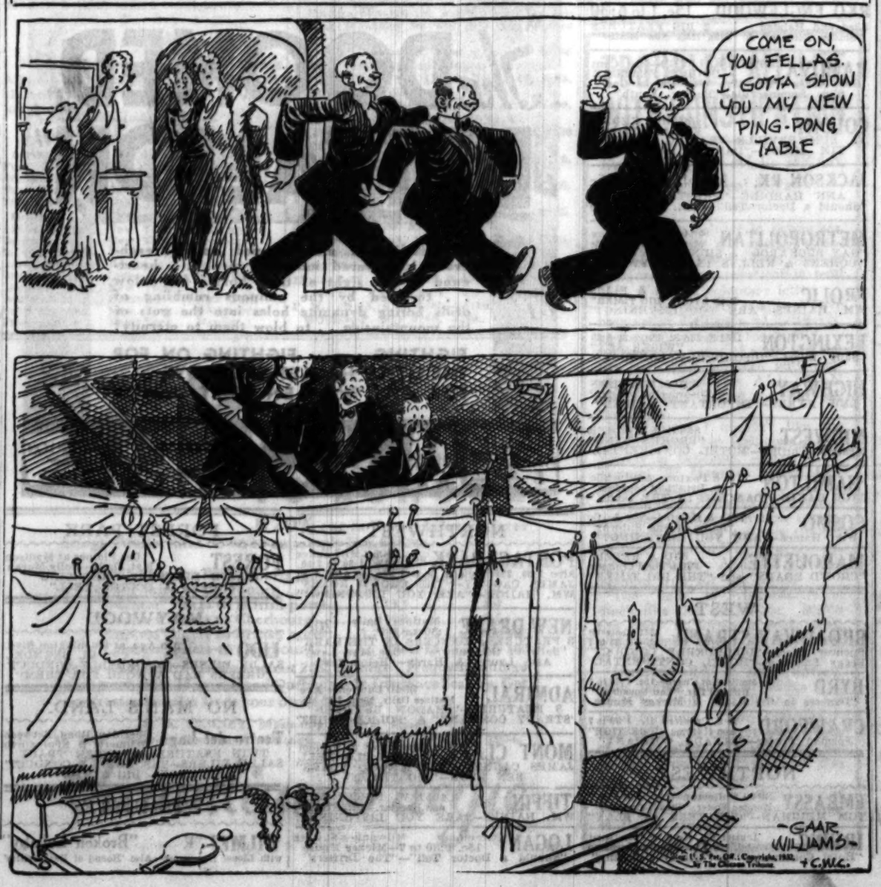
WHEN WORDS FAIL YUH



Many Chicago Students to Be Graduated

Parents to Go East for Exercises.

BY JUDITH CASS.

ALMOST every east bound train the last week of this month and all of next month will carry proud parents down east to see their young daughters and sons receive sheepskins from the colleges, finishing schools and preparatory schools where fashionable young Chicagoans are being prepared to take their places in the social, cultural and business life of the city.

One of the first young women to be graduated will be Miss Mary Shedd Reed, daughter of Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, who is finishing at Miss Hourigan's school in New York City on May 27. Miss Reed will be a debutante next winter but just what form her introduction party will take has not been decided by her mother.

Mrs. Reed and her children will move out to their Lake Forest residence as soon as it is finished but in the meantime they will spend weekends in the tennis house, which is perfectly comfortable, Mrs. Reed says, unless the weather is hot and then it is not nearly as bearable as their apartment at 1550 State parkway.

Graduates at Wheeler School.

The Wheeler school at Providence will graduate Harriet Fentress, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Fentress of Hubbard Woods; Julia Kramer, daughter of the Le Roy Kramers; Bettina O'Leary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. O'Leary; and Marjorie White, daughter of the Edward J. Whites of Evanston. The exercises will take place on June 2.

Miss Louise Cretors is the only member of the graduating class at the Bennett school at Milbrook, N. Y., whose home is in Chicago. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hazel D. Cretors. The commencement exercises begin on June 3 and finish on June 6.

Betsy Needham, daughter of the Maurice H. Needhams of East Division street, is the only Chicagoan being graduated from the Madeira school in Washington on June 10. Miss Needham is planning to study art next winter, probably at the Art institute.

Down at the Asheville school in North Carolina Barton Cameron and Curtis Akerly Spaulding of Chicago, Frederick Lloyd Baker Jr. of Hinsdale, Ralph Edgar Ellis Jr. of Winnetka, Donald Clifford Graves of Evanston, and John Stuart Jr. of Hubbard Woods are members of the class to be graduated on June 14.

Lefens Porter, son of the Frank S. Porters of Scott street, Herbert L. Stern Jr., and Alexis Thompson, son of Mrs. Victor A. Beaufort will be graduated from the Phillips academy at Andover, Mass., on June 17, and Abram S. Kinne of West Chicago is the only boy from this vicinity finishing at the Phillips academy at Exeter, N. H., on June 28.

The commencement at the Sarah Lawrence college at Bronxville, N. Y., will be held on June 13 and in the graduating class will be two Chicago girls, Theodora Shaw, daughter of Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw, and Margaret Wiley, dusghter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley M. Wiley. Both girls made their debuts here last season.

Chicagoans at Smith College.

There are a number of Chicagoans in the senior class at Smith college at Northampton, Mass., this year, including Carolyn Erminger, daughter of the Howell B. Ermingers; Edith Keller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred F. Keller; Marjorie Frank, daughter of the Charles G. Franks; Helena Lennard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Lennard of Evanston; Dorothy Fabian, daughter of the Francis G. Fabians of Evanston; Eleanor Barry, daughter of Edmund D. Barry of Evanston; Eleanor Cushman, daughter of the Arthur W. Cushmans of Winnetka; Susan Miller, daughter of the William S. Millers of Winnetka; Dorothy Culp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Culp of Oak Park; and Barbara Best, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Best of Wilmette. The commencement will be held on June 20.

Seniors at Wellesley.

The only Chicago girl in the graduating class at Wellesley college is Nellie Louise Well, although there are several north shore girls in the class, including Jane Adair of Kenilworth, Virginia Honnold and Jane Philbrick of Winnetka, Margaret Hubbel and Imogene Ward of Evanston and Marian Page of Wilmette. The exercises will be on June 21.

Fifteen Chicagoans will be graduated from Princeton university on June 21, including James H. Breasted Jr., Robert J. Fletcher, Charles Y. Freeman Jr., W. Carter Goodpasture, John H. Harmon Jr. of Highland Park, Edward C. H. Lammers of Evanston, Donald C. McNamara, Alexander S. Maltman, Alfred B. Novak, George E. Rose Jr., Karl M. Schmid, Anthony G. Van Schaick of Highland Park, Morrison Waud, Robert M. Wineman and Robert M. Winston of Evanston.

Bruce Babcock, son of the Orville E. Babcocks; Richard F. Baum, son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Baum, and Otho Sprague, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. Sprague, will be graduated from St. Paul's school at Concord, N. H., on June 23.

Finishing at St. Mark's in Southboro, Mass., on June 24, will be Gar-

This Widower Wants Chance to Wed Again

Doris Tells Him to Look About Him.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

There comes in today's mail a letter from a widower, who, I believe, is sincere in his request that he be put in touch with a woman of solid virtues and certain charms to fill the void left by the death of his wife a year ago.

Business, social and pleasurable duties in no way prove an antidote for the loss of companionship suffered, the widower testifies. He is the type that must have some one to share his time with.

"Now, it seems to me," he pleads, "that I am not exceptional in this respect. There must be many of both sexes similarly situated. Why would it not be sensible, plausible and possible for you, Miss Blake, to bring two of this description together?"

The widower describes himself as 39, not bad to look at, holds a good position, is a college man, fond of sports, music, books, and theaters, but hates to be alone. A woman around 30 would better qualify to his taste than one of the flapper or gold digger type. He meets many of the fair sex in his daily rounds—but not the right one.

The business of bringing lonely couples together is a tempting one. But it has been tried by well meaning individuals and organizations and found too hazardous to be continued. One would need a whole corps of investigators to cover the ground, and even under the most favorable character auspices and seeming suitability of a lonesome pair, it is still too much of a risk for an outsider to assume. I would never take on the responsibility.

However, if a lonely widower, a sincere and honest character, has the courage to write and tell me of his lonely plight, why could he not and should he not take some close personal friend into his confidence who might arrange a more personal form of introduction? Is it reticence about expressing to acquaintances a marriage desire after what seems a brief period of mourning? The early remarriage of a widower is the finest compliment that can be paid a deceased wife, regardless of the prejudice of her family or of any one, for that matter.

But why seek the mate in foreign fields when there is just as good or better material close at home? A widower with a reputation as a good husband should have little difficulty in getting a second mate. Because he has been trained to the advantages of certain temperamental and character virtues in a wife, it is best that he choose one about whose background he knows something. In that group of many women the widower admits meeting there, no doubt, could be found one fine woman with all the desired attributes upon whom the lonely one could work his charms.

Doris Blake Answers

No Ban on Friendship.

"Dear Miss Blake: My best chum is away at school. A boy she has been dating is dating me now. He says he likes me. Is this wrong? MARTHA."

It isn't deceit merely to be friendly.

Called to Argentina.

"Dear Miss Blake: My friend left for Argentina and wants me to go to him. I have other fellows, and I don't know what to do. ANXIOUS."

You're the only one who can decide what to do.

Probably Bashful.

"Dear Miss Blake: What is wrong with a boy who sometimes won't even talk or look at you? JOAN."

He may get bashful spells.

Hope to Keep Schipa Despite N. Y. Contract

Opera Grants Permission to Divide Time.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

That Tito Schipa had been engaged by the Metropolitan Opera company to fill the vacancy caused by the withdrawal of Beniamino Gigli was the substance of a news dispatch from New York yesterday. This, however, does not necessarily mean that he is lost to the Civic Opera company.

According to Herbert M. Johnson, vice president in charge of business of the Chicago organization, Mr. Schipa was given permission some time ago to give part of his season to the Metropolitan company if the proper arrangements could be made. The Civic Opera company, added Mr. Johnson, is making no contracts at present for next season, and will make none until the guaranty fund is completed.

Mr. Johnson was of the opinion that if it is decided to present opera here next season the services of Mr. Schipa would be desired here, though perhaps for not so long a term as would have been the case had he not taken the Metropolitan assignment. "I am not able to speak conclusively on the point," he said, "because Herbert Witherspoon is in charge of the opera performances and makes all the contracts with artists. I believe, though, that if we have opera there will be an effort to have Schipa here for at least part of our season."

South Shore Horse Show.

The South Shore Country club, undaunted by the possible cancellation of the summer horse shows by other organizations, is planning to hold its twenty-third annual horse show with the usual pomp and ceremony.

The show will open on Tuesday evening, June 7, and close with the annual horse show ball on the following Saturday night. The club will hold open house during the entire week, and the tactful board has decided to abolish for the five day period all of the "for members only" signs around the clubhouse proper.

There will be a fashion show on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, in addition to all the dining and dancing which invariably accompany the show.

Mrs. James Simpson and Mrs. John W. Gary will be hostesses at a buffet luncheon today at Mrs. Simpson's Glencoe residence to members of the Lake Forest Garden club preceding the club's first meeting of the season at Mrs. John Stuart's residence in Hubbard Woods. Mrs. Stuart's tulips are famous in this part of the country, and the members are looking forward to seeing them.

Mrs. Herman Hachmeister and Mrs. Charles G. Little of Evanston are giving the bridal dinner tonight at Mrs. Little's residence for Miss Garrigue Gallagher of Highland Park, who is to be married to Charles A. Butland of Shanghai, China, tomorrow in Christ church, Winnetka. Last night Miss Gallagher's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael F. Gallagher, entertained at dinner and with a theater party for their daughter and her fiancé.

Miss Anna Fitzlu and Miss Edna Kellogg of 1307 Ritchie court have invited about 60 of their friends to a buffet supper on Sunday evening.

Many to Attend Race Party.

Most of the fashionable world who care for racing will be motoring south to the Washington Park race track next Monday, judging by the long list of guests whom Howard F. Gillette has invited for the opening day. In his party will be the John A. Stevensons, the Alan C. Dixons, the Austin Niblacks, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hutchins, Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Cudahy, the Frank Hibbards, the Harold Howards, Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Robert H. McCormick, the J. Russell Forgans, the Charles F. Glores, the Joseph E. Otises, Mrs. C. Morse Ely, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Rawson, the Melvin Traylors, the Charles Faulkners, Mr. and Mrs. T. George Lee, Mr. and Mrs. A. Watson Armour, the Laurance Armours, the Eugene Thayers, Mr. and Mrs. John Wentworth, Mr. and Mrs. I. Newton Ferry, Dr. and Mrs. E. W. White, Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell Jr. [I wonder if she can get away from her work to go?], the George A. Ranneys, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Dunham, the George N. Northrups, Mrs. Francis J. Johnson, the Charles Y. Freemans, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey.

The Vocational Society for Shut-Ins will hold a sale for south siders next Tuesday from 10 to 5 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Henry Hoyt Hilton at 5640 Woodlawn avenue.

The Friends of Opera guarantee fund committee has sent out announcements of an indefinite postponement of the meeting which was to be held next Wednesday at the Drake hotel, with Mrs. Maurice L. Rothschild as hostess.

Trinity Church Reunion.

Next Wednesday evening there is to be a reunion of former parishioners of old Trinity church, which was the scene of so many important weddings and christenings in the years before the trend of fashion moved northward.

The reunion will mark the ninetieth anniversary of the historic church at Michigan avenue and 26th street, and "old timers" who moved away are looking forward to the event with interest. Frederick T. Haskell has been invited to act as master of ceremonies.

Among the families who attended the church during the '80s and '90s were the Blairs, Borlands, Ryersons, Fairbanks, Hibbards, Mitchells, Keeps, Crerars, Masons, Wilsons, Tuttles, McKinleys, and Buckinghams. Mrs. John J. Borland, one of the most loyal of the former parishioners, boasts of the fact that her connection with the church dates back to 1862. In 1894 the Blair family, including the late Henry A. Blair, the late Watson F. Blair, and Mrs. Borland [Harriet Blair] provided the funds for the erection of the parish house which is still used for church activities.

Mrs. William S. Monroe gave a luncheon the other day at her summer place, White Gates farm, in Wayne, for some of the members of the committee of the Girl Scouts which is to help with the sale of tickets for the new Monday night series of artists' concerts to be presented at Orchestra hall next season for the benefit of relief measures in the Girl Scout organization.

Her guests were Mrs. Richard Bentley, Mrs. John B. Bremner, Mrs. Britton I. Budd, Miss Harriet Clifford, Mrs. Nathan S. Davis III., Mrs. George J. Farnsworth, Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay Jr., and Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay III. The first concert will be on Monday, Oct. 17, with Lucrezia Bori as the artist.

Alumni of Harvard School for Boys Pay Tribute to Teacher

More than 100 alumni of the Harvard School for Boys, at 4731 Ellis avenue, held a dinner last night at the Blackstone hotel in honor of Wilbur H. Ford, instructor in Latin and mathematics. Mr. Ford has taught at the school for the last 40 years.

"Teaching all those years, through changing customs and modes of living, is akin to genius," said Frederic Burnham, toastmaster. Charles Edgar Pence, a principal of the school, praised Mr. Ford for "molding character and building men."

At the close of the banquet Mr. Burnham presented Mr. Ford with a $500 check from the alumni. Mr. Ford was graduated from Yale university in 1882 and came to Chicago after teaching for 10 years in eastern schools.

Parent-Teacher Congress Plans Health Campaign

Minneapolis, Minn., May 19.—(AP)—Comprehensive health examinations of children aimed to free them as far as possible of physical and mental defects will be the object of a roundup of children during July and August under plans outlined tonight by Dr. Lillian Smith of Lansing, Mich., chairman of the committee in charge of the project, before the national congress of parents and teachers. Units of the organization in every state in coöperation with physicians, dentists and health workers will seek to prevent the loss of school time by pupils whose defects ordinarily are discovered after school work has begun, Dr. Smith said.

Have you ever had a chance to enjoy a real German onion pie? Or small liver dumplings, also done in the German style? I've just had the pleasure of looking up these two interesting dishes for Mrs. I. M., who wrote me recently. Mrs. I. M. was going to let you all help in the hunt, but since I've located just what I believe she wants, we'll call it even.

First of all, for the onion pie. I've found this a good recipe for the kuchen, or dough for the crust.

KUCHEN FOR ONION PIE.

1 cake compressed yeast
½ cup lukewarm milk
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
5 to 6 cups flour
2 eggs
1 1-3 cups sugar
¾ cup butter
Grated rind of ½ lemon
1 teaspoon vanilla

Dissolve the yeast in the ½ cup of lukewarm milk, to which has been added the teaspoon of sugar and the salt. Let stand for 30 minutes. Scald the 1 cup of milk and add enough of the flour to make a light batter. When the batter is cool, add the yeast mixture and beat until the mass blisters. Cover and stand in a warm place to rise three or four hours, or until it at least doubles in bulk. Now add the well beaten eggs, the sugar, melted butter, grated lemon rind and the vanilla. Add enough ore flour to make a soft dough. Beat again until the dough is full of bubbles and let rise until double in bulk. [This recipe is large, and you doubtless will wish to reduce it one-half to one-third the size if you are making just one pie.] Roll out the dough one-fourth inch thick for the pie tin and pat in place. Let rise again while you prepare the filling.

FILLING FOR ZWIEBEL KUCHEN.

2½ cups sliced onions
3 tablespoons butter
1 cup milk
2 egg yolks, well beaten
Salt and pepper to taste

Pan-fry the sliced onions in the butter until they are tender and brown. Mix the milk and the egg yolks and season to taste. Drain the onions from the butter and pile evenly on to the kuchen dough in the pie tin. Pour over this the egg and milk mixture and bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] until firm.

GERMAN LIVER DUMPLINGS.

Calves liver, cooked, chopped and sieved
¼ cup chopped pork fat
4 eggs, beaten in
¼ cup cold water
Salt, nutmeg and pepper to taste
¾ cup stale bread crumbs sauted in butter
1 onion, finely chopped
Flour sufficient to keep dumplings together

In War Film

Tala Birell has one of the leading roles in "The Doomed Battalion," which will have a preview tonight for the benefit of the Camp Algonquin fund.

Epic Picture Will Linger in Your Memory

'Doomed Battalion' Praised by Movie Critic.

like well, and who also served in the world war, is splendid as the Italian lieutenant. Albert Conti, Gibson Howland and Henry Armetta do important bits marvelously. Supporting players are all that could be desired and direction is perfect.

An unforgettable episode is the one where a scout patrol on skiis skim like white sailboats before a spanking breeze over the snow-garbed Dolemite Alps. Another, where in their dugout the doomed men wait—for the sound of drills to cease—which means —the end. . . ?

Ah NO! Because, you see, there is Florian.

See you tomorrow!

NOTABLES TO ATTEND

The entire proceeds of the pre-view tonight will go to the Camp Algonquin fund to provide free vacations this summer for the needy mothers and children of the congested districts of the city. The camp is supported in part by TRIBUNE readers and special benefits.

Among the notables who have already made plans to attend the benefit are the consuls of the three countries taking part in the war drama. They are Dr. Giuseppe Castruccio, Italian consul; Michael F. Girten, Austrian consul, and Dr. Hugo Simon, German consul. All expressed their desire to see the film story of the year long battle of Collalto pass, filmed on the historic spot high in the Alps, which held the key to the Austrian-Italian frontier.

Promptly at 8:30 o'clock the gayety within the theater will be silenced as the lights wink out. And then the story of the brave battalion of Austrian soldiers who determined to hold the pass to the last man will unfold upon the screen.

The doors will be open an hour before the show begins. Tickets are a dollar each and none are reserved. The price of a ticket will help give a child a happy two weeks at Camp Algonquin shortly after the season opens on June 21.

Use a Rotary Motion When Brushing Teeth

And Don't Overlook the Gums, Say Experts.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

You brush your teeth, no doubt, in spite of the statistical findings that only something like twenty-five per cent of our people perform this duty daily.

You probably brush yours twice or three times a day. Maybe you have the recommended two brushes to work with alternately. You are particular about the kind of dentrifice you use. You've asked you dentist's advice and follow it, no doubt.

But there is a question about how many out of the number who do brush their teeth brush them the right way. And in this secret of proper brushing is the cue to a longer life for those nice teeth of yours. Nine out of ten people today keep on brushing their teeth back and forth horizontally. Of course, few include the gums in the cleansing operation.

Children are still being taught to brush their teeth this horizontal way with the consequence that frequently one sees the upper rim of youngsters' teeth and the lower edges not in the clean condition they should be. I mean the part close to the gums.

The youngsters simply rub the brush across the teeth from the center. The upper and lower rows are only half cleaned. They should be instructed in the rolling or rotary motion, and older people should adopt this rule, too. The brush begins on the gum tissue, really, works in rotary motion over the closed teeth down to the lower gums. Small areas are divided off for each rotary swing of the brush.

The dentist might be consulted for instructions, in case you feel you are not doing it correctly. After the front is gone over completely in successive circles, the backs of the teeth up to the gums on the upper level and down to them on the lower should be brushed just as vigorously as the front.

The big point to remember is that the gums must be massaged as the teeth are being cleaned. And the part most in need of cleaning is the section where teeth and gum meet. That's where trouble begins, where tartar collects and where pyorrhea gets its hold.

TROUBLED ALL LIFE WITH CONSTIPATION

But Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brought Real Relief

If you are subject to headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness and other effects that so often result from constipation, read Mrs. Turner's voluntary letter.

"For the past six months I have been eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and cannot praise it too highly.

"Am fifty years of age. All my life have been troubled with constipation. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has not only helped me, but has cured me.

"I thought I couldn't like the taste of bran, but Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is delicious."—Mrs. C. J. Turner, 307 Hanover Street, Fall River, Mass.

Tests show ALL-BRAN contains two things which overcome constipation: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines; Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also supplies iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Inside the body it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Certainly this is more natural than taking pills and drugs—so often harmful. ALL-BRAN is not habit-forming. Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct most types of constipation. If you have intestinal trouble not relieved this way, see your doctor.

English Speaking Peoples Are Urged to Work for Peace

Greater friendship between the English speaking peoples was urged yesterday at the annual meeting of the National Society of the Daughters of the British Empire. Nearly 150 delegates from all over the United States attended the first sessions at the Stevens hotel. The convention will continue through Sunday.

"The year has brought many anxious moments to all nations," Mrs. G. Cook Adams, national president, declared at the luncheon meeting. "The world-wide economic crisis has bred in its train distrust which has been aggravated by menacing threats of war. Let us pray that the united efforts of the English speaking peoples will lead the world to recovery and promote a closer international understanding."

Godfrey Haggard, who expects to leave his post as consul general here this summer, welcomed the delegates and described the activities of the home at Hollywood, Ill., for the aged of British ancestry. Another speaker was Mrs. Mary A. Wall, president of the Chicago Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mary Spears Says Dry Law Stumps British

Unable to Grasp U. S. Attitude.

In England, where "liquor is not a political issue and was not mentioned in the recent elections," the average man or woman is completely bewildered by what he or she hears and reads about prohibition in America, Mary Borden Spears declared last night. Mrs. Spears, a former Chicagoan who has lived for years in London, asserted at the Casino club, where a dinner was given for her, that her own feeling against prohibition "could not be too strongly expressed."

"It isn't," she explained, "that English people have any feeling about it one way or the other. But they are appalled at the extent to which they learn prohibition has fostered and enriched the gangster, so much so that they actually are wondering who is going to govern this country ultimately. They hear that the influence of these prohibition made millionaires extends even to high offices, and they are stunned at the possibility. They hear the most about three things in America—the stock market, congress, and the gangster—none of which presents a very happy picture to the Englishman.

"What the women have done and are doing about prohibition I find simply magnificent. Even women who by nature would be drys I have discovered are throwing their strength and efforts against this legislation. I arrived in New York just the day before that amazing parade, and saw the show Mrs. Vincent Astor and Mrs. Sabin put on that night. I have just learned about the drive here in Chicago. It's marvelous—nothing less."

Mrs. Spears will write on the prohibition situation for one of the London newspapers. She leaves Chicago today for Cincinnati and will sail June 4 on her return trip.

BOOKIES FIND FEW SIGNS OF MONEY FAMINE

More Gamblers than Ever, They Say.

Loop hand book operators yesterday revealed there was little evidence in their activities of a pressing money shortage. They report that more than one million dollars is wagered daily through hand books and commission houses in Chicago.

This amount does not include an average of $290,000 gambled daily in the pari-mutuel machines of the Aurora and Sportsman's Park race tracks and the average handle of $37,500 nightly at the Thornton dog track. With these figures the aggregate sum daily runs between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000.

Despite talk of a money shortage and a depression, bookmakers state more persons are betting today than three years ago when business was riding high on a tide of stock inflation. Wagers, however, are considerably smaller and the total handle at Chicago tracks and hand books is said to be less than half of what it was in boom times.

Several Handle $75,000 to $100,000.

Increase in the number of betters is attributed by bookmakers to unemployment. Persons with nothing to occupy their time make wagers in the hope of replenishing a dwindling reserve. For the most part they place their wagers with bookies in the neighborhood or in loop buildings, street corner and lobby news stands, cigar stores, speakeasies, and restaurants.

The estimate of $1,000,000 or more is readily credible when hand book statistics provided by the leading bookies of the loop are studied. Several of the larger houses, perhaps a dozen, handle between $75,000 and $100,000 daily. Much of this is commission money, bet in large sums and placed with the loop operators to be scattered in such a manner that it will not find its way to the track mutuels, where it would cut the odds on the horse on which it is wagered.

Knows 150 in Loop.

In addition to the big fellows who operate with a large and adept staff of helpers in especially equipped offices, there are the neighborhood bookies, cigar stand books, the loop building lobby operators, and the newsstands. One bookie yesterday claimed to have compiled a personal list of 150 books in the loop which do an average business of $1,000 daily. These are not recognized as big operators.

The popularity and the extensiveness with which bookmaking is carried on is further revealed by the statement of another of the larger operatives who started business 25 years ago in a south side ward. There were only two bookies in the entire ward then. Today, he said, he knows of 100 books in an area of two square blocks in the same ward. All these books, he said, "are existing." They handle from $100 to $300 each every day.

Bet $290,000 Daily at Tracks.

Aurora racegoers during the present meeting have played an average of $125,000 daily. At Sportsman's Park, Chicago's half mile track, the daily handle has averaged $165,000. The tracks retain 6½ per cent of all money wagered in the pari-mutuel machines under the Illinois racing law.

These averages, however, are below those of a year ago, when Aurora operated without opposition. Similarly the aggregate of these two is more than $100,000 below the average wagered daily last year at Washington Park. Presuming that Washington Park gets all the play now divided between the two west side tracks, it still will require an additional $100,000 or more to lift the daily handle up to the level of last year's business, bookies point out.

The daily double feature, in which a separate pool is operated on a $2 basis for persons wishing to gamble on their ability to pick winners in two races, has popularized racing considerably, track operatives say. The lure of large purses for small investments has induced a greater number of persons to go to the tracks. This feature also has a regular place on the dog race program at Thornton.

Bookie Runs Daily Double.

Viewing the daily double at the track as a menace because it takes players from downtown hand books, one bookie has established a daily double in the loop. It is called the Chicago daily double to distinguish it from those at the track and is operated on the third race at Aurora and the third race at Sportsman's Park. It is based on $1 bets, instead of $2, the price of tickets at Aurora, Sportsman's Park, and Thornton, and pa'd $568 for $1, the record price, several days ago.

Thornton dog track apparently is suffering less from the depression than the horse tracks. The average handle for the first few weeks of the season is $37,500 nightly on ten races and the daily double. This is virtually the same as last year, track officials state. Thornton, operating under an injunction until the Supreme court hands down a ruling on the legality of pari-mutuel betting on dog racing, takes 10 per cent of all money wagered.

HOW FOOTBALL COACHES PASS THE TIME IN THE SPRING

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The White Sox are home in higher spirits than you might suppose, ready to do battle with the Detroit Tigers in four games of baseball to be played in three days beginning this afternoon. The first White Sox double header of the season will be played with the Tigers on Sunday.

Three victories in a row, even against such a foe as the Boston Red Sox, did much to buoy up the Sox with an exuberance that was not destroyed by the 13 to 10 flop suffered in the final game of the eastern invasion.

There was considerable comment on the trip home over the way Manager Fonseca crossed up the boys in the press box in the ninth inning of that last Red Sox game, laying down a sacrifice when the plans of the authors called for a hit, preferably a home run.

The White Sox had made three runs in the ninth and, with one out, Appling was on second and Lyons, running for Berry, was on first. The score was Red Sox, 13; White Sox, 10. This was the setting when Boss Lew appointed himself as pinch batter for Caraway.

Fonseca is a left field hitter. The Boston wall long has been an easy target for his powerful shots. So there was much Boston apprehension when Fonseca went to the plate against the righthanded Mr. Kline. If Lew could knock a homer over that short fence the score would be tied and there would be only one out. If he could hit the fence, as he has done so many times, the White Sox would be only one run behind with one out and the tying run on second and possibly on third.

Imagine, therefore, the great astonishment when Fonseca laid down a sacrifice bunt for the second out, which served only to move Appling to third and Lyons to second and left Funk at bat. Funk walked to fill the bases, and the game ended on Selph's grounder.

Of course, if Fonseca's surprise move had worked and he had been able to beat out the bunt for a hit, leaving the bases full with one out, things might have resulted differently, and Lou would have been hailed as a great guy.

VENZKE BEATEN IN HIS 1,000 YARD OUTDOOR DEBUT

New York, May 19.—(AP)—Gene Venzke, holder of the world's indoor mile record, was beaten in his first outdoor race of the season tonight. He finished third behind Otto Rosner and George Bullwinkle of the New York A. C., in the 1,000 yard run at the New York Curb exchange track and field meet.

Venzke made a futile attempt to catch Rosner, former Princeton ace, in the last lap, and then faltered in the final strides to allow Bullwinkle to take second place. Venzke finished three yards back of Rosner.

Rosner covered the 1,000 yards in 2:12 1-5, only one-fifth of a second slower than the American record made by Larry Brown of the University of Pennsylvania in 1921.

Rosner ran a well judged race to defeat the field of five, including Frank Nordell and James Maloney of New York university, and E. F. Cahalan of the Boston Athletic association.

Coming up from fourth place as the gun barked the start of the final lap, Rosner opened a long lead with Venzke running strong in second place. The indoor mile champion managed to close much of the space as the pair swung into the short stretch, with Rosner leading by inches.

Venzke was unable to answer Rosner's final burst of speed, however, and staggered across the line as Bullwinkle closed with a great burst of speed to finish a yard back of the winner.

Petrolle vs. Battalino Tonight; They're Fighters, Not Boxers

BY WILFRID SMITH.

A couple of good fighters, both Italians, whose common ambition in life is to snatch the lightweight championship from another Italian, Tony Canzoneri, meet tonight at the Chicago Stadium. The winner, who may be either Billy Petrolle or Bat Battalino, expects to receive that title opportunity.

Tonight's bout is a fight. For the first time in months that word, fight, often misused, has a proper place in advance copy. Tonight's fight will be just that. It is not an exhibition, a presentation of the unusual, as in Primo Carnera's trips to Chicago, nor is it a boxing match. Probably no two fighters in the same weight division throw back to the old school of pugilism as do the Battler and Billy.

No Sideshow Appeal.

Strangely enough, because Petrolle and Battalino promise to fight, the match does not have the drawing power that wild swinging Levinsky or mammoth Carnera possesses. But you can wager that Chicago's real fight fans will be out tonight, although the casual fan, attracted only by the unusual, will be elsewhere. Perhaps this is the reason the most optimistic guesses of Stadium officials place the attendance at 15,000 and the probable gross receipts at $45,000. If such is true, however, each of the principals will receive approximately $11,000.

Two months ago Petrolle stopped Battalino in 12 rounds in New York's Garden. This accounts for Billy's advantage in the wagering, such as it is. Then, too, Petrolle has won 40 per cent of his bouts by knockouts, although some of the names on his list, which stretches over eight years, are

BIG TEN TRACK STARS MUST DO TODAY OR NEVER

Three Hundred Seek to Qualify at Evanston.

Qualifying trials will be held at Dyche stadium, Evanston, this afternoon in 11 of the individual events in the Western conference track and field meet. The preliminaries will start at 3 o'clock. Most of the 300 athletes, who represent the ten universities, will be in action.

Finals in 16 events, the complete track and field program which includes the one mile relay, are scheduled tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the same field. All proceeds will be donated to the American Olympic fund.

This morning at 10 o'clock the athletic directors and football coaches of the conference will assemble at the North Shore hotel, Evanston, to draw up football schedules for 1933. The rotating program of games which has been in effect in recent seasons has expired and the directors and coaches are expected to draw up another. The schedule for this fall was arranged last spring.

Draw Up Grid Cards.

The athletic directors and the faculty representatives will hold their semi-annual meeting tomorrow night. Routine business only will be brought up.

Preliminary events this afternoon may determine which of the three title favorites, Ohio State, Michigan and Indiana, will have the best chance to capture the 32d Big Ten championship. Five events are not on today's schedule. They are: one mile and two mile runs, the mile relay, pole vault and high jump.

While three universities have excellent chances to win, Illinois also is considered a possibility but principally because of the great record of the Illini which shows they have won 11 championships, the same number accounted for by the Wolverines.

Keller Ohio's Hope.

Ohio rests its claim to the title on Jack Keller, hurdler; Don Bennett, sprinter; John Wonsowitz, pole vaulter; Ralston Russell, high jumper, and Earl Johnson, hammer thrower. These men are backed up by others considered certain to win points, including Jess Fazekas in the dashes and Capt. Black, a hurdler.

Indiana's greatest strength is in the distance races where Henry Brocksmith will try for new conference records in the mile and two mile runs. Brocksmith, a product of cross country, won both races indoors and set new marks. Brocksmith must run the mile in better time than 4 minutes 15 8-10 seconds, the present record held by Fall of Oberlin college since 1917, and the two miles in faster time than 9 minutes 21 9-10 seconds, the mark established last year by George Wright of Wisconsin, if he is to set new standards in this meet.

Indiana Is Strong.

In addition to Beecher and Brocksmith, Indiana will have Charles Hornboestel, indoor one-half mile champion, and Noble Biddinger, hammer thrower. Ivan Fuqua is expected to place high in the 440 yard race. Beecher also is entered in the high jump.

Capt. Frank Purma of Illinois, who last week threw the discus farther than the present Big Ten record, is one of the stars. His nearest rival for the title won last year by Gregory Kabat of Wisconsin, is Brooks of Michigan.

Clarence Munn of Minnesota will defend his shot put title. George Saling of Iowa, who broke the Drake relays record for the 120 yard high hurdles with a mark of 14 4-10 seconds, will lead the band of Hawkeyes which, however, is not expected to place in the first division.

Boilermakers Enter Ten.

Purdue will be represented by ten men, none of whom, however, is outstanding. John Brooks, University of Chicago Negro, who set a broad jump record at the Drake relays, is expected to win this event.

All marks made in the preliminaries will be accepted as conference records if they surpass the existing marks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., May 19.—Old Burleigh Grimes today was the scrapping Grimes you have read about. Tired toward the finish, but fighting doggedly, he hung on through a long afternoon until his Cub teammates presented him with a twelfth inning run which knocked down the rising Reds, 4 to 3, in the opener of the series.

Heroes of all shapes and sizes crowded to the front at various times to keep Grimes from going completely under in a battle that became more heated as it progressed.

The infield gave him support so perfect that it was almost mechanical. The hitters gave him enough to keep him from falling behind. Twice they even had him out in front by slim margins. But all the heroes, with due respect for their deeds, had to bow themselves out gracefully for Riggs Stephenson, who almost clinched victory in the tenth with one hit and did win it in the twelfth with another.

Both Score in Tenth.

The Reds, with a pair of the fourteen hits with which they kept Grimes almost on the ropes from start to finish, made their first scoring impression with a run in the fourth. The Cubs wiped out this and assumed a 2 to 1 lead in the sixth by bunching some drives off Owen Carroll, who was even better than Grimes at dodging disaster. The Reds came back and tied it again in the seventh. Then the Chicagoans, principally because of Stephenson's hit after two were gone, went out in front again in the tenth. But the Reds knotted it again in their half, and that's the way it stood until Stephenson came up in the twelfth.

Richbourg, hitless all afternoon, had the honor of starting the death march for Carroll. He singled to center and Herman sacrificed. English walked, partly compensating for his failure with a runner on third and none out in the tenth. Moore, also a tenth inning failure, filed out. This put it squarely up to Stephenson. In the tenth he had made good with a double. This time an intentional pass would have been the logical method for disposing of him. But Carroll pitched and Stevie pounded a single over second, sending Richbourg over the plate with the deciding run.

Double Plays Aid Grimes.

In his two previous starts this season Grimes had all sorts of trouble in the first inning, and it seemed that the same thing would happen this afternoon. He opened by walking Douthit. Moore ran to the fence, 400 feet from the plate, to grab Grantham's fly. Babe Herman complicated matters by singling to left, but the threat was cleaned up when Jurges captured Hafey's grounder and put a double play in motion. The only other hit yielded by Grimes before the fourth was Lombardi's single to open the second. A double play fixed that.

In the Cubs' second it began to appear that Carroll was enjoying the help of a rabbit's foot or horseshoe, or both. Stephenson and Hartnett singled with one out, but Grimm bounced to Grantham for a double play and Jurges doubled past third to start the third inning. Grimes was out attempting to bunt and Richbourg flied to right. Billy Herman was held to a single by Gilbert's great stop of a bounder close to the bag. Jurges couldn't go any farther than third on it, and the session closed when English was tossed out by Grantham. Another double play spoiled the Cubs' chances in the fourth after Moore had led off with a single.

Two Out; Then Reds Score.

The Reds didn't start their half of the fourth as if they had any plans for run getting. Grantham and Babe Herman, the first two to appear, were set down without trouble. Then Hafey adjusted his shatterproof spectacles and aimed a two-bagger to right. He

Who's Who in Women's Golf

By Betty Eckersall

VIRGINIA INGRAM.

Thirteen years of consistent golf have brought Miss Virginia Ingram the women's championship of the Sunset Ridge Country club for the last seven years and the honor of being the only woman scratch player in that organization.

VIRGINIA INGRAM.

While a co-ed at Northwestern Miss Ingram was a member of the women's golf team and held the university women's championship in 1926, 1927, and 1928.

The case of Miss Ingram is that of a pupil surpassing the teacher, for her father was her first instructor, and is getting used to being defeated by his daughter. Miss Ingram is teaching in the North Shore Country Day school, but in her spare hours she gets in at least nine holes of golf with her father as her partner.

Miss Ingram is interested in all other sports activities, but she allows no other sport to interfere with her golf. Although it's early in the season, she is shooting almost a par game over the Sunset Ridge course, where women's par is 79.

Miss Ingram plans to compete in the women's western championship at Peoria, the women's western medal play at the Knollwood Country club, and the majority of the outstanding Chicago district meets. She has been picked on the American golf team, which will represent the Women's Western Golf association in a match with a Canadian team at Winnipeg, June 22 to 24.

Hafey Hits Three Doubles to Boost Average 10 Points

Chick Hafey again was the shining light among the big six batsmen of the major leagues yesterday. He walloped three doubles in five times at bat and was the only one of the stars to register a gain, improving his average by ten points.

Earle Combs of the Yankees came into the sextet when he went to bat eight times in a doubleheader and thus became officially listed as a regular with more than 60 trips to the plate. He hit four times to gain a .364 average which won him third place in the American league ahead of Tony Lazzeri and Carl Reynolds. The standing:

Petrolle and Battalino to Fight Tonight

He's Got Plenty of Punch.

King Tut, Stanley Loayza, Tommy Grogan, Spud Myers have fallen before the Fargo kid. More recently Billy Townsend, Eddie Ran, and Battalino could not stand before the power of Petrolle's driving fists. Some of these fighters had more success in subsequent matches, but who will dispute Petrolle's knockout power? Or deny his courage?

And Battalino, featherweight champion until he no longer could make the 126 pound limit, has a record of 14 knockouts in 53 fights. Enigma of the ring, Battalino met and defeated all the featherweight contenders. Considered fortunate that he received a championship bout with Andre Routis, from whom he won in 1929, the Battler later whipped Kid Chocolate, Fidel La Barba, and Earl Mastro. Battalino knocked out Al Singer in one round and duplicated that triumph against Bushy Graham at the Stadium.

Battalino's belief that he will win tonight is based on the convincing argument that he has won return matches from Bud Taylor and Eddie Shea after losing to these men. By his reasoning he discounts his licking two months ago.

Petrolle to Hold Weight Edge.

Petrolle is expected to weigh 139 pounds, one pound under the weight agreed. Battalino, when he steps on the commission scales this afternoon, probably will weigh 135 pounds. Both came through their training without injury and both apparently are in the best of form. But it's not form that will count tonight; it's endurance.

There are five supporting bouts, two of which are of particular interest to Chicago. Barney Ross, one time Golden Glover, will fight eight rounds with Dick Sisk, coming youngster from the south side. Sisk knocked out Ruby Goldstein at the last Stadium show. The other is a six round bout between Paul Dazzo and Sammy Levine, former members of the Golden Gloves amateur teams. One of these featherweights soon may crowd the division leaders, and tonight's elimination will settle the local strife.

Wistort Fights Cancela.

Petee Wistort and Tony Cancela are booked for six rounds. Wistort substituted for Joe Dokter, heavyweight conqueror of Baxter Calmes. Larry Udell, who is a member of the Petrolle group managed by Jack Hurley, is matched with Mickey Patrick, from East Chicago, Ind. The four round opener brings together Kelly Kulac and Solly Dukelsky.

The first bout will start at 8:15 and Petrolle and Battalino are expected to be in the ring shortly before 10 o'clock. The bout will not be broadcast.

Jack Kilbourne, claimant of the middleweight championship of Australia, will leave today for Pittsburgh where he fights Harry Harris Monday. The bout is set for ten rounds at 160 pounds. Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, meets Battling Gizzy in a nontitle bout on the same card. Kilbourne has not fought out of Chicago since he defeated Roy Williams at White City over two months ago.

Sam Buxbaum, Chicago trainer, left last night for Minneapolis to handle Eddie Shea against Johnny Farr of Cleveland tonight. Shea and his manager, Joe Glaser, have been in Minneapolis since Sunday. The bout will be the third between Shea and Farr, each having won one.

Harry Dublinsky, local boxer, will go to Philadelphia tomorrow for a match against Benny Bass, former junior lightweight champion, Wednesday. He will be accompanied by his manager, Jack Elle. The Bass match will be Harry's first since he met Lew Massey at Philadelphia several weeks ago. Massey was offered the bout, but he refused it.

Tony Herrera signed yesterday to headline a show at Pittsburgh on June 6. His opponent has not been selected.

The Card

Billy Petrolle vs. Sal Battalino, 140 [10].
Barney Ross vs. Dick Sisk, 139 [8].
Pete Wistort vs. Tony Cancela, heavies [6].
Larry Udell vs. Mickey Patrick, 175 [6].
Paul Dazzo vs. Sammy Levine, 129 [6].
Kelly Kulac vs. Solly Dukelsky, 150 [4].

400 Compete in Little 19 Meet Today

Monmouth, Ill., May 19.—[Special.]—Four hundred athletes representing 19 of the 22 colleges in the Little Nineteen conference will meet here tomorrow and Saturday in the annual conference outdoor track meet.

Five of the colleges, Bradley Polytechnic, defending champion; State Normal, 1932 indoor champion; Carbondale Normal, Monmouth, and North Central of Naperville, are conceded a good chance to win the meet. State Normal rules as the favorite, however.

Lambert Redd, Bradley's all-around track star, whose efforts carried his team to the championship a year ago, will be the individual attraction. Redd won the 100 yard dash, high hurdles, low hurdles, broad jump and tied for second in the high jump to win high point honors of the meet in 1931.

James Johnson, Negro sprinter from State Normal, probably will break the 100 yard dash mark. The record is held jointly by Swanson of Lombard and Taylor of Knox at 9.8. Johnson has run the distance four times this year in 9.7.

State Normal rules the universal favorite because of a great squad of distance men: Hutton, Fricke, Wallace, Nicol, and others. Preliminaries in dashes, hurdles and middle distance events will open the meet tomorrow afternoon. Semi-finals and finals will be held Saturday afternoon.

Illinois Prep Track Meet Opens Today

Champaign, Ill., May 19.—[Special.]—A field of 520 athletes from 174 high schools will await the starter's gun tomorrow afternoon in the preliminaries of the 38th Illinois state interscholastic track meet at the University of Illinois under the auspices of the Illinois High School Athletic association.

The finals for the state championship will be contested Saturday morning. Oak Park, champion for the last two years, will defend its title with the prestige of supremacy in the district meet at La Grange. Senn and Schurz, champion and runner-up in the Chicago district meet, are regarded as strong rivals to the suburbanites.

The other district champions, which are represented by all their point winners in the qualifying meets, are Decatur, East Aurora, East St. Louis, Fairbury, Galesburg, Glenbard [Glen Ellyn], La Salle-Peru, Monticello, Rock Island, Rockford, Springfield, and Sumner [Cairo].

Five first place winners from last year return: Stephen, Joliet, who created a new shot put record last year; Quinlan, New Trier, 220 yard dash; Pollard, Senn, high hurdles, and Swisher, Peoria Central, and Beltzner, Joliet, who tied for first in the pole vault.

Preliminaries in the state interscholastic golf and tennis meets will also be played tomorrow afternoon. Don Jones, Joliet, last year's champion, leads a field of 65 golfers, representing 41 schools. In tennis 43 schools have qualified 32 contestants in singles and 64 in doubles.

An Illinois-Michigan baseball game will be played Saturday afternoon and the traditional student circus will be held Saturday night.

SENATORS BEAT YANKS TWICE IN 1ST PLACE BATTLE

New York, May 19.—(AP)—The Washington Senators brought the Yankees' string of successes to an abrupt end today and slugged and walked their way into a virtual tie with New York for the American league lead by winning both games of a double header. The scores were 8 to 6 and 12 to 7. The first game went 10 innings.

The double triumph left the Yankees in first place by only four percentage points.

George Pipgras went eight innings before he gave way to a pinch hitter in a rally which gave the Yankees their first tie. They knotted the count again in the ninth with the aid of an error and a forced-in run after Combs' misplay had given Washington a pair. Carl Reynolds started Washington's tenth inning with a triple and scored after a pair of passes on a pinch single by Dave Harris. Then Walter Brown walked in one run.

Babe Ruth, who failed to hit in six tries in the first game, started the second off with a flourish by hitting his eighth home run of the season with Lary on base in the first inning. Score:

Kingbird and Crow Pals If Owl's Around

BY BOB BECKER.

Apparently it takes a great horned owl to bring the crow and the kingbird together as temporary allies in a fight against a bird of prey which nearly every bird fears. The other day, while picking off a few crows on a farm west of Wheaton, we witnessed the amusing partnership between a crow and a kingbird when we placed our mounted horned owl decoy on a fence post.

The place selected for our blind was a small clump of wild crab trees at the edge of a narrow open field. On two sides of this field grew many acres of oak timber. An unused wooden fence post stood upright in the ground about 25 feet from the clump of small trees under which we sat, fairly well hidden by the spring vegetation. On this post we placed the great horned owl decoy.

Pleasant in Shady Blind.

It was very pleasant in the shade of the small crab trees, so we leaned back, waiting to see if the owl would be discovered by song birds in the woods or thickets nearby. In one hand we had the crow caller and the other rested on the double barrel 16 gauge gun, ready for a quick shot.

It must have been too warm for a crow hunter to stay awake, possibly our position must have been too comfortable, because we gradually felt that it didn't make much difference if crows came around or not. Suddenly the sharp quick caw, caw, caw of a crow made us sit up and reach for the gun. Peering through the branches we saw nary a crow in flight.

The only visible bird was a kingbird. He was fighting mad and ready to knock the stuffing out of that big horned owl, 20 times his size. The single crow which was calling kept out of sight. But the kingbird, always the bearer of a special grudge against the crow and willing to harass and chase them, was darting around that owl and backing up the crow that was making all the noise.

Almost Forgets to Shoot.

We were so taken up with the antics of the kingbird that we almost forgot to shoot at a crow which came within range. Not until we fired the gun and dropped the bird did the aggressive and pugnacious kingbird call off the war.

As a rule the sight of a crow is a signal for an attack by a kingbird. But here was an occasion when he forgot his feud and joined in an attack against the much hated and feared horned owl.

YALE AND CHICAGO.

HARVARD and Yale athletic authorities have cut the price of admission to football games on their schedules for this fall. Thereby we are given Yale's appraisal of University of Chicago football prowess measured by the most practical yardstick, the dollar.

Cash customers to the Harvard, Princeton, and Army combats against the Bulldogs will pay $4. Those attending the Dartmouth fray will be assessed $3. Yet for a two case note, the price of a collegiate pint of gin, it will be possible to gaze upon the pupils of that venerable alumnus, Amos Alonzo Stagg, to celebrate whose 40th year of coaching on the Midway, Yale's football squad made its first trip in history west of the Allegheny mountains last fall.

The Wake finds no fault with this estimate of Maroon worth on the gridiron. Indeed from the trouncing given a weak Chicago's eleven at Stagg field athletic authorities at the New Haven seat of culture might have priced the Maroon drawing power at $1.25 or $1.60 instead of $2. Indeed, we suspect the $2 price also is a compliment to an honored alumnus.

Even if some of these Chicago sophomore prospects come through as advertised and the Maroons are indeed better than for several years, $2 still seems a fair price with the game played at New Haven where no traditional rivalry with the west exists. It might be possible the Maroons will be worth $2.25 to watch, but even Prof. Irving Fisher, Yale economist and analyst who essays to forecast business and market trends, could hardly be expected to cast his soothsayer's skill into this field for the benefit of Yale's athletic council.

So it's well to know just where we stand. The Wake has no purpose in this discussion unless to suggest to Director Stagg and his Maroons that they give the Elis a little more than $2 worth of football. The most convincing way would be to emerge on the long end of the score.

Cubs Conquer Cincinnati in 12 Innings, 4-3

legged it for home on a single into center by Lombardi. Jurges put a stop to the gaiety by reaching for Gilbert's grounder in deep short and pegging to second in time to force the lumbering Lombardi.

Even though the Cubs jumped ahead with two runs in the sixth, Carroll still was lucky. Otherwise there might have been at least another tally. Richbourg died on a grounder and Billy Herman crashed a single through short. English did the same thing. Moore took an easy swing and aimed a drive past Gilbert for two bases. Herman scored easily and English, unmindful of the chance he was taking, tore around to the plate. He made it by the width of an eyelash. The throw to the plate let Moore go to third, whence a fly ball or almost anything would have scored him, but Stephenson popped to Heath and Hartnett was thrown out by Durocher.

Reds Tie Score in Seventh.

The Reds had Grimes guessing again in their portion of the sixth, but he wriggled safely through the murderous part of their attack. Douthit bounced out by way of short. Grantham lined to center, but the ball had a hook on it and slipped off the tips of Moore's fingers for a double. The mighty Babe Herman was taken care of by Jurges' throw to Grimm. Grimes displayed enough respect for Hafey to pitch him nothing but wide balls, so the bespectacled ex-Cardinal star walked. Then it became a matter of suppressing Lombardi. This was done satisfactorily on a roller to W. Herman.

The run with which the Reds tied the score in a wild seventh inning was started by Gilbert's single to center. Heath lined low to left and Stephenson tried a diving catch but the ball bounced off his chest and rolled back toward the infield. He jumped up, grabbed the ball, and made a peg which was so perfect that English didn't have to move his hands to touch Gilbert's spikes as he ripped into third. Heath went to second on the play. Lucas, batting for Durocher, tapped to Grimes, who ran down Heath between second and third. Lucas took second, where he was relieved by Heathcote. Grimes then made the mistake of passing the hostile pitcher. Douthit followed with a single on which Heathcote scored.

Reds Fill Bases.

Grimes slid through the eighth with nothing less than a full house. He started by fanning Babe Herman. Hafey lined to center and stretched it into a double when he noticed Moore wasn't hurrying the return throw. Lombardi was passed purposely, and the second out was recorded immediately on Gilbert's fly to Richbourg. Four wide pitches which weren't intentionally that way gave Heath a pass and filled the bases. Morrissey's fly to Stephenson relieved the tension.

What for a few minutes in the tenth seemed the winning run for the Cubs was started when Billy Herman's drive bounced back off the left field concrete wall for a triple. Both English and Moore fell down in this pinch, the former on a pop foul to Gilbert, and Moore on three pitched balls which were all strikes. But Stephenson rammed a two bagger into the left field corner and Herman hiked home. Hartnett grounded to Gilbert to end the inning.

That Pesty Hafey!

Grimes started the Reds' tenth as if he were going to hustle right through to the finish. He fanned Babe Herman for the second time. Hafey tore off his third two bagger and registered the tying run on Lombardi's single. High batted for Gilbert and bounced to Grimm, whose throw to second forced Crabtree, pinch runner for Lombardi. Then Heath walked, but English flagged Morrissey's grounder and stepped on third.

After getting his winning run Grimes still had a bit more suffering to go through. After two were gone in the twelfth, High singled to center and tore to third on Heath's single to right. But Morrissey bounced politely to Billy Herman and that was all.

Warneke Will Try to Start Another Victory String

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., May 19.—Lonnie Warneke, who held a string of five straight victories until he encountered the Phillies last Sunday, will try to start a new winning streak tomorrow in the second game of the set with the Reds. Ben Frey, who is back in the Rhineland after an uneventful month with the Cardinals, will be Dan Howley's pick.

Mr. Grimes hasn't abandoned his habit of foregoing a shave on the days he is slated for work. He carried enough chin whiskers today to be eligible for the House of David team.

The attendance today was 3,500, which, considering that the Reds just now are town heroes and the Cubs are leading the league, wasn't especially impressive.

Self-defense gave Carroll a chance to start a double play in the fourth. Moore opened with a single and Stephenson drove a hot liner straight toward the pit of Carroll's stomach. The pitcher had to grab to avoid injury. Luckily he grabbed in the right spot. Then he threw to first to double Moore.

The radio announcers would have gone into ecstasies over a catch made by the inimitable Babe Herman on a long fly to right center by Grimm in the fifth. The Babe got it by reaching up with his gloved hand while on the dead run. The play appeared good but Babe could have caught it easily if he hadn't misjudged the drive.

Manager Hornsby was the first member of the Cub party to turn up with a new straw hat. He explained that it wasn't a desire to set the sartorial pace with the club. The skimmer was presented to him by an admirer.

The Reds have seven outfielders and the time is drawing nigh when two of them will have to be dispensed with. Hafey and Herman are the only certainties. The five on the doubtful list are Douthit, Heilmann, Heathcote, Roettger, and Crabtree.

Pirates Beat Dodgers, 3-2; Divide Series

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 19.—[Special.]—Pittsburgh's Pirates batted Joe Shaute hard today, but they had to wait until the eighth inning to score the two runs which gave them a 3 to 2 decision over Brooklyn. Two singles, a hit batsman, a force play and a fly accounted for the winning runs. The victory gave the Pirates an even break in the four game series. Score:

INDIANA DROPS OUT OF BIG TEN GOLF TITLE MEET

Minneapolis, Minn., May 19.—[Special.]—With the last minute withdrawal of Indiana, only nine teams will compete for the Big Ten conference golf championship here tomorrow. Five men were to have represented the Hoosier institution, but word was received here late today that the golfers would not make the trip.

Illinois, winner of the team title last year, is the favorite to retain its championship, while an individual champion will be crowned as Dick Martin, Illinois, last year's winner, will not be in this year's competition.

NATIONAL LEAGUE RESCINDS GAG RULING, $5 FINE

No Change in American Circuit—Harridge.

New York, May 19.—[Special.]—The National league "gag" rule, prohibiting ball players from speaking to spectators on penalty of a $5 fine, has been rescinded, President John A. Heydler announced today. This action was taken as a result of general opposition to the measure.

Rabbit Maranville, Boston Braves shortstop, and Gabby Street, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, were the only men fined under the rule.

The American league has a similar regulation, but no move has been made to take it off the books and the younger circuit probably will not follow the example of the National, according to Ed Barrow, business manager of the Yankees. Its purpose is to prevent gamblers from obtaining information from players as to who is to pitch.

Maranville was reported for infringement of the rule because he spoke to his wife, who was sitting in the stands at Braves field. Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, also was reprimanded by an umpire for addressing a player at the Stadium.

RULE STANDS—HARRIDGE

So far there has been no movement to rescind the American league rule prohibiting players from talking with spectators at baseball games, President Will Harridge said yesterday.

"Although the National league rescinded its rule as too unpopular, the rule in the American league still stands," Harridge said. "There hasn't been a suggestion among club owners to change it."

WAR GLOW PAYS NEW OWNER FOR BOARD AND STALL

Captures Aurora Feature Before 12,000.

BY FRENCH LANE.

War Glow, flyer from the Pacific coast and a 3 year old son of War Cry-Shadow Light, is a good natured sort of a fellow. He runs kindly for any owner and under silks of any color.

After he had won two in a row at Aurora in the green and white jacket of J. D. Mikel, Illinois turfman, he was taken on a claim of $4,500 by O. L. Foster, another of our Illinois horsemen.

War Glow made his debut yesterday in Mr. Foster's blue and brown silks in the E. J. Baker handicap, a dash at 6 furlongs. Most of the folks in the record week day crowd of 12,000 liked his chances, so he became an odds on choice.

There was backing for Mrs. Emil Denemark's Blackstrap, for the fleet Capacity, and for Dollar Princess. But the crowd had guessed right on War Glow. He ran just as well for Owner Foster and for Jockey D. Cox as he had been running for Owner Mikel and Jockey King. He leaped out into the lead when Morrissey, the starter, pushed the electric button and shouted "Come on." He was in front the rest of the way, although Capacity showed a dash of speed early and hung right with him.

Longer Route No Handicap.

Rounding the bend War Glow pulled out into a commanding lead, but even then skeptics seemed to think he would be whipped. His two earlier victories had been at 5½ furlongs and this race was a half furlong longer. But War Glow never shortened a stride and at the finish was more than three lengths in front of Blackstrap. Dollar Princess made up some ground to be third.

War Glow's time wasn't particularly sensational, it being 1:12 3-5, but he didn't have to run faster. In the mutuels he paid $3.50, which was a juicy dividend on such a short term investment.

"Come seven, now eleven." You could almost hear 157 customers shouting the lucky numbers. No they were not down on their knees bouncing the galloping dominoes out of the palms of their hands. Instead they had coupled Lillian Z., the No. 7 horse, to win the second race and Alamae, the No. 11 horse, to capture the third.

Double Pays $47.86.

That's what the 7-11 combination did, and the 157 folks were happy to get $47.86 for their $2 tickets. There was nearly $8,000 in the daily double pool.

It was all right for Lillian Z. to win the second race. She had triumphed quite impressively only a few days ago over about the same sort of horses. But for Alamae to whip Aquaplane by three-quarters of a length, well that was something else again. Just six days ago Aquaplane and Alamae met in about the same sort of a tussle. That day Aquaplane beat Alamae by 11 lengths.

There was a change in jockeys on Alamae from Hernandez to Reno. That made some difference. But why worry about it? These $1,500 platers beat each other just about every time they come together.

BELMONT PARK RESULTS.

PLAY BIRD would have been closer but for being crowded in the back stretch. GEORGE JR., a slow beginner, made up much ground.

BLACK STRAP could not keep up with the early leaders, but stayed a game finish to best the others. DOLLAR PRINCESS saved ground in the stretch. CAPACITY tired badly. DECORATION LADY was shut off soon after the start.

RUNAR followed the pace of UNDERDUN closely to the stretch, then took command, and had UNDERDUN in rather close quarters nearing the wire. UNDERDUN had the most early speed and held on gamely when challenged. PERFECT PLAY was under restraint in the early stages but could not improve his position when speed was exerted. PLAY BIRD would have been closer but for being crowded in the back stretch. GEORGE JR., a slow beginner, made up much ground.

PACKERS ASK U.S. SUPREME COURT FOR A REHEARING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—Attorneys for Swift & Co. and Armour & Co. today filed with the United States Supreme court a petition asking a rehearing and a reversal of the court's recent 4 to 2 decision denying the packers a modification of the 1920 consent decree to permit them to deal in groceries and other nonmeat products.

Counsel for the packers based their petition on five grounds, chief of which was a contention that the Supreme court had erred by founding its decision on the assumption that the packing companies, in consenting to the 1920 decree, had confessed or had been found guilty of violations of the anti-trust laws.

Deny Waiving Their Right.

Next, the attorneys claimed that the court had overlooked the fact that the government, in entering into the 1920 decree, had waived any future right to maintain that the consent of the defendants to the restraints of the decree should be considered in granting or refusing any subsequent modification.

As the three remaining grounds for their petition, counsel asserted that the court had misunderstood the allegations of the original bill of complaint relative to the reasons for limiting the packers' activities; that the court assumed that the original decree was intended to protect the wholesale grocers, whereas it was intended to protect the whole public; and that the court ignored the fact that a food monopoly is not possible.

The petition pointed out that the four justices who had decided against the packers had made much of past offenses by the packing companies; the assertion was made in Justice Cardozo's opinion that abuses had been "proved" in the past, that "aggressions" had been committed and a "war of extermination" carried on.

On the contrary, the petition declared, the charges contained in the 1920 bill of complaint were denied and never proved. No admission of them was made, and the stipulation under which the consent decree was entered specified that the packers' consent should not be construed as an admission or an adjudication that the packers had violated the law.

Must Keep to Record.

Investigations of the packing industry were cited by the government in opposing modification of the decree, but the court cannot take such testimony as evidence of violations of the law, but must keep to the record, the petition maintained.

The petition also pointed out that the Cardozo decision had brought up the fact of the defendants' consent. It had been agreed, said packers' counsel, that this point could not be made by the government in any litigation concerning a modification of the decree. It was therefore erroneous, the lawyers argued, for the court to have considered the fact of the consent.

As to the other grounds for a rehearing the petition declared the court had taken as one premise for its ruling, that the original complaint had asked for restraint of the packers because they could transport groceries without increase in overhead. The sole basis of the complaint, said the petition, was an allegation that the packers were acquiring a monopoly as to food products. And that sole realonger exists, the attorneys contended. son for restraining the packers no

Dangers of Food Monopoly.

The court's opinion stated that the question was whether restraint on the packers could be removed "without prejudice to the interests of the classes whom this particular restraint was intended to protect."

"We respectively submit," the petition stated, "that the controlling question in this case is not whether the restraint against the sale of groceries can be removed without prejudice to the wholesale grocers, but whether it can be removed without thereby incurring dangers of a food monopoly."

LIONS ROAR THEIR TEA TIME SONG FOR RADIO FANS

Feeding of Big Cats in Broadcast by W-G-N.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

The lions of the Lincoln park zoo were in fine voice yesterday for their radio debut over W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE station. Hack, Major, Alfred, and the other lions who roared for the radio multitude proved to have basso profundo voices of the first quality. As for range and volume, it took only one roar at close quarters, to catapult a feminine reporter six feet away from the cage in one split second. A chorus of mirth from the crowd jamming the lionhouse for the broadcast greeted this vocal feat.

While the great cats leaped and dashed about in the cages a few inches from his shoulder, Quin Ryan, handling the microphone for the animal artists, leaned against the coping with his back to the beasts. Hack—named for a baseball player, one Mr. Wilson of the Brooklyn team—took this cold shouldering as a personal insult. He growled. He pawed the floor furiously and rapidly and emitted protesting and terrifying rumbles. He lifted one huge paw and swiped it viciously down the bars just behind the announcer. But nothing happened.

Heard at Feeding Hour.

The lions put on their performance at the regular daily feeding hour, when ten pounds of beef is tossed into the cage of each lion and tiger, and smaller portions fall to the lot of the jaguars and panthers. Any one who has not witnessed the routine uproar in the lion house at four o'clock each afternoon except Sunday, has missed a real experience.

Richard Auer, zoo foreman for twenty-three years, captained the crew of caretakers who handled the strange broadcast. He explained that, even though beasts must fast on Sunday because it is better for them, they never get restless at the regular feeding hour then, partly because they are used to it, but mostly because it is not until they smell the meat that they are tantalized into the uproar.

Two Roar the Loudest.

A stationary microphone was set just outside the cages of Hack and Alfred, who always roar the loudest. Hack is a splendid type of genuine wild lion, captured in Africa for the zoo. Alfred, named for the superintendent of the zoo, Alfred E. Parker, was born in captivity in Los Angeles and presented to Mr. Parker. But their tactics are identical when the odor of raw meat reaches them daily.

Carrying a telephone microphone, Quin Ryan followed the progress of the lions' "tea cart" down past the cages, detailing to the audience the antics of the beasts as the tidbits were tossed under or shoved through the bars.

Messiah, Hollywood Bound, Keeps His 7 Year Silence

New York, May 19.—(AP)—Shri Meher Baba, whose disciples call him the Messiah, came from far away India today to kindle "American materialism" with the fires of Zoroastrianism. Surrounded by a retinue of followers in Hindu dress, he stood on the deck of the incoming Bremen and looked profound while his aides spoke for him.

ASKS PROBE OF BARKER MOVE TO BALK BUILDING

State Architect C. Herrick Hammond yesterday asked that an investigation be made by the state's attorney's office into the reported interference by George [Red] Barker, labor racketeer, with workers at the Illinois Eye and Ear Infirmary, Peoria and Adams street.

Hammond and E. A. Schmidt, of the contracting company constructing the building, charged that hoodlums had threatened drivers and interfered with delivery of material to the building site. They admitted that they had nothing but gossip on which to base the charge that Barker was behind the attacks. Assistant State's Attorney Charles Lounsbury was placed in charge of the investigation. He said that he did not plan immediate grand jury action, as the evidence is insufficient for such a move.

SCHWAB ASKS TAX CUT AS RECOVERY KEY

Industries Unable to Bear Burdens.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 19.—Sounding a warning to governments that industry cannot continue to carry the heavy burden of taxation, Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, today called "for readjustment of federal, state, and local expenditures to our present lean purses." He said that was the first step towards the revival of industry.

Mr. Schwab, who called himself "still an optimist even amid present conditions," frankly confessed "the inspiration was not there" when he was preparing his speech. The address was delivered at the forenoon session of the forty-first general meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute, of which Mr. Schwab is president.

Unless the volume of business is restored, Mr. Schwab said, the best we may expect is "to slacken the process of disintegration." To restore the volume of business "credit must be put to work"; to restore credit we must first restore confidence; and the first step towards the restoration of confidence is the balancing of the federal budget.

Others Express Similar Views.

Similar opinions were expressed by other leaders in the steel industry and by Representative James M. Beck of Pennsylvania, who spoke at the dinner of the institute tonight. The burden of government, they held, as manifested through taxation and lavish expenditures, not only bars a return to prosperity but threatens the very life of our industrial institutions.

The speakers included William A. Irvin, president of the United States Steel corporation; Clarence B. Randall, vice president of the Inland Steel company, Chicago, and George H. Charls, president of the National Association of Flat Rolled Steel Manufacturers, Cleveland.

Mr. Schwab and the others pointed out that the steel industry faces the poorest year since 1908; that the industry is operating at 25 per cent capacity or less; that large quantities of foreign steel have been dumped on the market here at prices below the cost of production; that the five leading companies in the steel industry during the first quarter of this year have failed by $25,000,000 to earn their interest, depreciation, and other charges.

Steel House in Order.

"We have done our part," Mr. Schwab said. "We have put our house in order. The federal reserve is doing its part. But, above all, the federal government, which is the heart of our national structure, must balance its budget and restore confidence there. From there confidence, which is the lifeblood of trade, will be transfused into our retailers of finance—the banks—to reestablish that faith which is so necessary to the flow of credit. God speed the day."

"You see, boys, that I am still an optimist, even amid present conditions," Mr. Schwab read from his manuscript. Then, wiping his glasses, he took the occasion to make some impromptu interpolations.

"The general situation," he commented with a smile, "is very much like my eyeglasses—beclouded. We are all in a situation today that is rather unique. The byword seems to be 'Balance your budget,' but most of us don't seem to have a budget to balance.

"It is hard to write an address at this time because the inspiration is not there. While I am not unduly pessimistic, the situation is such that we cannot be too happy about it. I have hopes that the future may bring something better."

Must Fit Lean Purses.

"Similarly, in state and other local communities, expenditures must be readjusted to our present lean purses and to meet present and possible emergencies. The revenue of more prosperous times no longer exists and government must cut according to its cloth."

Turning to what he called the "fallacy of wholesale prices," Mr. Schwab said, "the most destructive thing in our total economic picture has been the unwarranted deflation of commodity prices caused by contraction of credit and the panicky policy of some producers to offer their materials at far less than the cost of production."

"Then we see," he said, "some commodities reduced in value by 75 per cent, and brought to a point where they spell ruin to the producer and to employment. We should take heed and see to it that the steel industry does not follow along that path.

"Balancing our budget does not mean cutting the heart out of everything. It means establishing a proper relationship between items of cost and items of income. Distress prices must be leveled up, not sunk lower."

Warns Against Stampede.

Mr. Schwab warned against "being stampeded into unwarranted sacrifice of skilled, loyal employes, technical men and executives who are, in the last analysis, the dynamos that keep our mills running. In our programs of retrenchment we must be watchful lest we destroy this valuable investment in personnel."

Any attempt, he added, to put the entire country on a cash basis is bound to strangle our trade. The total monetary gold in this country is 4½ billion dollars, and the volume of trade even in 1930 was 70 billion.

"Frankly, gentlemen," Mr. Schwab concluded, "until the volume of our business is restored, the best that we have done has been to slacken the process of disintegration. Even with firmer prices and these drastic cuts in our costs, we cannot continue indefinitely, unless credit is put to work and the volume of our business is thereby increased."

Public Waste Under Attack by Auto Maker

The United States government is the most extravagantly managed partnership in the world and the drastic curtailment of its expenditures is the most serious problem confronting American business today, L. B. Manning, executive vice president of the Cord corporation, told members of the Evanston chamber of commerce yesterday.

"We are all partners in the business, the liabilities of which we are held responsible for, and yet we have practically no say in what debts are contracted for by the partnership," Mr. Manning asserted.

"Organized minorities run this huge partnership, and send us the bills. When a business or a family finds its income less than its expense, it must either cut its expenses to some figure within its income, increase its income, or go broke.

Ridicules New Borrowing.

"When this big partnership of ours finds itself in this position, the directing managers, namely the organized minorities, with special axes to grind, laugh at the suggestion of cutting their pet paternalistic bureaus, and say, 'let us issue some bonds.' In other words, when you are broke, borrow money, and spend your way back to prosperity."

Mr. Manning stated that his company has spent approximately half a million dollars in trying to arouse people to the seriousness of the situation. The management of his firm, he added, considers the question a more important one during the next six months than the designing and manufacturing of automobiles or any of the other activities in which the company is engaged.

For Utility Bond Control.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 19.—Supervision of public utility bonds by the federal government, through a system of federal regulation of their accounts, was urged by Prof. William Z. Ripley of Harvard university today. He spoke before the annual conference of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks.

Prof. Ripley called on savings banks to coöperate in bringing his proposal to realization and in defending the public interest by refusing to invest in companies being operated on the principle of high pressure salesmanship for mass distribution of securities.

While asserting that most public utility corporations were operated on a safe and sane basis, Prof. Ripley drew attention to overdevelopment of holding corporations, which, he charged, carried serious perils to investors. In fact, he said, a situation has arisen with respect to certain practices that call "for that same governmental scrutiny, to which in the public interest it has seemed best to our legislators to subject all kinds of banking operations, railroads, telegraph and telephone companies."

Attacks Public Waste.

Prof. Ripley was preceded by City Controller Charles W. Berry, who told the bankers that they can aid unemployment relief and promote sound business administration of municipalities by discouragement of waste and promoting retrenchment. He urged banks to refuse to do business with cities that will not meet such reasonable requirements as would place their credit on a sound basis.

Mr. Berry recommended also that the federal government assist municipalities in their present difficult financial position by authorizing the federal reserve banking system to accept for discount municipal long term bonds and short term notes other than bonds now acceptable for federal discount.

5 MILLION ISSUE OF NEW YORK CITY BONDS OFFERED

A syndicate headed by the Chase National bank and the National City company yesterday offered a $5,000,000 issue of New York City home and emergency relief 5½ per cent bonds, due 1934 to 1937. The 1934 and 1935 maturities were offered at 100¼ to yield from 5.24 to 5.32 per cent; the 1936 maturities at 100 to yield 5½ per cent, and the 1937 maturities at 99¾ to yield 5.55 per cent.

State Treasurer Hurley of Massachusetts awarded $4,000,000 Massachusetts revenue notes, dated May 24 and due Oct. 25, to Salomon Brothers & Hutzler at 1.29 per cent, plus $37 premium.

The Chase, Harris, Forbes corporation, as paying agents, announced yesterday that funds have been received in the amount of $106,470 to cover the interest, due Jan. 1, 1932, on $3,349,000 of East Prussian Power company first sinking fund 6s, due 1953.

Auto, Truck Competition Cut Railroad's Earnings

President Ralph Budd of the Colorado and Southern railway reported yesterday that the company's 1931 income was $522,253 against $1,203,146 in 1930. He said that among the reasons for the decrease were automobile and motor truck competition, as well as curtailment of coal shipments owing to mild winter weather and increased use of gas and fuel oil.

$15,000,000 GOLD MAY BE SHIPPED TO EUROPE TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 19.—The steamship Bremen, sailing tomorrow night for Cherbourg, Southampton, and Bremen, is expected to carry to Europe all the gold on which insurance can be obtained, either here or abroad. Estimates of the amount to be taken range up to or above $15,000,000.

Earmarking of more than $12,000,000 of the yellow metal at the New York Reserve bank yesterday were accepted as an indication that it will soon be shipped to one or more of the four countries which are drawing heavily upon the American gold store —France, Switzerland, Holland, and Belgium.

Earmarked Gold Exported.

Virtually all the gold that has been placed under earmark since the present outflow began early in April apparently has been exported. Earmarkings in that period have totaled about $29,000,000, and $28,000,000 has been released from earmark, doubtless for exportation. That the foreign central banks have still a large store of gold here which can be withdrawn at their pleasure is shown by the computation that the metal now under earmark at the reserve bank for foreign account totals around $325,000,000.

Shipments of gold to Europe on the present movement, which began early in April, already have reached $149,000,000, with an additional $15,000,000 expected to go out tomorrow. Indications are that the foreign banks are not reducing the amount of gold they hold under earmark, but are buying gold through the New York banks.

Day's Net Loss $6,674,300.

Exports, less a small decrease in earmark account, caused a further loss of $6,674,300 in the country's monetary stock of gold, according to today's statement of the New York Federal Reserve bank. The principal shipment was $5,997,900 to Switzerland, with $975,000 going to France. There were no imports and earmark account decreased $298,600.

Important European currencies were firm against dollars today. Dutch guilder futures commanded a large premium, indicating to foreign exchange dealers that a substantial short position in dollars had been built up at Amsterdam. Spot guilders were steady. French francs, the belga and Swiss francs reached slightly higher levels, and thus the threat of further gold losses was not averted. Sterling cables lost half a cent net, closing at $ 68. German marks eased.

Receiver Asked Here for Republic Gas Corporation

Ancillary receivership proceedings were instituted yesterday in the United States District court here against the Republic Gas corporation, formerly the Saxet company. The company is a holding firm for gas properties with subsidiaries in Texas, Kansas, and Oklahoma. The bill was filed on behalf of Doris L. Charing, a bondholder, by the law firm of Teller, Levit, Silvertrust & Levi.

The attorneys stated that similar petitions were filed in the state court at Wilmington, Del., where the company is incorporated, and in the federal court in that district.

The bill alleges that the company failed to meet the interest on its bonds last December in the amount of $467,490. The thirty days of grace have expired and the company is unable to meet either the interest or the principal, amounting to $6,979,000, which is due, the petition sets forth. Current liabilities of the company exceed current assets by $300,000, the bill adds.

Oklahoma Gas and Electric Reports Earnings for 1931

The annual report of Oklahoma Gas and Electric company for the year ended Dec. 31, 1931, shows gross earnings totaling $11,887,260, a decrease of 16.78 per cent, and net earnings including other income before appropriations for depreciation reserves were $6,114,405, a decrease of 10.80 per cent. The balance available for amortization of debt discount and expense, common dividends and surplus was $1,735,200 for the year 1931 compared with $2,571,403 for 1930, a decrease of $836,203.

Atlantic Coast Line Omitting Its Dividend

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 19.—Directors of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad today omitted the dividend due at this time on the common stock. Six months ago the company reduced the semi-annual payment from $3.50 a share to $2.

"Due to the continued decline in earnings, the directors decided that to conserve the company's cash resources and protect its fixed charges and maturities, it would not be to the best interest of the company and its stockholders to declare a dividend at this time."

Former Rate $7 a Share.

Up to the time of the reduction six months ago Atlantic Coast Line common had been on a regular $7 annual basis since 1917. With extras the total was as high as $10 a share in the years 1927 to 1930. Dividends had been paid in every year since 1901.

Earnings in 1931 were equal to $2.44 a share, compared with $7.58 a share on the common in 1930 and $14.47 a share in 1929. In the first three months net railway operating income was $1,211,813, against $3,734,936 in the 1931 period.

The Louisville and Nashville railroad, subsidiary of the Atlantic Coast Line, also omitted the dividend today. The semi-annual dividend six months ago was $2 and a year ago $2.50. Previously the regular annual rate was $7.

International Harvester Dividend.

The Northern Pipe Line company declared an initial dividend of 25 cents a share on its $10 par stock. Three shares of the present stock were exchanged for one of $50 par, the balance of $20 being paid in cash from capital reduction account. The last dividend payment on the $50 par stock was a semi-annual payment of $1.50 in January.

Crucible Steel company omitted the quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share due on its preferred stock at this time.

SPECULATION AT LOW POINT ON CHICAGO BOARD

With speculative interest at low ebb shares on the Chicago exchange moved within a narrow range yesterday and several of the market leaders were unchanged from the previous day when trading ended.

Early liquidation in Public Service no par broke the price nearly five points, but the issue recovered all but a 1½ of the loss in the later dealings. Commonwealth Edison was steady above 62. Uncertainty over the eventual disposition of the large blocks of these stocks held by the banks as collateral has tended to check any advance in prices. While it is fairly certain that the collateral will not be dumped on the market the uncertainty is enough to halt bullish activities.

Offerings in the Swift issues again appeared, but in smaller volume than at any time in the last three weeks. Excellent support for the stocks was again in evidence and both Swift & Co. and Swift International were unchanged at the close of the day.

Lack of interest characterized dealings in other classes of stocks. Actual net changes were confined to fractions in most instances. The ticker tape moved at a slow pace throughout the day and total transactions amounted to only 30,000 shares.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 19.—Federal Judge Caffey of the District court for the Southern District of New York today confirmed the appointment of Samuel Insull, E. N. Hurley, and C. A. McCulloch as ancillary receivers for the Middle West Utilities company at the conclusion of a meeting of stockholders and creditors yesterday. A few questions were asked on details of the receivership by stockholders present at the meeting, but no opposition was voiced.

The only liabilities of the Middle West Utilities company in New York were shown to be a note of $10,252,600 due to the Bankers' Trust company, against which the company had pledged 1,000,000 shares of Central and Southwest Utilities common stock, 180,011 shares of Central Illinois Public Service common stock, 25,000 shares of Kentucky Utilities common stock, and 50,000 shares of Commonwealth Edison common stock.

List of the Assets.

The only assets of the company here were revealed as consisting of various securities in a safekeeping account with the Bankers' Trust company, consisting of [1] notes of affiliated companies of $7,018,457 face value; [2] bonds and debentures of affiliated companies of $3,415,000 face value; and [3] prior lien, preferred and common stocks, of which appraisal has not been completed.

Among the common stocks were 392,000 common shares of Middle West Utilities Company of Canada, Ltd., 56,442 Commonwealth Light and Power company shares, 60,000 Oklahoma Power and Water shares, and less important securities. It has been agreed with the bankers that the securities in the safekeeping account are to be surrendered to the ancillary receivers, under an arrangement whereby they will not be removed from this jurisdiction without an order of the court.

Give Percentages.

The block of Central and Southwest Utilities common stock pledged under the note is approximately one-third of the entire amount outstanding, the Central Illinois Public Service shares are 69 per cent of the common stock of that company, the Kentucky Utilities block represents about 25 per cent of the total common shares, and the Commonwealth Edison block is about 3.2 per cent of the number of common shares outstanding.

Of the free assets mentioned, the Middle West Utilities of Canada block represents practically the entire outstanding amount of common stock; the Commonwealth Light and Power block is 66 per cent of the entire common issue, and the Oklahoma Power and Water block is the entire amount of common stock outstanding.

Mail Order Catalogs Show Further Price Reductions

The midsummer catalogs of Montgomery Ward & Co., and Sears, Roebuck & Co., issued yesterday, show price reductions ranging from 5 to 50 per cent below last year's list. The further cuts reflect the continued decline in prices of raw materials and finished during the last year. Sears announced that textile prices now are 40 per cent below those of 1929.

HINT AT SUITS TO GET BACK KREUGER CASH

Lawyers Open New Attack.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 19.—Four partners of Lee Higginson & Co., American bankers for the late Ivar Kreuger, have resigned from protective committees in the International Match bankruptcy case. That became known today as public hearings continued before Referee Oscar W. Ehrhorn.

The resignations were decided upon, it was said at the offices of the banking firm, so the committees might not be hampered in any effort to protect holders either of International Match or Kreuger & Toll securities.

Previously Lee Higginson & Co. had been under criticism at the bankruptcy hearings for marketing International Match offerings without conclusive proof of assets. Attorneys for bondholders had charged that the committees on which Lee, Higginson & Co. representatives were serving represented bankers, as opposed to the "independents."

Seeks Basis for Suits.

Simultaneously, at today's hearing, Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the group of protective committees opposing those on which the Lee, Higginson & Co. partners had served, sought to lay the foundation for extensive court action.

Examining Donald Durant, a partner in Lee, Higginson & Co., Mr. Untermyer endeavored to establish that the price of International Match debentures and International Match participating preference stock had been artificially sustained in the market while those issues were being sold.

When Mr. Durant insisted it was not unusual for a banking firm to accept a financial statement without verifying it, Untermyer characterized such actions as "highly improper." That term, however, was stricken from the record as applying to Lee, Higginson & Co.'s acceptance of the Kreuger statement. The questioning continued:

Q.—You have ascertained, have you not, that these issues were based on figures that were false and fraudulent? A.—I cannot say what figures have proved false. Investigation is still going on, but I believe many figures on which the issues were predicated were false.

Q.—All of them were false, were not they? A.—I cannot say.

Q.—Which figures were not? A.—We can't tell yet.

Q.—Regardless of the investigations you are making don't you know the data on which you relied were grossly false and fraudulent? A.—I think they were grossly false.

Q.—Yet your company put out over $200,000,000 in securities on false audits?

Audits Made in Sweden.

In answer Mr. Durant pointed out the $50,000,000 Kreuger & Toll issue was based on audits made in Sweden. No accounting report was made for that issue here, he said, although Lee-Higginson underwrote that issue here.

At the conclusion of the day's hearing Attorneys Untermyer and David L. Podell declared a suit might be based either on a contention of fraud or on market manipulation, if sufficient evidence is obtained. In the event of an action based upon alleged manipulation, those attorneys said their aim would be to rescind all transactions involving International Match and Kreuger & Toll issues in this country, throwing any loss back upon the house that issued those securities to the public.

Mr. Durant insisted that financial statements were accepted by Lee, Higginson & Co. in good faith, and under the circumstances such acceptance was justified.

On the question of market manipulation, Mr. Durant denied that the syndicate of about 600 firms which had aided Lee, Higginson & Co. in marketing operations had followed any other course than the customary one of buying their issues back at the original price in the open market during the period of issue. He refused to acknowledge that the price had been artificially sustained or that the buying back in the open market acted as a prop to keep the price of International Match debentures and participating preference stock, amounting to approximately $1,500,000, at a higher price than was justified by the assets believed to be behind them.

Off Exchange's List.

The New York Stock exchange announced today that the International Match corporation participating preferred stock of $35 par value had been stricken from the list, the company having failed to maintain a transfer office in New York City. There were 1,350,000 shares of the issue listed on the exchange. The final sale was on Tuesday at ¾, compared with a high for the year of 24½, a severe break in the price having occurred on news of the Kreuger suicide. In 1931 the stock sold as high as 73¼.

Georgia Tobacco Crop Is Reported Below Average

It is reported that Georgia's tobacco crop for 1932 is likely to be the smallest in several years. The growing crop has been considerably reduced as a result of unseasonably cold spring weather, and there has been a fair amount of voluntary curtailment of acreage, it is said.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 19.—The speculative market put in another listless day grouping about in a vain hunt for its bearings. News summaries offered nothing weighty enough to influence activity in any direction. Shop talk of the steel men foregathered for their annual meeting was brushed aside as too guarded for consideration, the more important dividend actions of the day were about in line with expectations, and the Washington situation remained as nearly as could be seen from the peaks of skyscrapers here more or less in status quo.

Idlers here and there about the half empty board rooms found some division in the reopening of the stock market inquiry, but since the disclosures bore chiefly on the far distant bull market days, no cause for alarm was felt. In short, the day from the viewpoint of the average trader was a total loss. Volume just about duplicated that of yesterday at around 700,000 shares.

Prices Ease Gently.

Prices tumbled gently about without any apparent rhyme or reason, a majority of them finishing about where they did at the close of the previous session. Some scattered selling came into the early dealings, but in the early afternoon United States Steel led a mild mannered little rally which restored most of the losses.

The rightabout in United States Steel was credited to reports that third-quarter prices on unfinished steel products are to be higher. Brokers say there have been evidences of a good brand of support for the old bellwether for several days. The stock bumped a new bear low of 36½ on Monday but on Tuesday it began to firm up, touching 38⅞. Yesterday it was strongly supported at its low for the day of 37⅝, and today was boosted up to 39, easing only fractionally from that figure in the last few minutes of trading.

Rail Shares Better.

Railroad shares made a better showing than usual in spite of the omission of the Atlantic Coast Line dividend and the oils provided a spot that was good to look at in comparison with some of their past performances. The stand of the Petroleum group was in response to the lately favorable trend of developments affecting the industry. Standard Oil of New Jersey gained more than a point over its previous close and Houston and some of the others looked up rather smartly.

International Salt responded to a dividend reduction by dipping to a new low and International Harvester slid off to a fresh minimum. Other issues to go below their old bottoms were Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 1,000; hogs, 18,000; sheep, 10,000.

The pressure of receipts increased on the hog market with an overrun in the supply yesterday and added to the heavy burden of adverse factors, thereby dragging prices toward new lows. Trading moved slowly with prices gradually working downward. There were no sharp breaks, however. The bulk of offerings were eased down 5@10c, both the extreme top and general average prices showing 5c loss at $3.55 and $3.25. The latter was 5c under the previous low spot.

Considering quality, all classes reached new bottoms. Packing grades comprised a larger share of offerings. The seasonal movement of sows that have had their spring pigs has started. Most of them yesterday averaged 450@550 lbs., and sold at $2.35@2.55, while 350@400 lb averages brought $2.60@2.75. Butchers averaging 300@325 lbs sold at $3.05@3.20, and 200@250 lb hogs changed hands at $3.25@3.55.

Cattle Do Better.

Cattle managed to throw off the influence of low hog prices, at least temporarily. The market yesterday responded to lighter supplies and recovered part of the recent loss. There was a shortage of best grades of steers, and these attracted most attention on the upturn. Prime 1,285 lb medium weights soared to $7.75, while yearlings averaging only 950 lbs made $7.50, the highest price paid for cattle that light in about two weeks.

The $7 line was popular for good to choice 1,100@1,500 lb beef steers, while the bulk of common to fair 600@900 lb averages sold at $5.50@6.00. The first "grassy" cattle of the season are commencing to show up. Texas had a shipment here that sold at $4.90, averaging 1,290 lbs. Smaller lots of thin ill-bred stock ranged downward to $4.00. Yesterday's recovery was encouraging, but there are still a number of unfavorable factors hanging to the market. The dressed beef trade developed some strength early in the week, but since then has been barely steady. Receipts are running light. The total at Chicago is expected to equal the smallest since the middle of March.

Lambs Down Again.

Unfavorable reports from the wholesale trade, where movement of dressed lamb is slow at lower prices, brought a bear raid on live lambs yesterday that bore the whole list to the lowest levels since November, 1911. Losses of 50c showed up in all divisions, both the new and old crop coming under the knife. Prevailing quotations for last year's crop of fed lambs show losses of $3.00@3.50, compared with the high spot in March, while the new crop from the western coast is selling $2.50@2.75 under the high point of last month.

Top for aged wool lambs tumbled to $5.10 yesterday. A few selected native springers sold to city butchers at $6.25, while eleven carloads from California sold at $6.00 and below. Aged shorn lambs brought $4.50 and below.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 1,000 cattle, 18,000 hogs, and 10,000 sheep, against 767 cattle, 16,361 hogs, and 5,459 sheep the previous Friday, and 2,019 cattle, 17,435 hogs, and 9,726 sheep a year ago.

LIGHT TRADING CAUSES SLIGHT WHEAT ADVANCE

Short Covering Is Chief Factor for Day.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

There was sufficient unfavorable crop comment from the winter wheat belt yesterday to have brought about a sharp advance in prices had speculative trading been normal. But trading was extremely light. Prices held within a range of around ¾c. Sufficient local buying developed to lift the July to 57¾c or ¾c above Wednesday's finish, but as soon as the shorts had covered, the market settled back with the finish unchanged to ¼c higher. May was 55¼c; old July, 57⅛@57¼c; old September, 59⅛@59¾c, and December, 61⅝@61¾c.

Traders as a whole were disposed to believe the unsatisfactory market in wheat was due to a large extent to the absence of speculative interest. Reports from the west and southwest as well as parts of the central west told of the crop going steadily backward due to lack of moisture or damage from Hessian fly, but there was relatively little attention paid to the comment, and the bulk of the business in the pit was of a local character. Selling against offers was the main factor in checking the advance.

March Freeze Damaged Wheat.

There is a doubt in the minds of many operators as to whether the recent dry weather has been a material factor in causing damage to the new wheat crop or not. H. C. Donovan, the Logan & Bryan crop observer who has had a great deal of experience, earlier in the season claimed that the wheat plant had been materially damaged by the March freeze, but added that the damage would probably not show up until near harvest. In a special report yesterday he said even where the crop was reported as going backward the soil situation was not serious, which proves that the trouble is more the aftermath of the March freeze than the lack of moisture.

A decrease in the spring wheat acreage in North Dakota was indicated in the semi-monthly report issued by the federal agricultural statistician, but the trade as a whole paid only minor attention to routine news. A Paris cable to J. S. Bache & Co. said the outlook was for the French crop to be in excess of domestic requirements, and advocated the sale of Paris wheat against purchases in Chicago.

Portugal bought a cargo of Argentine wheat yesterday and China took a cargo of Australian. That had some effect on Liverpool. The latter closed unchanged for the day with July at 60¼c or 2¾c over Chicago. Winnipeg was ¾c higher at the last with July at 63⅝c in Canadian funds. Export sales of around 500,000 bu were estimated in all positions.

Light Trade in Corn.

Corn futures held within a range of ⅝c with locals doing the bulk of the business. Sentiment was about evenly divided, and while the best figures were not maintained on the nearby deliveries the December advanced ⅝c for the day, reversing its action of Wednesday. Other futures closed unchanged. May was 30⅝c; July, 32⅝c; September, 34¾c, and December, 34⅝c.

Weather conditions over the corn belt were decidedly favorable for planting and unless there is a delay due to rains it is believed that the bulk of the planting will have been completed within a week. The country failed to offer grain to arrive on a liberal scale, but the eastern demand was distinctly slow.

September oats sold at a new low for the season yesterday, the market developing independent weakness toward the last with the finish ⅛@⅜c lower. May finished at 22⅜c; July, 22⅝c; September, 21⅞c and December, 23¾c. Charters were made for 150,000 bu to an eastern lake port.

Buying of rye against sales of wheat gave the former market a firm undertone, and the close was unchanged to ⅝c higher with May, 37⅛c; July, 39⅛c; September, 40¼c, and December, 42⅜c. Nothing was heard regarding export business.

BUTTER AND EGGS HIGHER

Butter and egg futures closed with slight advances on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, butter recovering from an early break which carried the fresh deliveries down to new all time lows at 16¾c. There was an improved buying in November butter case prices, covering apparently. The daily storage figures showed an inward total slightly heavier than last year, but production reports were better. The American association reported an expected advance in the make from the previous week this year but that the total was under that of the same week last year. Egg news was improved, the four markets reporting 8,000 cases less in, but buying was only moderately active. Sales: Butter, 43 cars; eggs, 24 cars. Deliveries: Eggs, 3 cars. Prices follow:

LARD TRADE SLOW

Trading in lard was light, with a range of 5c at the extreme, with the finish about the same as on the previous day. Speculators and the trade in general believe that prices are scraping around the bottom, but general conditions are not such as to induce investment buying or packers to indulge in liberal hedging operations. Hogs were lower and near the inside of the season, with liberal receipts in excess of a week ago but below last year.

Cash business was moderate. Pork loins had a range of 6@8c, with heavies slow sale. Short ribs and clear bellies were $3.05. Regular cash lard was $3.80, loose leaf and leaf lard, $3.25. Prices follow:

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Traders who lean to the buying side of all grains on breaks are impressed with the idea that prospects for the winter wheat crop are such as to make purchases fairly profitable for short turns, but so long as the trade remains so thin as at present the expectations are that prices will range close to the present level, with a cent or two advance or break, all depending upon pit conditions. Reports from Kansas continue to confirm estimates of low yields, which have the widest range known to the trade.

A more bullish foreign situation has not been seen in recent years, but foreigners are cautious buyers and take hold mainly on the breaks. All intimations from abroad are that a number of customers are in the market, but they all want to buy it on their own terms, which are not satisfactory to American holders.

A Kansas City man who was in Chicago estimated the wheat crop of Kansas as ranging from 85 to 100 million bu. The milling convention there is said to have made much lower figures. On the present basis it is said to be too uncertain to make definite calculations, as too much depends on weather conditions. The bullish crop news in the southwest, however, is in a measure offset by favorable conditions in the spring wheat territory on both sides of the international line.

Late cables present an unfavorable situation in Russia. Seeding is late, owing to unfavorable weather, and indications are for a smaller crop, based on a smaller seeded acreage than was expected. Russia exported no wheat last week. Its outward movement for some time has been exceedingly small.
